Lineage.

The family of De Burgh, De Burgo, Burke, or Bourke (as at different times written), Earls and Marquesses of Clanricarde, ranks amongst the most distinguished in the Kingdom, and deduces an uninterrupted line of powerful nobles from the Conquest.

JOHN, Earl of Comyn, and Baron of Tonsburgh, in Normandy (whose descent has been deduced from CHARLEMAGNE), being general of the King's forces, and governor of his chief towns, assumed thence the surname of DE BURGH. He had issue,

- HARLOWEN, of whom presently.
 Eustace, Baron of Tonsburgh, from whom the Viscounts de Vesce derive.
 Millicent, who m. Fulk, Earl of Anjou, who became King of Jerusalem in 1131.

The elder son,

HARLOWEN DE BURGH, founded the abbey of Gresteim, in Normandy, and d. before his father, leaving by his wife, Arlota, mother of WILLIAM the Conqueror, Odo, bishop of Bayeux, created Earl of Kent, and an elder son,

ROBERT, Earl of Moreton, in Normandy, who participating with his brother in the triumph of Hastings, was created by his victorious kinsman (anno 1068), Earl of Cornwall, and further rewarded with grants of 793 manors. He m. Maud, dau. of Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury, and was s. by his only son,

WILLIAM DE MORETON, Earl of Cornwall, who rebelling against HENRY II., died a prisoner, having his eyes put out by order of that monarch, and his Earldom of Cornwall transferred to Stephen of Blois. This unfortunate nobleman left two sons, viz.,

ADELME, or ADELM, of whom presently.

JOHN, whose son, HUBERT DE BURGH, Earl of Kent, JUSTICIARY OF ENGLAND, temp. HENRY III., and one of the greatest subjects in Europe, m. 1st, Joan, dau. of William de Vermin, Earl of Devon; 2nd, Beatrix, dau. of William de Warren, of Wermgay, in Norfolk; 3rd, Isabel, dau. and co-heir of William, Earl of Gloucester; and 4th, Margaret, dau. of WILLIAM, King of Scotland. His lordship had issue, a son, SIR HUBERT DE BURGH, whose son, WILLIAM DE BURGH, summoned to parliament 1st of EDWARD III., had, with an elder son, JOHN, ancestor of the LORDS BURGH of Gainsborough, a younger son, SIR HUGH DE BURGH, Knt., who m. Elizabeth, sole dau. and heir of Fouk, Lord of Mawddwy, in Merioneth, grandson of William (living 17 EDWARD I.), fourth son of Griffith ap Gwenwynwyn, Prince of Powys-Wenwynwyn, and was father of a son and heir, SIR JOHN DE BURGH, Knt., Lord of Mawddwy, who m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Clopton, Knt. of Clopton, co. Warwick, and Radbrook, co. Denbigh.

The elder son,

ADELM DE BURGH, was father of

WILLIAM FITZ-ADELM, who was sent by HENRY II., with Hugh de Lacie, into Ireland, to receive the submission of Roderick O'Connor, King of Connaught, and of the King of Meath, and founded there, according to Sir Richard Cox, "one of the best and noblest families, which has yielded many brave and worthy men, that have proved eminently serviceable to their king and country, whereby the name, estate, and family are preserved, in great honour and reputation, to this day." This William, who was made governor of Wexford, was entrusted, on the king's return to England, with the management of his affairs in Ireland. In 1175, in a synod of the bishops and clergy at Waterford, he published the bull, and the privileges granted by POPE ALEXANDER III., in confirmation of the bull of ADRIAN IV., constituting the king Lord of Ireland. In 1179, he obtained by grant, a great part of the province of Connaught. He d. in 1204, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE BURGH, surnamed The great Lord of Connaught, who was lord-lieutenant of Ireland in 1227. This Richard built the castle of Galway in 1232, and that of Loughbreah in 1236. He was a man of high authority and power, and d. on his passage to France, in Jan. 1243, in proceeding to meet the King of England at Bordeaux, attended "by his barons and knights." He m. Hodierna, dau. of Robert de Gernon, and granddau., maternally, of Cahill Crowderg, or The Red Hand, King of Connaught, and had two sons, viz.,

1. WALTER, Lord of Connaught, who, marrying MAUD, dau. and heir of Hugh de Lacie, the younger, became in her right, EARL OF ULSTER, on the death of his father-in-law. He was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD, 2nd Earl of Ulster, usually called The Red Earl, whose great-granddau., LADY ELIZABETH DE BURGH, only child and heir of William, 3rd Earl of Ulster, m. LIONEL, of Antwerp, Duke of Clarence, 3rd son of EDWARD III., who became, in consequence, 4th Earl of Ulster, and Lord of Connaught, and had, by the heiress of De Burgh, an only dau., Philippa, wife of EDWARD MORTIMER, 3rd Earl of March, and jure uxoris, 5th Earl of Ulster, ancestor, through his granddau., the LADY ANNE MORTIMER, wife of Richard Plantagenet, Earl of Cambridge, of EDWARD IV., King of England.

II. WILLIAM.

The 2nd son of Richard de Burgh, Lord of Connaught,

WILLIAM DE BURGH, is known by the surname of Athan-kip, from being put to death at that place by the King of Connaught. He was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM DE BURGH, who, having m. a dau. of the

His lordship did not, however, long enjoy his honours; but dying in the following year, 1544, was s. by his only son,

He was made a peer of the United Kingdom, as Baron Clermont, of Clermont Park, 2 May, 1866.

Lineage.

This noble family derives from a common ancestor with that of the Earls Fortescue.

SIR FAITHFUL FORTESCUE, son of John Fortescue, Esq. of Buckland Filleigh, in the co. of Devon, by Susanna, his second wife, dau. of Sir John Chichester, Knt. of Raleigh, went over to Ireland in the beginning of the reign of JAMES I., and commanded a regiment of foot there under his uncle, the lord-deputy, Sir Arthur Chichester, by whom he was knighted, and appointed, 14 Nov. 1606, jointly with Roger Langford, Esq., governor of Carrickfergus. He acquired also considerable landed possessions, including Dromisken Castle, lying ten miles from Drogheda, with broad and fertile lands in the counties of Louth, Down, and Antrim. During the subsequent civil conflicts of the reign of CHARLES I., Sir Faithful Fortescue rendered essential service to his ill-fated master; and after the disastrous battle of Worcester, where, with his regiment, he prominently distinguished himself, retired to the continent with CHARLES II. After the Restoration he enjoyed in an eminent degree the royal favour, and was made a gentleman of the privy chamber to his majesty. Sir Faithful m. the Hon. Anne Moore, second dau. of Garret, 1st Viscount Drogheda, and by her, who d. 5 Sept. 1634, had (with other children, the eldest of whom, Chichester, left an only dau. and heir, Elizabeth, m. to Sir Richard Graham, Bart. of Norton Convers) a third son,

SIR HENRY (who resumed the original surname of his ancestors) VANE, of Raby Castle, co. Durham, his chief place of abode, and which continues to be used by his descendants. This gentleman (b. 1585, knighted 1620) was a distinguished politician, and stood high in the favour of JAMES I. and CHARLES I.; in the former reign he was appointed cofferer to the Prince of Wales; and in the latter, after enjoying many elevated offices (amongst others, that of Ambassador in Sweden to Gustavus Adolphus, and one of the commissioners of the Admiralty), was constituted principal secretary of state for life, and sworn of the privy council. His subsequent dismissal from office was attributed to his having offended the king by the active part he took in the prosecution of the earl of Strafford, against whom, it is said, he was influenced by private pique, arising from that nobleman's having, when elevated to the peerage, taken the title of Baron Raby of Raby Castle, which Sir Henry Vane deemed more properly to belong to himself as owner of the castle. Sir Henry Vane m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Darcy, Esq. of Tolleshunt Darcy, co. Sir Henry Vane d. in 1654, and was s. by his elder son, the famous

SIR HENRY VANE, Knt. of Raby Castle, co. Durham, and of Fairlawn and Hadlow, co. Kent, b. about 1612, knighted 23 June, 1640—whom Clarendon characterizes as a person of "great natural parts, a quick conception and very ready, sharp, and weighty expression," and Milton celebrates in verse as "Vane, young in years, but in sage counsel old." He was educated at Westminster and Oxford, and on returning from Geneva, where he imbibed those strong prejudices which influenced his future career, emigrated with some dissatisfied spirits to America, where the colonists, in admiration of his talents, made him, notwithstanding his youth, governor of Massachusetts, which office he did not long retain, but returned privately to England, where through the interest of his father he was appointed joint treasurer of the navy with Sir William Russell, and outliving his associate, enjoyed the office alone, in which he displayed a rare example of honour and integrity. The fees of the office were at that time four pence in the pound, which, by reason of the war, fairly amounted to upwards of £30,000 per annum, but Sir Henry Vane looked upon it as too much for a subject, and nobly relinquished his patent, which had been granted by King CHARLES I. for life, to the then parliament, desiring but £2000 a-year for an agent he had brought up to the office, the remainder to go to the public. The part which this distinguished personage afterwards took against the Court is well known. He aided in procuring the condemnation of Strafford, and led the impeachment against Laud. He was twice a parliamentary commissioner, and opposed the terms of peace. After the King's death, in which he had no share, he became one of the supreme governing council. He was a strenuous adversary to CROMWELL throughout the Protectorate, and endeavoured to establish a republican constitution after the Protector's death. Clarendon further observes of him thus:—"When his father received the disobligation from the Lord Strafford, by his being created Baron of Raby, the house and land of Vane (which title had been promised himself, but it was unluckily cast upon the earl, purely out of contempt to Vane), they sneaked in all the thoughts of revenge imaginable; and thence, the son betook himself to the friendship of Mr. Pym, and all other discontented or seditious persons, and communicated all that intelligence that designed the ruin of the earl, and which grafted him in the entire confidence of those who promoted the same; so that nothing was concealed from him, though it is believed he communicated his own thoughts to very few." At the Restoration, Vane was arrested, but a promise was given to parliament that his life should be spared; in violation of this he was, 2 June, 1662, arraigned for high treason, was found guilty, and receiving sentence of death, was beheaded on Tower Hill, 14 June, 1662. The surname of this very ancient family is derived from Cliffe-ton, or Clifton, a small hamlet, upon an eminence, about two miles from the town of Nottingham; which hamlet, and the manor of Wilford, were purchased, temp. EDWARD I., from John de Soleni, by

SIR GERVASE DE CLIFTON, Knt. This gentleman was appointed sheriff of the cos. During his sheriffalty, he was committed to gaol, upon complaint of John de Carleton, for making a false return to a writ. He m. Amficia, dau. of Sir William Sampson, of Eperston, Notts, and d. in 1324. From Sir Gervase we pass to his descendant,

SIR JOHN CLIFTON, M.P. for Nottingham in 1403; who m. Catharine, dau. of Sir John de Cressy, of Hodsock, and sister and co-heir of Sir Hugh de Cressy, and thus acquired a considerable augmentation of property. Sir John was slain at the battle of Shrewsbury, fighting on the king's side against the Percies. His lineal successor,

ROBERT CLIFTON, m. for his 2nd wife, Agnes, dau. of Henry, Lord Clifford, and sister of Henry, 1st Earl of Cumberland, who, through the lines of Clifford, Percy, and Mortimer, was descended from Lionel Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, son of EDWARD III. Mr. Clifton d. in 1518, and was s. by his son,

SIR GERVASE CLIFTON, Knt., a very eminent person in the reigns of HENRY VIII., EDWARD VI., MARY, and ELIZABETH. He was a gentleman in great authority in peace and war, yet, notwithstanding his martial inclination, of so courteous and affable a disposition, that he was usually styled "Gentle Sir Gervase;" and ELIZABETH has given him that title in a distich attributed to her majesty, on four Nottingham knights:—

"Gervase, the gentle; Stanhope, the stout;
Marcham, the lion; and Sutton, the lout."

He m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Sir John Nevill, of Cheet, in Yorkshire, by whom he had an only surviving dau., Elizabeth. He m. 2ndly, Winifred, dau. and heir of William Thwaites, Esq. of Owlton, in Suffolk, and was s. by his grandson,

CLINTON.

CLINTON, BARON (Charles-Henry-Rolle Hepburn-Stuart-Forbes-Trefusis), of Maxtock, co. Warwick, b. 2 Mar. 1834; m. 29 July, 1858, Harriet-Williamina, only dau. of Sir John-Stuart Forbes, Bart., and has

His lordship, who was M.P. for North Devon, s. his father as 20th Baron Clinton, 10 April, 1866. He is the eldest co-heir of the ancient Barony of Say, which has remained in abeyance for several centuries. When Sir James Fienes obtained the Barony of Say and Sele, by creation, 1447, John, the 5th and then Baron Clinton, great-grandson and representative of Idonea Say, relinquished all claim to the barony and arms of Say; but how far such a cession affects his descendants, has not been determined. According, however, to the celebrated resolution of the House of Lords, 18 June, 1768, "that no fine now levied, nor at any time hereafter to be levied, to the king, can bar such title of honour, or the right of any person claiming such title under him that levied, or shall levy, such fine," it would appear that it did not prejudice their hereditary right. The present Lord Clinton has by royal licence, dated 4 Sept. 1867, taken the surnames of HEPBURN-STUART-FORBES in addition to that of TREFUSIS, and the arms of Stuart and Forbes quarterly with those of Trefusis.

The earl d. 29 Sept. 1616, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Alexander, a distinguished advocate and lawyer, was called to the English bar, 6 Feb. 1829, and went the western circuit. He became a Queen's counsel in 1841, and was solicitor-general in 1850, and twice attorney-general, once from March, 1851 to Feb. 1852; and again from Dec. 1852 to Nov. 1856. He was knighted in 1850, and was M.P. for Southampton, and recorder of Bristol. He was appointed chief-justice of the Court of Common Pleas in Nov. 1856, and of the Court of Queen's Bench in 1859.

Mirage.

ALEXANDER DE COCKBURN obtained the Barony of Carriden, co. Linlithgow, from DAVID II., in 1358; which barony had been forfeited to the crown, he m. Mary de Viteri Ponte (from which period the family has been designated of Langtoun, or Langton), whose father fell at Bannockburn, in 1314. The eldest son of this marriage, SIR ALEXANDER COCKBURN, Knt. of Langtoun, was keeper of the great seal between 1389 and 1396; and from him descended

SIR WILLIAM COCKBURN, Knt. of Langtoun, who obtained a grant, in 1595, of the lauds and barony of Langtoun, with the office of principal usher, and its fees and casualties, to himself and his heirs male whatsoever, bearing the arms and surname of Cockburn. He m. Helen, 5th dau. of Alexander, 4th Lord Elphinstone, and was s. by his son,

I. WILLIAM COCKBURN, Esq., who was created a Baron of Nova Scotia in 1627. It appears that, during the lifetime of this gentleman, some question concerning the office of usher, which he had inherited from his father, being raised, caused much public agitation. Principal Baillie, in his letters, relates "that while the question of usher was depending in parliament, in 1641, Langton, too rashly, takes a rod and puts himself in possession of the place." The king, who was present, offended at his presumption, ordered him into custody, which gave rise to a motion, on the part of the Marquess of Argyll, that, when any subject of debate occurred, two members of each estate should be deputed to acquaint the king. Accordingly, deputies having obtained an audience of his majesty, in the course of the same day, they remonstrated on a member of the house being committed without advice of parliament, and required the king to enact a law that neither himself nor his successors should do so hereafter, without consulting the legislative body. Sir William subsequently alienated a moiety of the uasherip, and became joint-usher with Col. Cunningham. He was s. by his only son,

II. SIR ARCHIBALD, who, in 1657, was returned heir to his father in the office of principal usher, still held jointly with Colonel Cunningham, and also in the barony of Langtoun, and other property. By a very ancient grant, from Reginald de Villecore to Thomas Colleton, of an estate, and by subsequent deeds, in the beginning of the reign of EDWARD I., we find the Colletons style themselves gentlemen, and that they then bore the arms which they still continue to use.

The first entry in the pedigree at the Herald's College is that of — Colleton, b. about 1447; who m. the dau. and heiress of — Ridgway, and had a son and heir,

HENRY COLLETON, b. about 1485; who m. Margaret, dau. of William Bury, of Colleton; and dying before 1550, left two daus., one of whom m. Thomas Dyer, Esq. of Shobbrook, and the other, John Brushford, Esq., and three sons,

- ii. Peter d. s. p.
- iii. THOMAS, of whom we treat.

The third son,

PETER COLLETON, who recorded his pedigree, including three ascents before his time, at the visitation of 1620, was high-sheriff of Exeter in 1618. He m. Ursula, dau. of Henry Hull, of Larkbeare, Exon; and d. in 1622, leaving (with a dau., Elizabeth, m. to Sir Hugh Crocker, Knt.) four sons, all of whom d. s. p., except the second.

I. JOHN COLLETON, b. in 1608; capt. of foot, and a most active partisan of royalty in the beginning of the civil wars. Capt. Colleton had a col.'s commission to raise a regiment from Sir John Berkeley, afterwards Lord Berkeley, signed by the Prince of Wales; which regiment he raised within ten days, and expended for the king's service £40,000, besides losing considerably more than that sum by sequestration. He was obliged eventually to retire to Barbadoes; but returning after the Restoration, Sir John Berkeley presented a memorial in his favour to the king, who, in consequence, conferred upon him the dignity of Baronet, 13 Feb. 1660-1. Sir John, in conjunction with the Duke of Albemarle, and other distinguished personages, had a grant of large dominions in North America. He m. Katherine, dau. of William Amy, Esq. of Exon, and left at his decease, in 1666, a dau. (m. 1st. to Lieut.-Gen. Stewart, and 2ndly, to Humphrey Selwood) and four sons, viz.,

JAMES, b. 30 March, 1844.

Lineage.

The origin of this family is enveloped in the obscurity of remote antiquity, and has been variously traced by uncertain traditions.

But although in the absence of distinct historical records none of these traditionary accounts can now be authenticated by positive and satisfactory proof, it is certain, at least, that the name is very ancient; and that this family held a large proportion of the territory of Dumbartonshire by charters from the crown, having also acquired, from the Lennox family, the important hereditary office of coroner (coronator) of that county.

The first authentic record we have been able to discover of the COLQUHOUNS of Luss, is to be found in a charter of Maldowen, 3rd Earl of Lennox, who succeeded his father, Alwyn, the 2nd earl, in 1225, containing a grant of the lands of Luss in favour of GILMORE, the son of MALDONENS, who lived in the reign of WILLIAM the Lion.

In the reign of ALEXANDER II., UMPHRIDUS de Kilpatrick obtained a grant of the lands and barony of Colquhoun, in Dumbartonshire, upon which occasion he gave up the name of Kilpatrick, and assumed the name of COLQUHOUN of Colquhoun. From him descended,

SIR ROBERT DE COLQUHOUN, who m. the dau. and heiress of Sir Humphry, of Luss; since which time the family have borne the name and designation of COLQUHOUN, of Colquhoun and of Luss. From this Sir Robert several other families of the name of COLQUHOUN, in Dumbartonshire, are descended. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HUMPHRY COLQUHOUN, of that ilk and of Luss, whose son,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, was governor of the castle of Dumbarton during the minority of JAMES II. His son Malcolm, who was one of the hostages for the ransom of JAMES I., d. before his father, leaving a son, who s. his grandfather.

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, the son of Malcolm, a man of the most eminent abilities, held the high official situation of comptroller of the Exchequer, from 1465 until 1469. He was subsequently appointed sheriff-principal of Dumbartonshire, and received a grant of the lands of Rosemeath. In 1474, he was elevated to the rank of great chamberlain of Scotland. He was likewise one of a commission deputed to England, with full powers to negotiate a marriage between the Prince Royal of Scotland and the Princess Cicily, dau. of King EDWARD IV. Sir John acquitted himself so well in this delicate affair, that he was soon afterwards appointed governor of Dumbarton Castle for life, with very extensive powers; and he received various grants of lands in consideration of his important public services. In 1478, he proceeded to the siege of Dunbar, and while performing his military duties there, he was slain by a cannon shot, on the 1st of May, 1478. He m. a dau. of Thomas, Lord Boyd, by whom he had issue,

HUMPHRY, his successor.

Robert, who became Bishop of Argyle.

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, who received the honours of knighthood from King JAMES IV., and obtained a charter under the great seal, of sundry lands and baronies in Dumbartonshire, dated 4 Dec. 1506. He m. 1st, Margaret Stuart, dau. of John, Earl of Lennox, ancestor of the Royal Family, by whom he had two sons and four daus.; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of William Cunningham of Craighends, by whom he had two sons. He d. in 1535, and was s. by his eldest son.

SIR HUMPHRY COLQUHOUN, who m. Catherine, dau. of William, 1st Earl of Montrose, by whom he had one son and three daus. He d. in 1537, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, who obtained a charter under the great seal, of the lands and baronies of Luss, Colquhoun, Dunglass, Garscube, and others, dated 6 Jan. 1541. By Agnes, dau. of Robert, 4th Lord Boyd, ancestor of the Earls of Kilmarnock, he had three sons and three daus. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HUMPHRY COLQUHOUN, who acquired the heritable coronership of the co. of Dumbarton, which was notified to him and his heirs whatsoever, by a charter under the great seal, in the year 1583. He m. 1st, Jean Cunningham, dau. of Alexander, 5th Earl of Glencairn, by whom he had no issue; and 2ndly, Jean, dau. of John, Lord Hamilton, by whom he had one dau. In the year 1595, he was treacherously assaulted in one of his castles (the castle of Banachra) and slain, during a raid of the clan McGregor and their lawless followers. Having left no male issue, he was s. by his brother,

SIR ALEXANDER COLQUHOUN, 3rd son of the last-mentioned Sir John, who obtained a charter, under the great seal, dated 5 February, 1597, of the lands of Waltoun, Auchindonnie, &c., in Dumbartonshire. By his wife, Helen, dau. of Sir George Buchanan, of that ilk, he had five sons and one dau. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, who obtained a charter, under the great seal, of the ten-pound land of Dunnerbuck, dated 20 Feb. 1602. In 1625 he was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, by King CHARLES I. He was a steady loyalist, suffered many hardships during the civil war, and was moreover, fined by OLIVER CROMWELL in the sum of £2000 sterling, a large sum in those days. He m. Lillias Graham, dau. of John, 4th Earl of Montrose, brother to the celebrated first Marquess of that family, by whom he had, with two daus., three sons, viz.,

His eldest son and successor,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, m. Margaret, dau. and sole heiress of Sir Gideon Baillie, of Lochend, by whom he had one son and four daus. His son John predeceased his father, nam.; and Sir John, the father, dying in 1676, without surviving male issue, the representation devolved on his brother,

SIR JAMES COLQUHOUN, who m. Penuel, dau. of William Cunningham, of Balleichan, in Ireland, by whom he had one son, his successor,

SIR HUMPHRY COLQUHOUN, who was a member of the Union Parliament. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Patrick Houston, of that ilk, by whom he had no male issue. His only dau. and sole heiress, Anne Colquhoun, m. in 1702, James Grant, of Phiscardine, second son of Ludovick Grant, of Grant. Sir Humphry having no hope of male issue, and being determined that his daughter and her husband should succeed him in his whole estate and honours, resigned, in 1704, his lands and baronetcy into the hands of the crown,—a proceeding not uncommon in those days,—with the view of obtaining a new grant to himself, in life-rent, and to his daughter and son-in-law, and their heirs in fee; but providing that the heirs succeeding to that estate and title should be obliged to carry the name and arms of COLQUHOUN of Luss, &c., and that the estates of Luss and Grant should never be conjoined. Sir Humphry d. in 1715, and was s. by his son-in-law,

SIR JAMES COLQUHOUN, of Luss, whose elder brother dying without issue in 1719, he succeeded to the estate of Grant, relinquished the name and title of COLQUHOUN of Luss, and resumed his original family name of GRANT. He was s. in the estate of Luss by the second son,

SIR LUDOVICK, who, upon the death of his elder brother, who d. nam., succeeded to the estate of Grant, when the estate of Luss descended to his immediate younger brother,

JOHN, b. 16 Aug. 1845.

Lineage.

This is one of the ancient Milesian families of Ireland, deducing its descent from Maine, son of Nial—Naoidgeack, or Nial, of the 9 Hostages, Monarch of Ireland, A.D. 400—the common ancestor of the O'Neills and O'Donnells of the North.

The sept assumed its true name from "Conaire," a famous ancestor in the 11th century, according to Irish custom, which also adding the prefixes O. and Mac, the name became "O'Maolconaire," Anglice "O'Mulconry," and was so written until the 16th century, when the O'Connor Don, O'Connor Roe, and O'Connor Sligo, the dominant Lords of Connaught, having "come in and submitted to Queen ELIZABETH, A.D. 1585," entered into the "Indentures of Composition" with Sir John Perrott, lord deputy of Ireland, whereby they covenanted for themselves, and sub-chieftains, to give up their native customs, their tuncistic rule, the usages of their Brehon law, and in some cases the national prefixes to their surnames, and instead to adopt English law, and to hold their estates by English tenures.

The name of this family was henceforth written "Conroy." The Sept enjoyed for many generations, by hereditary right, the privilege of supplying the Ollamhs of Connaught, and Seanchies to the kings of that province, in virtue of which office,

"It was the privilege of the O'Mulconry (saith the old chronicles) to stand alone, with the new king, upon the sacred mount of Carn Fraoich, and there to deliver into his hands, the white wand or sceptre, the emblem of sovereignty, to administer the usual oath or admonition to preserve the customs of the country, and finally to record the proceedings."

The early part of the pedigree of the chiefs of this family (of whom the present baronet is the lineal descendant) is to be found in the registry entitled Funerel Entries of the Nobility and Gentry of Ireland for the year 1638, one of the books of record in Ulster's Office, Dublin Castle, from which it appears that the funeral, and lineage of Moylin O'Mulconry, chief of his name, were duly registered, recording him, as 43rd in descent of this ancient family, and received the warranty dated 6 July, 1638, of Thomas Preston, then Ulster King of Arms of all Ireland.

From this "Moylin O'Mulconry," of Tallon, co. Roscommon, [The O'Mulconry] who by his wife Catherine, dau. of Teigue O'Flanagan of Ceaneloin, had issue, five sons and four daus., and d. 5 Jan. 1637, there descended

THORNA O'MULCONRY, or CONRY, eldest son and heir, who m. a dau. of Ferdoragh Mac Brennan, of Clonickarran, Gent. and dying in 1647, was s. by his only son,

JOHN O'MULCONRY, or CONRY, who, having taken part in the civil war, as a royalist, suffered from the confiscations inflicted upon the native families by CROMWELL, and fled to France, where finally dropping the prefixes to his name, he m. in 1655, Florence, dau. and heir of G. Fitzgerald (of the great family of Desmond), by a French lady, and was killed in the service of LOUIS XIV., at the passage of the Rhine, in June, 1672, leaving one dau. and two sons. The elder,

Lineage.

The ancestors of this noble family had, for many generations, their residence in the co. Hereford, where

LODOWICK BOYLE lived in the reign of HENRY III.; and from whom descended

LODOWICK BOYLE, of Bidney, founder of the friars in the city of Hereford, who was living in the time of HENRY VI., and had two sons,

1. John, who settled in Herefordshire.

II. Roger, who m. and (with a dau., Mary, m. to Sir Richard Smyth, of Rathcogan—see BURKE'S Landed Gentry, SMYTHS OF HEADBOROUGH AND BALLYNATRAY) left four sons,

1. John, of Hereford.

2. RICHARD, of whose descendants we are about to treat.

3. Michael, of whose children, Michael was bishop of Waterford, and d. in 1635; Richard was bishop of Cork and Ross, and afterwards archbishop of Tuam, and left a son, Michael, who was archbishop of Armagh, and lord-chancellor of Ireland, and father of Merrough, created Viscount Blessington, a dignity which expired in 1732, with Charles, 2nd viscount.

4. George, d. s. p.

RICHARD BOYLE, 2nd son of Roger, mentioned above, b. in 1566, studied law at the Middle Temple; but despairing, from his scanty means, of being able to pursue his studies, embarked for Ireland as an adventurer; and having obtained, after suffering some persecutions from the local authorities, the favour and protection of ELIZABETH, amassed considerable wealth, received the honour of knighthood, was sworn of the privy-council, and elevated to the peerage of that kingdom, 16 Sept. 1616, as Baron Boyle of Youghal, and 16 Oct. 1620, created Viscount Dungarvan and EARL OF CORK. His lordship, who was called "The great Earl of Cork," and who left a narrative of his remarkable career, entitled The True Remembrancer, m. 1st, Joan, dau., and co-heir of William Apsley, Esq., with whom he acquired an estate of £500 a year, but by whom (who d. in 1599) he had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Geoffrey Fenton, Knt., principal secretary of state for Ireland, and had (with several daus.) five sons, viz.,

I. RICHARD, Lord Dungarvan.

II. LEWIS, created 23 Feb. 1627, Baron of Bandon Bridge, and Viscount Boyle, of Kinalmeaky, in the peerage of Ireland. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of William, Earl of Denbigh (which lady was created, on the restoration of CHARLES II., Countess of Gullford), but had no issue. He fell at the battle of Lisacroll, 1642, when his honours passed (agreeably to a special limitation in the patent) to his elder brother, Lord Dungarvan.

III. ROGER, b. in 1621, elevated to the peerage of Ireland, as Baron of Broghill, with remainder to the heirs male of his father, 23 Feb. 1627. This nobleman, who made so considerable a figure in the camp, the court, and the literary world, had distinguished commands in Ireland, prior to, and under the rule of CROMWELL, and acquired considerable renown in reducing the Irish to submit to the government of the Commonwealth. Contributing eventually, however, after CROMWELL'S death, to the restoration of the monarchy, his lordship was created, 5 Sept. 1660, EARL OF ORRERY, and in the same year constituted (5 Sept.), by patent, lord-president of Munster for life. He d. 16 Oct. 1679, and was s. by his elder son* (by Margaret, 3rd dau. of Theophilus, 2nd Earl of Suffolk),

I. ROGER, 2nd Earl of Orrery, who marrying Lady Mary Sackville, dau. of Richard, 5th Earl of Dorset, and dying in 1682, was s. by his eldest son,

LIONEL, 3rd Earl of Orrery, at whose decease s. p. 25 Aug. 1703, the honours devolved upon his brother, CHARLES, 4th Earl of Orrery, lieutenant-general, envoy-extraordinary to Brabant and Flanders, created a peer of Great Britain, 5 Sept. 1711, as Baron Boyle, of Marston, co. Somerset. His lordship, who was known in the world of letters for his literary dispute with the learned Dr. Bentley, and who had his designation of "Orrery" given to a new astronomical instrument, by its inventor, George Graham, m. Lady Elizabeth Cecil, only dau. of John, 5th Earl of Exeter; and dying, 1731, was s. by his only son, JOHN, 5th Earl of Orrery, who s. in 1753, to the EARLDOM OF CORK.

IV. FRANCIS, created Viscount Shannon, 1660, an honour which expired, 1740, with his grandson and successor, Richard, 2nd viscount.

V. ROBERT, of Stalbridge, in Dorsetshire, b. at Lismore, 25 Jan. 1626; the celebrated philosopher, who, ennobled by his own transcendent talents, repeatedly refused the dignities of the state, having been several times offered a peerage. He d. 30 Dec. 1691, and was interred in the chancel of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Westminster. His character is given by Dr. Gilbert Burnet, in his Funeral Sermon, preached on him at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, 7 Jan. 1692; and The present state of Europe for the February of the same year, contains this paragraph:—"The famous Mr. Boyle is dead, and his loss is lamented by all learned men. He was a philosopher under a particular character, for he addicted himself only to the study of natural philosophy, though he did not reject the other parts of that science; and it may be said, that never any man had dived so deep into the knowledge of nature as he had done; he had studied with a prodigious sedulity, and had so many experiments to explain the several phenomena which daily happen upon the concurrence of natural accidents, that there were few at this time of which he did not understand the real causes."

The great earl, who was lord-treasurer of Ireland, d. at Youghal, in Sept. 1643, and lies interred in his chapel within the parish church there, where to him is erected a beautiful marble monument, with curiously engraven thereon his figure at full length in armour, having on each side the effigies of his wives, and the names and marriages of his children, with an inscription expressing his own marriages, titles, and employments, which concludes with this distich—

"Sic posui tumulum. Superes intendere Votis:
Parce animae, carum solvito, Christe, veni."

The earl's wife, Lady Cork, d. previously in Dublin, 16 Feb. 1629, and was privately buried in a vault which her husband had purchased from the dean and chapter of St. Patrick's Cathedral, over which a fair monument is erected, headed with this motto, "God's providence is our inheritance."

Of the great earl, Sir Richard Cox writes thus:—"The noble Earl of Cork, Lord High Treasurer, was one of the most extraordinary persons, either that or any other age hath produced, with respect to the great and just acquisition of estate that he made, and the public works that he began and finished, for the advancement of the English interest and the protestant religion in Ireland, as churches, almshouses, free-schools, bridges, castles, and towns, viz., Lismore, Tallaghe, Cloghnikilty, Innyskeene, Castleton, and Bandon, which last place cost him £14,000; inasmuch, that when CROMWELL saw these prodigious improvements, which he little expected to find in Ireland, he declared that if there had been an Earl of Cork in every province, it would have been impossible for the Irish to have raised a rebellion. And whilst he was carrying on these solid works, he lived in his family at a rate of plenty, that exceeded those who consumed great estates in the lavish ways of ill-ordered excess. His motto, 'God's providence is my inheritance,' shews from whence he derived all his blessings, the greatest of which was the numerous and noble posterity he had to leave his estate unto." He was s. by his eldest son,

* His younger son, THE HON. HENRY BOYLE, was father of the 1st EARL OF SHANNON, and great-grandfather of the present earl.

RICHARD, 2nd earl. This nobleman, having m. in 1635, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Henry Clifford, 5th Earl of Cumberland, was made a peer of England, 4 Nov. 1644, as Baron Clifford, of Lanesborough, co. York; and 20 March, 1664, created EARL OF BURLINGTON; in which honours he was s. at his decease, in 1697, by (the eldest surviving son of Charles, Lord Clifford, by Jane, youngest dau. of William, Duke of Somerset, and great granddau. of Edward, Duke of Somerset, uncle of EDWARD VI.) his grandson,

His lordship claimed, in 1737, the Barony of Clifford, as great-grandson of Lady Elizabeth Clifford, dau. and heir of Henry, Lord Clifford; and the House of Peers acknowledged and confirmed his lordship's right thereto. This nobleman was eminent as a munificent encourager of literature and the fine arts, and as the friend of Pope he will be ever remembered. He d. in 1753, and leaving an only surviving dau., CHARLOTTE,* who had m. I. WILLIAM COWPER, Esq., of Ratling Court, co. Kent, who was created a Baronet, 4 March, 1642. Sir William m. Martha, dau. of James Masters, Esq., of East Langdon, in Kent; and dying in 1664, was s. by his grandson,

II. SIR WILLIAM, M.P. for Hertford; who m. Sarah, dau. of Sir Samuel Helled, of London, knt., and had two sons, viz.,

I. WILLIAM, his successor.

II. Spencer, a barrister of note, who was appointed Attorney-General to the Prince of Wales in 1714, Chief-Justice of Chester in 1717, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in 1727, and in the Oct. of the same year one of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas.* By his first wife, Pennington, dau. of John Goodere, Esq., he left at his decease, 10 Dec. 1728 (his dan. Judith, known as a poetess, was wife of Col. Martin Madan, M.P.), three sons,

* This highly respected judge was, perhaps, the only instance of an English advocate being tried for his life, and afterwards sitting himself on the judicial bench. Mr. Spencer Cowper, when a young man and a barrister of the Home Circuit, was arraigned at the Hertford assizes, 16 July, 1699, on the capital charge of murdering Miss Sarah Stout, whose death was clearly the result of suicide. Mr. Cowper was honourably acquitted. The trial made an immense sensation at the time.

Norfolk,* by his wife Catherine, dau. of Brum Clench, Esq., of London, and d. 10 July, 1756, aged 56, leaving by her, (who d. 13 Nov. 1737), two sons,

He held the office of Clerk of the Journals of the House of Lords, but his mental infirmity incapacitated him eventually for official duty. This gifted and gentle individual, who translated Homer so ably, and who wrote The Task, John Gilpin, and other admirable poems, both serious and lively, which will endure while the English language lasts, was the victim of a hopeless state of insane melancholy, relieved by occasional lucid intervals. On the demise of QUEEN ANNE, Lord Cowper was constituted one of the lords justices until the arrival of GEORGE I. from Hanover. In 1716, his lordship was appointed lord high steward of Great Britain, for the trial of the rebel lords; and 18 March, 1717-18, he was advanced to the dignities of Viscount Fordwich and EARL COWPER, but he soon afterwards resigned the seals. His lordship is the acknowledged chief of the ancient house of Lindsay, and had the Earldom of CRAWFORD confirmed to him by the House of Lords in 1848.

Lineage.

Sir William Dugdale mentions several considerable families of Lindsay in England in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, observing that the surname was first assumed by the proprietors of the lands and manor of Lindsai, co. Essex. It is the opinion of Scotch antiquaries, that one of these Lindsays, coming with King MALCOLM CANMORE into Scotland, and settling there, obtained the lands of Wuchodale, and other possessions, from the crown, and founded the family of Lindsay beyond the Tweed. It is certain that the Lindsays began to be of note in Scotland temp. ALEXANDER I. (the son of MALCOLM), who succeeded to the throne in 1107. From this era our limits compel us to pass to the close of the 14th century, when

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, 7th feudal lord of Crawford and Glenesk, was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 21 April, 1398, as EARL OF CRAWFORD. "This Sir David Lindsay acted the principal part in the celebrated tournament at London Bridge, in May, 1390. John, Lord Welles, ambassador from RICHARD II. to Scotland, at a solemn banquet where the Scots and English were discoursing of deeds of arms, said, 'Let words have no place: if you know not the chivalry and valiant deeds of Englishmen, appoint me a day and place, where you list, and you shall have experience.' Whereupon, Sir David Lindsay assenting, Lord Welles selected London Bridge as the place for a trial of skill. Lindsay repaired to London with a gallant train of thirty persons; and on the day appointed, appeared in the lists against Lord Welles. At the sound of trumpet they encountered each other, upon their barbed horses, with square grounden spears. In this adventure, Lindsay sat so strong that, notwithstanding Lord Welles' spear was broken upon his helmet and visage, he stirred not, inasmuch that the spectators cried out that, contrary to the laws of arms, he was bound to his saddle. Whereupon he dismounted, got on his horse again without assistance, and, in the third course, threw Lord Welles out of his saddle to the ground. Then dismounting, he supported his adversary, and, with great humanity, visited him every day, till he recovered the effects of the fall." His lordship m. Catharine Stuart, 5th dau. of ROBERT II., and was s. in 1412, by his eldest son,

ALEXANDER, 2nd Earl of Crawford, who m. Mariota, dau. and heiress of David Dunbar, of Cockburn, and granddaughter of George, Earl of March, and had six sons, of whom, ALEXANDER, the 2nd but eldest surviving, succeeded to the EARLDOM OF CRAWFORD, and the next,

WALTER LINDSAY, styled of Kinblethmont, had charters of the baronies of Arde and Bewfort in 1459, and of the barony of Panbride in 1463. He m. 1st, Sophia, dau. of Livingston, of Saltcoates, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of William, Lord Livingston, and had an only son, his successor,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, of Edzell and Bewfort, who was s. in 1527, by his grandson,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, of Edzell and Glenesk (eldest son of Walter Lindsay, who fell at Flodden, 9 Sept. 1513). To this gentleman,* David, 7th Earl of Crawford, made an assignment of his title and estates, with the concurrence of the crown; and, upon the decease of that nobleman in 1542, Sir David became son earl of Crawford. He retained the dignity, however, for life only; and it returned at his death to the grandson of his predecessor. His lordship m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Andrew, 3rd Lord Gray, and relict of Alexander Blair, of Balthyock, and of Thomas, 4th Lord Lovat; but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir John Campbell, of Calder, and had,

I. DAVID (Sir), his successor, whose great-great-grandson, and lineal descendant,

JOHN LINDSAY, of Edzell, upon the extinction of the male line of David, 9th Earl of Crawford, by the death of George, Lord Spynie,† in 1672, becoming chief of the Lindsays, and entitled, by the terms upon which his ancestor, David, 8th Earl of Crawford, restored that

* Alexander, Master of Crawford, and his brother, John Lindsay, having seized, fettered, and imprisoned their father, DAVID, 7th Earl of Crawford, were disinherited in consequence by his lordship, who assigned by deed, dated 20 Dec. 1541, with the approbation of the crown, his honours and estates to his cousin, and next male heir after these sons, Sir David Lindsay, of Edzell, (mentioned above); and the said David inherited at the earl's decease, in 1542 (the Master of Crawford and his brother having previously died, the latter issueless); but being of a generous disposition, he re-conveyed the titles and estates to David Lindsay, son of the said Master of Crawford, but with the express provision, that failing heirs male of this David's body, the estates and honours of Crawford should descend to the heirs male of Edzell. He likewise reserved to himself the title for life, with sufficient property to maintain his rank. Upon the demise, then, of Ludovic, 14th Earl of Crawford, the honours, &c., should certainly have descended to the ancestor of Lord Balcarres.

† SIR ALEXANDER LINDSAY, 4th son of David, 9th Earl of Crawford, was created by JAMES VI. a peer of parliament, by the title of LORD SPYNE. His lordship was s. by his son, ALEXANDER, 2nd Lord Spynie, who d. in 1646, and was s. by his only surviving son,

GEORGE, 3rd Lord Spynie. At the death of Ludovic, 14th Earl of Crawford, the representation of the family of Lindsay devolved upon this nobleman, and upon his decease, in 1672, John Lindsay, of Edzell, ancestor of the Lords Balcarres, became (as in the text) head of the ancient house of Lindsay. On the title of Spynie, the lords of session, in their return to the House of Peers, 1740, observed, that the patent of creation has not been found in the records, nor has any person sat in parliament under that title since 1689, neither has any person claimed a vote in virtue thereof at any election since the Union.

dignity to David, grandson of the 7th Earl, to the EARLDOM OF CRAWFORD, preferred his claim to parliament, but unsuccessfully. (The Earldom of Crawford and the estates of that branch of the Lindsays were conferred by act of parliament, in 1614, after the forfeiture of Ludovic, 14th earl, upon John, 10th Lord Lindsay, of Byers, afterwards Earl of Crawford and Lindsay, lord high treasurer of Scotland.) John Lindsay of Edzell's male line ceased with his grandson, David Lindsay, in 1744, and the representation of the Lindsays, then devolved upon the descendant of John Lindsay, David, 5th Lord Crawford's 2nd son, of whom we are about more particularly to treat.

- II. JOHN, of whom presently. III. Robert, of Bellhall.
IV. Walter (Sir), of Kempshill. V. James, in holy orders.
I. Elizabeth, m. to Patrick, Lord Drummond.
II. Margaret, m. to John Innermeath.

The second son,

JOHN LINDSAY, a very eminent Scottish lawyer, was made one of the senators of the College of Justice in 1554, was sworn of the privy council in 1565, and, in the following year, appointed a commissioner of the Treasury, and secretary of state, when he resigned the post of lord of session in favour of his brother, sir David Lindsay. This eminent person was also one of the eight Magnates Scotie, constituted governors of the kingdom, who were designated Octavianes. He m. Margaret, dau. of Alexander Guthrie, burgess of Edinburgh, relict of David Bothwick, of Lochhill, King's advocate, and had two sons and three daus. He obtained, by charter, in 1591, the estate of Balcarres, and was s. at his decease in 1598, by his elder son,

JOHN LINDSAY, of Balcarres, who d. in minority, Jan. 1600-1, and was s. by his brother,

His lordship was made heritable governor of the castle of Edinburgh, secretary of state, and commissioner to the General Assembly. CHARLES, 2nd earl. This nobleman dying unm. in 1662, the honours devolved upon his brother,

COLIN, 3rd earl. His lordship, a staunch adherent of the house of Stuart, was obliged, at the Revolution, to retire to the Continent, where he remained in exile for ten years. He obtained, at length, permission to return, but afterwards (in 1715) joining the standard of the CHEVALIER, he owed his safety to his friend the Duke of Marlborough, and the act of indemnity. From an almost uninterrupted line of knights, distinguished alike in council and in arms, descended

Kenneth, created Lord Mackenzie, who carried on the line of the family of Kintail, and whose son was the first of the Earls of Seaforth, an earldom antient in 1715, again created in 1771, and extinct in 1781. The Barony of Seaforth was given by creation, in 1796, to the heir male of the family, Francis-Humberston Mackenzie, Esq., and became extinct at his death without male issue, in 1815. His eldest daughter's son is the present KEITH-WILLIAM STEWART-MACKENZIE, Esq. (see post GALLOWAY, EARL).

The second son,

SIR RODERICK MACKENZIE, was a man of great prudence, courage, and resolution, and was instrumental in civilizing the northern parts of Scotland, which was of vast service to the nation, and so agreeable to King JAMES VI, that he conferred the honour of knighthood upon him, and gave him a grant of several lands in the north country, then in the crown by forfeiture. King CHARLES sensible of Sir George Mackenzie's loyalty and faithful services, made him, soon after the Restoration, one of the Senators of the College of Justice, and a privy councillor. In 1678 MacKenzie was constituted Justice General, and in 1681 he was made lord register. Being in no less favour with JAMES II, that monarch, immediately upon his accession to the throne, created him a peer, as Viscount Tarbat, Lord MacLeod, and Lord Castle-Haven, by letters patent, dated 15 April, 1685, and renewed his commission for being lord register, which office he lost at the Revolution; but King WILLIAM being no stranger to his great abilities, was pleased to restore him to the lord register's office in 1692. About this time his lordship published, from authentic documents and records, his learned vindication of King ROBERT III from the imputation of bastardy, and rectified an error which many historians had most unaccountably fallen into. In the beginning of Queen Anne's reign he was constituted Secretary of State, in 1702; and on the 1st of January, 1703, her majesty advanced him to the dignity of Earl of Cromarty, Viscount Tarbat, Lord MacLeod, and Lord Castle-Haven, by patent to his heirs-male, and of tailzie. Sir Thomas claims the Earldom of GLENCAIRN, as lineal male descendant of William, 4th earl.

Lineage.

Van Bassen, in his History of the Kings of Scotland, states that this family is descended from one Malcolm, son of Freskin, who, when Prince MALCOLM fled from MACBETH, towards England, after the murder of King DUNOAN, concealed the prince from his pursuers, by forking hay or straw over him; and for this service, King MALCOLM, after his restoration, conferred the thanedom of Cuninghame upon his preserver.

VERNEBALD, the first of this family whose name appears in authentic record, was settled in the west of Scotland about the commencement of the 12th century. His son, ROBERT, designated "Robertus filius Vernebaldi," made a donation of the patronage of the kirk of Kilmaurs, &c., to the abbey of Kelso, about 1153. He m. Richenda, dau. and heiress of Sir Humphry de Barclay, of Cairntruly.

ROBERTUS, filius Roberti filii Vernebaldi, previous to 1189, confirmed the grants made by his father.

HERVEY DE CUNYNGHAME, great grandson of the last Robert, represented the family about 1264, in which year he had a charter from ALEXANDER III. He founded a collegiate church at Kilmaurs, and is renowned in tradition for his gallant conduct at the battle of Largs, against the Danes, 1263. He m. the heiress of Riddell of Glengarnock, and was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM DE CUNYNGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who d. in 1285, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD DE CUNYNGHAME of Kilmaurs, who was s. by his eldest son,

GILBERT DE CUNYNGHAME, of Kilmaurs, who was s. in 1292 by his son,

SIR ROBERT DE CUNYNGHAME, who swore fealty to EDWARD I.; but declaring afterwards for ROBERT BRUCE, had a charter from that monarch of the superiority of the lands of Lambrechtum and Grugere, in Cuninghame, to be holden of the king, as Alan la Suche and William de Fereres held the same. He d. in 1330, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM DE CUNYNGHAME, of Kilmaurs, on whom DAVID II. conferred the Earldom of Carrick, 1361, as husband of Eleanor Bruce, dau. of Alexander Bruce, Earl of Carrick, son of Edward Bruce, brother of ROBERT I.*

* Edward Bruce, brother of ROBERT I. of Scotland, had a charter of the family earldom of Carrick to himself and heirs male, failing whom, to revert to the crown. By Lady Isabel Ross, daughter of the Earl of Ross, he had three sons, Robert, Thomas, Alexander, generally said to have been illegitimate. The fact, however, that all these in succession inherited the earldom, under the charter alluded to above, is convincing proof that they were legitimate according to Scottish law. As a dispensation from the Pope is on record permitting the marriage—Edwarde de Brus, comitis de Carryk, et Isabelle de Ross, &c.—notwithstanding the parties being within the proscribed degree of consanguinity, it is not improbable there had been a marriage between the parents dissolved for a time by the church, as was a common practice in those days, and afterwards rendered valid by the dispensation of the Pope.

Of these three Earls of Carrick, two fell in battle, and the third died a prisoner in England. Only one was married; he espoused Eleanor, sister of the potent Earl of Douglas, and had an only child, named Eleanor (who married Sir William Cuninghame, of Kilmaurs). The heirs male of Edward Bruce having thus failed, the earldom of Carrick ought to have reverted to the crown, in terms of the charter; but exception seems to have been made in favour of his granddaughter, his only existing descendant; and, according to the custom of the time, her husband became Earl of Carrick. The charter in his favour is on record, and singularly incomplete, as if there had been a doubt as to the propriety of the grant—"David D. G. Rex Scottorum, sciatis nos dedisse concessisse et hac presenti carta confirmasse dilecto consanguineo nostro Wilhelmno de Cuninghame militi totum comitatum de Carryk." Without date; the charters immediately preceding and following on the record are dated at Aberdeen, 12th Sept. 1361. No mention being made of heirs, it was clearly intended the earldom should revert to the elder branch of the Bruce family. Indeed, after Lady Eleanor's death, it was re-assumed by ROBERT II., and soon after conferred on his eldest son, JOHN, during Sir William's lifetime.

† It is a question who was mother of Sir William Cuninghame's successor, and other sons. The fact that the earldom did not descend in his family seems to have led to some misapprehension on this point amongst genealogists, who have generally stated that they were not sons of Lady Eleanor Bruce, but the offspring of a previous marriage.

As appears from a charter of the lands of Kinclaven, Sir William was married, 2ndly, to a lady, by name Margaret, but of what family is not known. Though generally stated otherwise, it would seem that by Eleanor Bruce, Sir William had five sons,† Robert, the eldest, died young. The second

SIR WILLIAM CUNYNGHAME, succeeded his father about the end of the century. Of date 1400, he resigned his estates for new enfeoffment, and obtained a charter from ROBERT III. to Sir William and his heirs male, failing whom, to his brothers, Thomas, Alexander, and John, in succession, and their heirs male, failing whom, to other near relatives of the name of Cunyngname, &c. of the lands and baronies, Kilmaurs, Lambrachton, Kilbryde, Skelmorlie, and Polquharne, co. Ayr; lands and barony of Redhall, co. Edinburgh; lands of Nevy, in Forfarshire; the barony of Hassingden, in Roxburghshire; and the lands of Ranfurley, in the barony of Renfrew. Sir William m. the eldest dau and co-heiress of Sir Robert de Dancyelston, and with her obtained a large addition to the family property. The division between the co-heiresses took place in 1404, and in Sir William's share were included the baronies of Glencairne and Fynlayston.

SIR ROBERT CUNYNGHAME, of Kilmaurs, son of the preceding, succeeded. He was one of the jury who tried and condemned Murdoch, Duke of Albany, in the reign of JAMES I. By his wife, Anne, only dau. of Sir John de Montgomery, of Ardrossan, he had his successor,

ALEXANDER CUNYNGHAME, who about 1450 was created Lord Kilmaurs, and for the strenuous support given to his sovereign against the rebel nobles, headed by the prince, he was raised to the dignity of an earl, with the title of GLENCAIRN, 28 May, 1488. A few days after, a battle took place between the hostile parties near Stirling, where the royal army was defeated, and where the king and newly-created earl were both slain. The rebel party having thus come into power, the parliament was convoked, and an act passed, annulling all grants of peerages or lands conferred by JAMES III. during the late struggle. Amongst these was included the title of Glencairn.

ROBERT CUNYNGHAME, 2nd Earl of Glencairn, eldest son of Alexander, by Margaret, dau. of Lord Hales, sat in parliament under the act of forfeiture as Lord Kilmaurs. He m. Christian, dau. of the Lord Lindsay, of Byres. Their son,

CUTHBERT CUNYNGHAME, succeeded about 1492, and sat in parliament as 3rd Lord Kilmaurs, but had sufficient influence at court to obtain a confirmation of the title of Glencairn, which he obtained at the marriage of JAMES IV. with MARGARET, dau. of HENRY VII. of England, 1503. Cuthbert m. Lady Mary Douglas, dau. of Archibald, 5th Earl of Angus, by whom he had a son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Earl of Glencairn (commonly called 4th earl by peerage writers). He was twice m.; 1st to Catherine Borthwick, dau. of Lord Borthwick; and 2ndly, to Elizabeth Campbell, of West London. He had five sons, 1st, Alexander, who succeeded as Earl of Glencairn, and whose male descendants failed in 1796; and 2nd,

ANDREW CUNYNGHAME, who was first of the house of Corshill. In the year 1532, his father made the original grant by charter, in his favour, of the lands of Dowera, Potterton, Robertland, Cuttiswray, and Clerkland, which grant, including the two Corshills, was afterwards confirmed to him and his wife, Margaret Cuninghame (of the family of Polmaise), by royal charters, dated 4 May, 1537, and 4 Jan. 1538. Like his elder brother, Alexander, 5th Earl of Glencairn, Andrew was actively engaged in support of the Reformation, and being convicted of heresy before the lords spiritual in 1538, had his estate forfeited. However, he was afterwards pardoned, and his property restored; in confirmation of which he obtained another grant by charter

None, however, have attempted to give the name of the lady, nor is there a shadow of evidence to support their statements; on the contrary, the charters alluded to above prove that the second marriage took place after Lady Eleanor's death. The names of the sons alone would seem sufficient to indicate their maternal descent. The eldest was called Robert; the third and fourth, Thomas and Alexander; which were the names of Edward Bruce's sons. The second son was William, not improbably named after the Earl of Douglas, Eleanor Bruce's uncle, and the youngest John, possibly after John Stewart, (afterwards king, as ROBERT III.) also a near relative. The eldest son, Robert, died young; the second, William, was a knight so early as 1384, and distinguished from his father by the word "filius," in various documents, between that date and 1397, which prove the father was then alive. His death must have taken place after that, and previous to 1400.

from the king, of the same lands, in favour of himself, his spouse, and their heirs male. Upon the death of Andrew, in 1545, his eldest son,

CUTHBERT CUNYNGHAME, succeeded, as appears by an instrument of sasine in his favour, of that date. After his marriage with Mauid Cuninghame (dau. of Cuninghame of Aitket), Cuthbert resigned his estate into the hands of the sovereign, for new enfeoffment, and thereupon obtained a charter from HENRY and MARY, to himself, his spouse, and their heirs. He died 1575, and left two sons, Patrick and ALEXANDER, who were for some time under the guardianship of their grand-uncle, Hugh Cuninghame, of Watters-ton; and two daus., Jean and Margaret. About this time, the long-continued feud between the Cuninghames and Montgomeries appears to have been at its height, in which feud the eldest son, Patrick, was slain.

ALEXANDER CUNYNGHAME, successor of his brother, m. Marion Porterfield, dau. of Porterfield of Duchal, by whom he had two sons, ALEXANDER; and David, of Dalbeith, m. Margaret Cuninghame, and had issue; and three daus., Jean, m. to Cuninghame of Aitket; Eleanor, m. to John Craufurd, of Craufurdland; and Janet, m. to Blair of Adamtoun. The eldest son,

ALEXANDER CUNYNGHAME, s. his father in May, 1546. By his wife, Mary Houston (of the family of Houston of that ilk), he had two sons, ALEXANDER and Cuthbert; and two daus., Elizabeth, m. to James Dunlop, of Dunlop; and Margaret, m. to James Stewart, of Torraunce. The eldest son, Alexander, predeceased his father, leaving by his wife, Anne Craufurd (of the Kilbirny family), an only son,

I. ALEXANDER CUNYNGHAME, on whom, and his affianced wife, his grandfather settled his estate by disposition and charter, reserving to himself the life-rent. Alexander Cuninghame, senior, d. about the year 1667, and his grandson obtained a charter from the crown in favour of himself and spouse and their heirs, in confirmation of the disposition made by his grandfather; and, 26 Feb. 1672, the dignity of a Baronet by diploma was conferred on him and the heirs male of his body. By his wife, Mary Stewart, dau. of John Stewart, younger, of Blackhall, he left a son, ALEXANDER; and two daus., Mary, m. to Craufurd of Dalegle; and Elizabeth. His son,

II. SIR ALEXANDER, s. in March, 1685, and m. in 1686, Margaret Boyle, sister of David, 1st Earl of Glasgow, by whom he had a dau., Jean; and an only son,

III. SIR DAVID, his successor, in 1630. He m. Penelope Montgomery, niece and heiress of Sir Walter Montgomery, Bart. of Kirktonholm (descended from the Montgomerys of Skelmorlie), by whom he had three sons, I. Alexander; II. David, who d. in Jamaica, and left issue; III. Walter; and one dau., Margaret, m. to — Craig, Esq. The eldest son, Capt. Alexander Cuninghame, was in the army, and served in the wars in Flanders. Upon succeeding to the estate of Kirktonholm, he adopted the names and arms of MONTGOMERY, in consequence of a clause to that effect in the deed of entail. He m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. and thereafter heiress of David Montgomery, of Lainslaw, descendant of Sir Neil Montgomerie, of Lainslaw, and representative of the family of Lyle, Lord Lyle. He predeceased his father, Sir David, by a few months, in 1770. His family, by his wife, were six sons and two daus., I. WALTER; II. DAVID; III. Eglinton, d. young; IV. Alexander, who served with the army in the American war, and d. unm.; V. JAMES; VI. Henry-Drumlanrig, R.N., lieutenant on board the "Alfred," in Rodney's great engagement, 12 April, 1782, d. unm.; I. ANNE, and II. Elizabeth, both d. young.

Lineage.

The surname of DICK is one of very great antiquity in North Britain, and it is supposed to have had the same origin as VAN DYKE (or Lord of the Dykes) in the Low Countries.

WILLIAM DE DYCK was alderman, or first magistrate, of Edinburgh, 1296, before the institution of the office of lord-provost, and from him descended

JAMES DICK, who was designated in a charter under the great seal, dated Jan. 1539. "Merchant-Burgess of Arbrogath;" this James left a son, ALEXANDER DICK, who resided chiefly upon his landed property in the Orkneys; and after the Reformation, being a person of knowledge and learning, was appointed provost of the cathedral church of Orkney. He d. in 1580, and was s. by his only son,

JOHN DICK, a merchant of great eminence, who was s. by an only son,

SIR WILLIAM DICK. This gentleman, adopting from his youth the profession of commerce, became one of the most eminent bankers in Scotland, and acquired considerable wealth, even before the decease of his father, which appears by his advancing to the king £6000 sterling, to defray the household expenses when his majesty held a parliament in Scotland, in 1618. In 1628, he farmed the customs on wine, at £622 sterling, and the crown rents in Orkney, at £3000 sterling per annum, and afterwards the excise.

Mr. Dick, was elected lord-provost of Edinburgh in 1638 and 1639; and after receiving the honour of knighthood in 1646, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia. Sir William was fined by the parliamentarians, as a malignant, in no less a sum than £64,934; and afterwards coming to London to demand payment of moneys he had previously advanced upon government security, he was thrown into prison by the usurper CROMWELL, and d. at Westminster, 19 Dec. 1655, when the baronetcy passed to his grandson, but was not, we believe, assumed by that gentleman. The 4th son of Sir William,

ALEXANDER DICK, had already received from his father, in patrimony, the lands of Heug, near North Berwick, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

I. JAMES DICK, a merchant of great eminence and wealth in Edinburgh, who, having purchased the lands of Priestfield, or Prestonfield, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 2 March, 1677, under the title of Sir James Dick, of Prestonfield. Sir James came from London, in 1682, with the Duke of York, and was with his royal highness in the "Gloucester" man-of-war, when that vessel struck upon a sand-bank. He was one of the few who took to the long-boat. (the prince and Mr. Churchill, afterwards the Great Duke of Marlborough, effecting their escape in another boat,) and so saved his life, whilst several persons of the first rank who remained in the ship perished. In the same year that he had this miraculous escape, Sir James was elected lord-provost of Edinburgh, and again in 1683. He m. Anne, dau. of William Paterson Esq. of Drumure, co. Fife, by whom he had several children, but none to attain maturity, save one, Janet, who m. Sir William Cunningham, Bart. of Caprington. Sir James being thus deprived of male issue, made an entail of his estates of Prestonfield and Corstorphine, in 1699, "to himself and the heirs male of his body; which failing, to the second and younger sons successively, of his dau. Janet, by the said Sir William Cunningham," &c. He also got a Nova Scotia Baronetcy, from Queen ANNE, 22 March, 1707, settling the dignity to go according to the entail of his estate. Sir James d. in 1723, and was s. in his estates by his aforesaid dau. to whom s. and to the baronetcy, her son,

II. SIR ALEXANDER DICK, (paternally Cunningham,) of Prestonfield. This gentleman, previously to the decease of his brother, had studied medicine, and practised with great repute in the county of Pembroke, as Doctor Alexander Cunningham. In the year 1756, he was unanimously chosen president of the royal college of Edinburgh; and for seven years afterwards successively had the same high honour conferred upon him: at his retirement, "the fellows, as a testimony of the sense which they had entertained of his eminent services, hung up a portrait of the ex-president in their hall, a mark of distinction never previously bestowed on any member whatsoever." Sir Alexander m. 1st, in 1736, his cousin, Janet, dau. of Alexander Dick, Esq. by whom he had three daus.: and 2ndly, in 1762, Mary, eldest dau. of David Butler, Esq. of co. Pembroke, by whom he had three sons and three daus. viz.,

Family of Cunningham of Caprington.

This family is of very great antiquity in North Britain. According to Camden, the Cunnynghames came originally into Scotland from England, with King MALCOLM CANMORE; and he is probably correct, for we find them settled in the shire of Ayr very soon after the time of that monarch. Frederick Van Bussan, a learned Norwegian, who wrote an account of several Scottish families, says, that one Malcolm, son of Fruskin, assisted MALCOLM, prince of Scotland (afterwards King MALCOLM CANMORE), to make his escape from the tyranny of MACBETH, who had murdered his father DUNCAN; and being hotly pursued, he took shelter in a barn, where Malcolm concealed the prince, by forking straw over him. The prince eventually made his escape into England, still attended by his faithful Malcolm. Prince MALCOLM was no sooner in possession of his kingdom, after his victory over MACBETH, than he rewarded his preserver by the thanedom of Cunnynghame, from which his posterity assumed their surnames, and took a sheaf-fork for their arms, with "Over fork over for their motto.

Lineage.

One of the earliest Scottish charters, dated 1179—a gift of lands in Kyle, co. Ayr, to the Abbey of Melros—bears the seal of Peter de Currie. The names of his descendants appear conspicuously in various events of early Scottish history.

About 1500, the elder branch of Currie of that ilk (Currie or Corrie-Annandale) merged in the Johnstones, by the marriage of the heiress of Currie, with James Johnstone, Esq.; but a branch was settled to the east of their primitive possessions in Ayr and Dumfriesshire, near Dunse, Berwickshire, where the earliest local records now remaining mention WILLIAM CURRIE, possessed of lands called "Currie Parks," living 1609. This William had two sons, Cuthbert, who m. Elizabeth Little, and d. s. p. 1663; and

DACRE.

DACRE, BARON (Thomas-Crosbie-William Trevor), lord-lieut. of Essex; b. in 1805; m. 12 Jan. 1837, Susan-Sophia, eldest dau. of Charles-Compton, 1st Lord Chesham. He s. his father, 2 June, 1853, as 22nd Baron Dacre, and represents a branch of the eminent house of VAUX (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage). He is also co-heir to the BARONY OF FITZGUGH. His lordship (then the Hon. T.-C. Brand) was, by royal licence dated 12 April, 1851, authorised to take the surname of TREVOR only, and to bear the arms of Trevor.

Lineage.

The Barony of Dacre was originally in the family of VAUX, whereof three brothers settled in England, at the Conquest, viz., Hubert, Ranulph, and Robert. Of these,

HUBERT had the barony of Gillesland granted to him by his kinsman, Ranulph de Meschines, on whom WILLIAM had conferred the whole co. of Cumberland. This Hubert was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE VALLIBUS, who founded the priory of Pentney, in Normandy, and the abbey of Lanercost, in Cumberland, and was sheriff of Cumberland and governor of Carlisle, temp. HENRY II. This Robert was not only a person of great valour, but also well learned in the laws of the land, and went justice-iti-crant into Cumberland in the 24th year of the same monarch. Dying wthout issue, the feudal barony devolved upon his brother,

RANULPH DE VALLIBUS, or VAUX, whose great-granddau. and heir,

MAUD, m. Thomas de Moulton, temp. HENRY III., and conveyed the barony of Gillesland to the family of her husband. The great-grandson of this marriage,

THOMAS DE MOULTON, was summoned to parliament in the reigns of EDWARD I. and EDWARD II. He left at his decease an only dau. and heir,

MARGARET DE MOULTON, who married

RANULPH DE DACRE, one of the most distinguished persons in those parts, as well on account of his valour as a soldier, as his illustrious birth, being descended from William de Dacre, sheriff of Cumberland and governor of Carlisle, in the reign of HENRY III. He was summoned to parliament, in right of his wife, from 15 May (14 Edw. II.), 1321, to 15 Nov. (12 Edw. III.), 1338, in which latter year he died, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Baron Dacre, who was s. by his brother,

RANULPH, 3rd Baron Dacre, who was likewise s. by a brother.

HUGH, 4th Baron Dacre. This nobleman m. Ela, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, Lord of Caerlaverock; and dying in the 7th of RICHARD II., was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, 5th baron; who m. Joan, dau. of James, 1st Earl Douglas, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS, 6th baron, summoned to parliament from 1 Dec. (14 HENRY IV.) 1412, to 26 May (33 HENRY VI.) 1455, as Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland. This nobleman, who was chief forester of Ingleswood, in Cumberland, m. Philippa, dau. of Ralph Nevil, Earl of Westmoreland, and had issue, THOMAS, Ranulph, Humphrey, and Joan. Thomas, the eldest son, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Richard Bowes, and dying before his father, left an only dau. and heir, JOANE; which

JOANE DACRE s. her grandfather in 1547; and marrying SIR RICHARD FIENES, carried the barony into that family. Sir Richard was summoned to parliament from 9 Oct. (38 HENRY VI.) 1459, to 15 Nov. (22 EDWARD IV.) 1482. He was constable of the Tower of London, lord-chamberlain to the queen-consort of EDWARD IV., and a privy-councillor. His lordship and his lady had great contests and dispute with Sir Humphrey Daere, her ladyship's uncle, and the male heir of the family, concerning the lordships, manors, &c. of the late lord, which litigation was finally adjusted by the arbitration of EDWARD IV. That monarch, after hearing the cause, confirmed to Sir Richard and the Lady Joane, the same place and precedence that her grandfather had and enjoyed; and also decreed to them certain lordships in Lancashire and Lincolnshire; but Gillesland, the ancient and capital seat of the Vanoss, and of all the barons their descendants, was adjudged, together with the best of the estates in Cumberland, to Sir Humphrey Daere. It was provided, however, in case of failure of heirs male of Sir Humphrey, that the whole estate should go to Lady Joane and her heirs. At the same time, Sir Humphrey Daere was created LORD DACRE, of Gillesland, with place next beneath Sir Richard Fienes (who was simply styled LORD DACRE) and his lady. Sir Richard's descendants were distinguished as Lords Daere of the South, and those of Sir Humphrey, Lords Daere of the North. (For details, see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Sir Richard Fienes, Lord Daere, d. in 1484, and was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, 8th Baron Daere (son of Sir Thomas Fienes and his wife, Alice, eldest dau. and co-heir of Henry, Lord Fitz Hugh). This nobleman was made a knight of the Bath at the creation of Henry, 2nd son of HENRY VII., Duke of York. His lordship m. Anne, dau. of Sir Humphrey Bourchier, son of John Bourchier, Lord Esmers; and dying in 1534, was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, 9th baron (son of Sir Thomas Fienes, by Jane, dau. of Edward Sutton, Lord Dudley). This nobleman was high in favour at the court of HENRY VIII.; but going, with other young men, one night, from Hurstmonceux, to steal a deer out of his neighbour Sir Nicholas Pellham's park (a frolic not unusual in those days), a fray ensued between some of his party and the park-keepers, in which one of the latter received an unlucky blow, that caused his death in a few days afterwards; and although Lord Daere was not himself present on the spot, but in a distant part of the park, he was nevertheless tried, convicted, and executed for the murder, in 1541, when his honours became forfeited. In 1562, however, those honours were restored to his son and heir (by Mary, dau. of George Nevill, Lord Abergavenny).

GROOBY FIENES, as 10th baron; who was summoned to parliament in 1573. This nobleman d. in 1594, without issue, when his sister,

MARGARET, the wife of Sampson Lennard, Esq., claimed the barony, and was allowed it in 1604. Her ladyship d. in 1611, and was s. by her eldest son,

HENRY LENNARD, as 12th Lord Daere; who m. Chrysogona, dau. of Sir Richard Baker, of Sissenhurst, in Kent; and dying in 1616, was s. by his only son,

RICHARD LENNARD, 13th Lord Daere. This nobleman rebuilt his seat at Chevening, after a plan of Inigo Jones. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Arthur Throckmorton, of Pauley's Ferry, co. Northampton, by whom he had (with other issue),

1. FRANCIS, his successor.

He m. 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of Dudley, Lord North, and by her had a son,

ii. RICHARD, who had the manor of Horsford, in Norfolk, settled upon him by his father; and he subsequently assumed the name of BARRETT, in consequence of the bequest of Sir Edward Barrett, Lord Newburgh, to him, of the manor of Belhouse, and other lands in Essex. He m. Anne, dau. and heiress of Sir Robert Loftus, Knt., and granddau. of Adam, Viscount Loftus, of Ely, lord chancellor of Ireland, and was s. at his decease, in 1696, by his son,

DACRE-BARRETT-LENNARD, who m. Lady Jane Chichester, dau. of Arthur, 2nd Earl of Donegal, and had a son, RICHARD, of whom hereafter, as husband of his cousin, Lady Anne Lennard, Baroness Daere.

Richard, 13th Lord Daere, d. 18 Aug. 1630, and was s. by his eldest son,

FRANCIS, 14th baron. This nobleman, during the civil wars, took the side of the parliament, but opposed the proceedings against the king personally. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and eventually co-heir of Paul, 1st Viscount Baining, by whom he had three sons and three daus. Lord Daere, on the decease of Ramulph Daere, last heir male of the Lords Daere of the North, without issue, in the reign of CHARLES I., laid claim to Gillesland, and the rest of the ancient estates in Cumberland, and though he at last consented to compromise with the Howard family, then in possession, yet he recovered Daere and divers other manors in Cumberland and Westmoreland. He d. in 1662 (his widow, Elizabeth, was subsequently created Countess of Sheppy for life, and m. David Walter, lieutenant-general of the ordnance, and groom of the bedchamber, temp. CHARLES II.), and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 15th Lord Daere, who was created, 5 Oct. 1671, EARL OF SUSSEX. This nobleman was obliged, through extravagance, to dispose of his seat at Hurstmonceux, and his lands in Sussex. His lordship m. Lady Anne Palmer, dau. of Barbara, Duchess of Cleveland; but d. in 1715, without male issue, when the earldom ceased, while the Barony of Daere fell into abeyance between the earl's two daus. and co-heirs, Barbara and Anne; the elder m. Lieutenant-General Charles Skelton, but dying without issue, in 1741, the younger,

ANNE, became Baroness Daere. Her ladyship m. thrice, 1st, Richard Barrett-Lennard, Esq. (revert to Richard, 13th baron), by whom she had an only son, THOMAS; 2ndly, Henry, 8th Lord Teynham, by whom she had, with other children,

Charles, who m. Gertrude, sister and co-heir of John Trevor, Esq. of Glynd, in Sussex, and left at his decease, in 1754,

Her ladyship m. 3rdly, the Hon. Robert Moore, son of Henry, 3rd Earl of Drogheda, by whom she had one son, HENRY. Lady Daere, soon after the death of her first husband, in conjunction with her sister, sold Chevening, the ancient seat of the Lennards, to Earl Stanhope, and Daere Castle, with the lands in Cumberland, to Sir Christopher Musgrave. She d. in 1755, and was s. by her eldest son,

THOMAS BARRETT-LENNARD, as 17th Baron Daere. This nobleman m. Anne-Maria, dau. of Sir John Pratt, lord-chief-justice of the King's Bench; but d. without issue, 12 Jan. 1786, when the title devolved upon his nephew (refer to Anne, Baroness Daere),

CHARLES-TREVOR ROPER,* as 18th Lord Daere; b. 14 June, 1745; m. 2 March, 1773, Mary, only dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Fludger, Knt., but d. s. p. 4 July, 1794, and was s. by his sister,

* The remains of this nobleman were interred at Lee, in Kent, and his widow visited his tomb daily, without interruption, until her decease, in 1808. She usually rode from her mansion in the neighbourhood to the churchyard on a favourite pony, and wore a large, flapping, drab beaver hat, with a cloth habit nearly trailing the ground. At home, her ladyship evinced an eccentric affection for her deceased lord; his chair was placed, as in his lifetime, at the dinner table, and its vacancy seemed to feed his widow's melancholy.

DALHOUSIE.

DALHOUSIE, EARL OF (Sir Fox Maule-Ramsay, K.T., G.C.B., P.C.) in Mid-Lothian, and Lord Ramsay of Kerrington, and Baron Ramsay of Dalhousie, in the peerage of Scotland; and Baron Panmure of Brechin and Navar, in the co. of Forfar, in the peerage of the United Kingdom, Keeper of the Privy Seal of Scotland, lord-lieut. of Forfarshire, a commissioner of the Royal Military Asylum, and a Governor of the Charter House; b. 22 April, 1801; s. his father, in the barony of Panmure, 13 April, 1852, and his cousin in the Scottish honors 19 Dec. 1860; m. 4 April, 1831, Montagu, eldest dau. of George, 2nd Lord Abercromby, which lady d. s. p. 11 Nov. 1853. The Earl of Dalhousie, after filling the offices of Under-Secretary of State, from 1835 to 1841, and Vice President of the Board of Trade, in 1841, was Secretary of State for the War Department from 1846 to 1852, and again Secretary at War from 1855 to 1858. He reassumed, in 1861, the surname of RAMSAY after that of MAULE.

Lineage.

This noble family, which is said to be of German descent, has been of note in North Britain since the time of DAVID I. At that period (A.D. 1140) we find

SIMON DE RAMSAY, of Dalhousie, in Lothian, a subscribing witness to a grant of the church of Livingston, in West Lothian. From this Simon descended

SIR ALEXANDER RAMSAY, Knt. of Dalhousie, the celebrated warden of the Middle Marches, and, in 1332, constable of the castle of Roxburgh, which he had taken by escalade. This gallant soldier acquired so high a reputation in his conflicts with the English, that to be of his band was considered as a branch of military education requisite for all young gentlemen who ambitioned to excel in arms. He perished, A.D. 1342, by famine, in the castle of Hermitage. It is reported, that above the place of Ramsay's confinement, there lay a heap of corn; and that, with some grain which dropped through the crevices in the floor, he sustained a miserable existence for seventeen days. From Sir Alexander we pass to his lineal descendant,

JAMES RAMSAY, who left at his decease, about the year 1580, two sons, viz.,

George.

John (Sir), who, for his loyalty and valour in rescuing JAMES VI. from the Earl of Gowrie and his brother Alexander Ruthven, at Perth, 5 Aug. 1600, was created Lord Ramsay, of Barns, and Viscount Haddington. PATRICK MAULE, of Panmure, who accompanied King JAMES VI. into England, in 1603, and was appointed one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber to that monarch; an office which he afterwards held under CHARLES I., who constituted him keeper of the palace and park of Eltham, and sheriff of the co. Forfar. He subsequently adhered with great fidelity to the king in his troubles, and was engaged in all the battles fought by his majesty; for which services he was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 3 Aug. 1646, as Baron Maule, of Brechin and Navar, and EARL OF PANMURE. I. Theodosia-Selina.

Sir Robert was called to the bar in 1829, and is lieutenant-col. of militia in the island of Grenada.

Lineage.

The family of Dallas is of great antiquity in the counties of Elgin and Nairn, and derives its name from the locality which was the original settlement of the clan. Dallas is a parish of Elginshire, in the presbytery of Forres, and synod of Moray. The name is composed of two Gaelic words—dale, a valley or plain, and uis, contracted from uisge, water; (vide Statistical Account of Elginshire, p. 195. Blackwood and Sons, 1842). The barony of Dallas, containing the remains of the castle of Dallas or Torcastle, has long been the property of the Cummings of Altyre. The branch of the family of Dallas, from which the present Baronet is descended, removed to Cantray, in the parish of Cawder, presbytery of Mairn, and synod of Moray, in the 2nd year of King ROBERT III. (1400), and remained in possession of that barony for nearly 400 years, until the estate was alienated by sale to the family of Davidson.

JAMES DALLAS, Laird of Cantray, was killed at Culloden; and soon after that event, some of his clan emigrated to the West Indies and the United States of America, where they formed establishments, to which, in memory of their Highland home and ancestry, they gave the same territorial designation. Dallas Castle is an estate of considerable importance in the island of Jamaica, and the county of Dallas is an extensive district in the state of Alabama. The state of Pennsylvania has sent, as its representative, to the senate of the United States, the Hon. George Dallas, vice-president of that distinguished assembly, and one of the most eminent jurists of his country.

Sir Robert is the 8th bart. and 20th in lineal descent from Walter, Earl of Menteth.

Lineage.

The origin of the family of Stewart, after having been by Scottish genealogists deduced from a fabulous antiquity, seems to have been more satisfactorily ascertained by Chalmers. According to that learned antiquary, the Stewarts are descended from Flaald, or Flathard, a Norman who followed the CONQUEROR to England, and obtained in gift the castle of Oswestry, in Shropshire. Alan m. the dau. and heiress of Warine sheriff of Shropshire, temp. the CONQUEROR, and had in her right the barony of the same Warine. They had three sons, I. WILLIAM, from whom deduce the noble family of Norfolk; II. WALTER, High Steward of Scotland; and III. SIMON, the progenitor of the

Earls of Erroll. Walter (grandson of the said WALTER), 3rd high steward, died 1246, leaving by his wife, Beatrix, dau. of Gilchrist, commonly designated Earl of Angus, ALEXANDER, his successor; John, killed at the siege of Damietta, in the second crusade (1249); WALTER, of whom hereafter, and other issue. The last-named WALTER m. the 2nd dau. of Mauritiu, Earl of Menteth, and after a protracted suit with Walter Cumyn and his son William, was awarded the earldom, by a decree of a parliament held at Scone, 1285. Walter, Earl of Menteth, by his countess had two sons (who assumed the surname of MENTETH, but the family retained the paternal coat of STEWART, altering the fesse chequy to a bend, for difference),

ALEXANDER, Earl of Menteth.
Sir John Menteth.

The elder son, Alexander, had two sons,

- i. ALAN, 7th Earl of Menteth (living 1296), whose dau. and heiress m. Sir John Graham (beheaded 1346), and had a dau., Margaret, who m. ROBERT STEWART, Duke of Albany.

Alexander had a son, Alexander, who had a son, William, who had two sons, Alexander and James. Alexander's representatives failed in his grandson, James Menteth, of Milnhall. JAMES MENTETH, the brother of Alexander, had a son, JAMES, who was father of JAMES MENTETH, of Auldcaithie, whose eldest son, JAMES MENTETH, m. MAGDALEN DALYELL, heiress of Binns, commonly called The Lady Binns. Magdalen was eldest dau. and heiress-of-entail of Sir Thomas Dalryell, Bart., and Katharine Drummond, of Riccartoun. He was son of the celebrated cavalier general.

He raised the Scots Greys and another regiment; and during the Commonwealth his estate of Binns was forfeited, and he and General Gordon served the Czar against the Turks. Sir Thomas was created a Baronet, with limitations to his heirs-of-entail. Sir Thomas was s. at his decease by his son,

THOMAS LEGGE served the office of sheriff for the city of London in 1343, and was lord-mayor in the years 1346 and 1353. In 1338, this opulent citizen lent EDWARD III. £300 towards carrying on the war with France, which was a very considerable sum in those days, and more than any other citizen advanced, except the lord-mayor and Simon de Francis, who lent each £800 in the ensuing year. Alderman Legge m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and was s. by his elder son,

WILLIAM LEGGE, was brought out of Ireland by his godfather, Henry Danvers, Earl of Danby, and sent by him to serve as a volunteer under Gustavus-Adolphus of Sweden; and he served afterwards under Prince Maurice of Orange, in the Low Countries. On his return to England, he was first constituted keeper of the king's wardrobe, during life; and made, soon after, groom of the bedchamber. Col. Legge, during the civil wars, became eminently distinguished by his faithful attachment to CHARLES I., and his persevering exertions in the royal cause, before and after the murder of the king. In 1677, Governor Legge was constituted col. of a regt. of foot, and nominated lieutenant-general of the ordnance, of which he was soon afterwards made master. He was subsequently sworn of the privy council, and elevated to the peerage, 2 Dec. 1682, as Baron of Dartmouth, co. Devon, with remainder, after his own male heirs, to his brother William, and his heirs male. His lordship soon afterwards was sent as admiral of the whole English fleet to demolish Tangier, and, on his return, obtained a grant of £10,000, in reward of his services. During the reign of JAMES II., Lord Dartmouth enjoyed the confidence of that monarch, and filled some of the most important offices. In 1687, he was appointed

This family is of remote antiquity in the county of Devon, being settled there since the Conquest. The Barony of De Clifford having fallen into abeyance, 30 Sept. 1832, the crown, in 1833, was pleased to terminate the same in favour of Sophia, present baroness.

Lineage.

WILLIAM, 2nd son of Richard, 4th Duke of Normandy, surnamed Ponce, or Poncius, was Earl of Arques and Tholouse, and came into England with his victorious nephew, Duke WILLIAM. He had three sons, WALTER, DREW, and RICHARD. Of the eldest, little is known; from the second, viz., DREW, descend the families of Drew, of The Grange, co. Devon, and of Mocollop Castle, co. Waterford. (See DREW pedigree, registered in the College of Arms, Dublin, and also BURKE'S Landed Gentry.) The youngest son of the Earl of Arques,

RICHARD FITZ-PONTZ, m. Maud, dau. of Ralph de Toney, of Clifford Castle, co. Hereford; and their eldest son,

WALTER, assumed, upon inheriting Clifford Castle, the surname of CLIFFORD. From this Walter descended a race of powerful feudal barons, which we pass over to arrive at

ROBERT DE CLIFFORD, commonly called 1st Lord de Clifford, being summoned as such to parliament, 29 Dec. 1299, and the first of the family so dignified. His lordship was son of Roger de Clifford, a distinguished soldier in the reigns of HENRY III. and EDWARD I., who fell in the Welsh wars, on St. Leonard's day, 1283. This Roger m. Isabel, eldest dau. and co-heir of Robert de Vipont, Lord of Westmorland, and in her right, held Brougham Castle, in that county, part of which he built, and part repaired, causing the words, "This made Roger," to be cut out in stone, over the portal of the inward gate. Robert, the 1st baron aforesaid, was earl-marshal of England, in 1307. He fell at the battle of Bannockburn, 25 June, 1314, and was s. by his son (by Maud, dau. and co-heir of Thomas de Clare),

ROGER, 2nd baron, summoned to parliament in 1319. This nobleman was sheriff of Westmorland, and was beheaded at York, in 1327, with Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, leaving no issue. His brother,

ROBERT, s. as 3rd baron, and was direct ancestor of GEORGE, 3rd Earl of Cumberland, and 13th Baron de Clifford; who m. Lady Margaret Russell, youngest child of Francis, 2nd Earl of Bedford, by whom he had an only dau.,

1. Anne, who m. 1st, 25 Feb. 1608-9, Richard Sackville, Lord Buckhurst, afterwards Earl of Dorset, and had surviving issue,
 1 Margaret, m. to John Tufton, 5th Earl of Thanet, and left a son, THOMAS, 6th EARL OF THANET, of whom presently, as BARON CLIFFORD.
 2 Isabella, m. in 1647, to James Compton, Earl of Northampton.

The Earl of Dorset d. 28 March, 1624, and his widow m. in 1630, Philip Herbert, Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, whom she also outlived.

His lordship d. 29 Oct. 1605, when the earldom of Cumberland devolved upon his brother,

FRANCIS, as 4th earl; who d. in 1640, and was s. by his only son,

Henry, 5th Earl of Cumberland; who m. Lady Frances Cecil, only dau. of Robert, Earl of Salisbury, and had an only dau. and heir, Elizabeth, m. to Richard Boyle, 2nd Earl of Cork. Henry, Earl of Cumberland, d. in 1643, when that dignity EXPIRED.

Upon the decease of her father, George, 3rd Earl of Cumberland, a great contest arose between the Countess of Dorset and her uncle Francis, 4th earl, regarding the Barony of Skipton, which endured for no less a period than thirty-eight years, and finally terminated in the lady's favour, by her outliving both the Earls of Cumberland. In 1617, the king undertook to adjust this acrimonious family contest, and made an award; but her ladyship, although urged by her then husband, the Earl of Dorset, refused to abide by it. Her ladyship claimed the BARONY OF CLIFFORD, in 1628, but accomplished nothing therein; she d. in 1673, and the barony remained dormant until 12 Dec. 1691, when the House of Lords allowed it to her grandson, of Champion Lodge, Camberwell,

 co. Surrey; b. 20 April, 1847; s.
 his father, as 4th bart., 11 Aug.
 1868.

Lineage.

This family is of ancient and noble French descent: one branch, that of Champion de Vire, was established in Ireland by the CHEVALIER JACQUES-CHAMPION DE VIRE, and his lineal descendant is CHARLES-CHAMPION CHAMPION-MÖLLER, Esq., late of the 18th Hussars, who, with his issue, has been authorized by royal licence to take the additional surname of CHAMPION. The proofs of the descent of the Champion family are registered in the College of Arms.

MAREAS CHAMPION, Chevalier, of Lower Normandy, m. Madlle. Busnel, dau. and heir of Jean Busnel, Escuyer, Sieur and Baron de Frénes; and dying in 1350, left a son.

RICHARD CHAMPION, Viscompte de Vire, in consequence of his father having obtained the Domaine du Roi. By his wife, who was dau. of Hector Mensaut, Escuyer, Sieur de Lensentière, he had two sons,

I JEAN, who took up his residence in Brittany, and from whom derived Les Sieurs de Chartres de Cice, and other CHAMPIONS in that province, as well as CHAMPION DE CICE, ci-devant archbishop of Aix, living in 1830, who came over to England with other royalists, in the suite of the Duc de Bourbon, and was hospitably received by the late Sir William Champion de Crespigny, Bart., at Champion Lodge.

House of La Warr.

The first of this family upon record,

JOHN LA WARR, had a ratification, in the 8th of JOHN, of a grant which that king had made, prior to his coming to the throne, of the lordship of Bristolton (a member of the honour of Gloucester), to hold by the service of half a knight's fee. He d. in six years afterwards, and was s. by his son,

JORDAN LA WARR, who then paid two hundred pounds for livery of his lands. This feudal lord was in arms against King JOHN, but on paying a fine, with two palfreys, was re-admitted into favour. Nevertheless, we find him again fighting under the baronial standard, and again making his peace after the battle of Evesham. He was s. by

JOHN LA WARR, who was sheriff of Herefordshire in the 3rd EDWARD I, and was s. by

ROGER LA WARR, who in the reigns of EDWARD I. and EDWARD II, having had military summonses to attend the king in the wars of France, and being actively engaged in those as well as the Scottish wars, was summoned to parliament, as a BARON, from 6 Feb. 1299, to 16 June, 1311. His lordship m. Clarice, dau. and co-heir of John de Tregoz, Baron Tregoz; and dying in 1329, was s. by his son,

JOHN LA WARR, 2nd baron, summoned to parliament from 26 Aug. 1307, to 26 Feb. 1347. This nobleman, in the 25 EDWARD I, his father still living, was in the expedition then made into Flanders, and the next year he was in the wars of Scotland. In the 29th of the same reign, on the decease of his mother, Clarice, he inherited a moiety of the property of his grandfather, Lord Tregoz (to which barony he was co-heir, and for an account of which see BURKE'S Dormant and Extinct Peerage); viz., Ewyas-Harold, co. Hereford; Alyncton, Wilts; and other lands in the cos. of Somerset, Salop, and Northampton. After this, during the remainder of the reign of EDWARD I, he was constantly engaged in the wars of Scotland, and was made a knight of the Bath. In the 14th EDWARD III., his lordship was in the great sea-fight off Sluy; in the 16th, he was in the expedition to France, assisting at the siege of Nantes; and in the 20th, he was in the van of the BLACK PRINCE at the glorious battle of CRECY. His lordship m. Joan, sister and heir of Thomas de Gresley, Baron Gresley, whose chief seat was at Manchester, co. Lancaster; by which lady he acquired the great possessions of the Gresleys, and had a son,

I. JOHN, who predeceased his father, leaving by his wife Margaret, dau. of Sir John de Holland,

1 ROGER, who s. his grandfather, as 3rd baron.

2 John (Sir), of Bokampton, in Berks, which he held by sergentry, in keeping the king's dogs, called harriers, when he should come into those parts. Sir John was in the wars of Brittany; and dying in the 34th EDWARD III. s. p. left his estates to his brother.

1 Catherine, m. to Sir Warine Latimer, Lord Latimer of Braybrooke, and had issue,

John Latimer,
Sir Thomas Latimer, } successively barons.
Edward Latimer,

CATHERINE LATIMER, m. to Thomas Griffin, and had a son, JOHN GRIFFIN, whose descendant, EDWARD GRIFFIN, was created BARON GRIFFIN of Braybrooke.

His lordship d. in 1347, and was s. by his grandson,

SIR ROGER LA WARR, 3rd baron; summoned to parliament from 14 Aug. 1362, to 1 June, 1363. This nobleman, in the 30th EDWARD III., shared in the glory of Poitiers, wherein the French King with the Dauphin were made prisoners. Touching the capture of the King of France, it is recorded that much contention took place, as he defended himself with great valour; and the pressure upon him becoming great, such as knew him cried out "Sir, surrender, or you are dead;" whereupon he yielded, according to Froissart, to Sir Dennis Morbeck, a knight of Artois, in the English service; but being forced from that captain, more than ten knights and esquires claimed the honour of taking the royal prisoner. Amongst these, the pretensions of Sir Roger La Warr and Sir John Pelham (ancestor of the Pelhams, Dukes of Newcastle, and of the Lords Yarborough and Pelham) having been acknowledged the strongest, Lord Delawarr had, in commemoration of so valiant an exploit, the crimpet, or chape, of the captive prince's sword; and Sir John Pelham had the buckle of a belt as a memento of the same achievement. His lordship continued for several years after Poitiers in the French wars, and acquired greater renown in every subsequent campaign. He m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Adam, Lord Welles, and had issue, JOHN and THOMAS, successively Barons Delawarr. His lordship m. 2ndly, Alianore, dau. of John, Lord Mowbray, and had an only dau., JOANNA, who m. Sir Thomas West, 3rd Baron West, and had issue, THOMAS, Lord West, who d. s. p.; and REGINALD (Sir), summoned to parliament, jure matris, as Baron Delawarr. Lord Delawarr d. in 1370, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN LA WARR, 4th baron, summoned to parliament from 8 Jan. 1370, to 5 Nov. 1397. This nobleman, before and after his father's decease, was in the wars of Gascony with Prince EDWARD. In the 22nd of RICHARD II., his lordship obtained a special dispensation exempting him from attending any future parliaments, or serving the king in his wars, or otherwise, against his own good will. Shortly after which he departed this life, anno 1398, and dying unm., was s. by his brother,

THOMAS LA WARR, 5th baron, who being a priest, and rector of the church of Manchester, was summoned to parliament from 10 Aug. 1399, to 7 Jan. 1426, as "Magistro Thomæ de la Warre." In the 9th HENRY V., his lordship obtained license for making the parish church of Manchester collegiate; to consist of a warden and a certain number of priests, to celebrate divine service continually, for the good estate of HENRY V., and of him, the said Thomas, during this life, and afterwards for the health of their souls. He d. in 1426, when the Barony of Delawarr devolved upon his half-sister's son, Sir REGINALD WEST, Lord West, as in the above account of the Wests.

Lineage.

SIR BYSSHE SHELLEY, 1st baronet of Castle Goring, m. for his 2nd wife, Elizabeth-Jane-Sidney, only dau. and heir of William Perry, Esq. of Turvill Park, Bucks; of Worlington, co. Gloucester; and of Penshurst Place, Kent; granddau. (maternally) of Col. Sidney, and great-niece of the last Earl of Leicester (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage) of the Sidney family, by whom he had (with junior issue),

JOHN, who assumed the additional surname and arms of SIDNEY upon inheriting the Penshurst estates, and being created a Baronet as above, was the late

SIR JOHN SHELLEY-SIDNEY, heir and representative, by maternal descent, of the Beaumonts and Beauchamps, ancient Earls of Warwick; the Dudleys and Sidneys, Earls of Leicester; and claimant of the Baronies of De L'Isle and Iles. This family can establish legitimate descent from the COSQUEBOR, Gundred, the youngest dau. of that monarch, m. to William de Warren, 1st Earl of Warren and Surrey; and the grandson of that marriage, Gundred, m. to Roger de Beaumont, 2nd Earl of Warwick, the baronet's direct ancestor. The Sidneys, who are of Norman extraction, lineally descended from Sir William Sidney, Knt., chamberlain to King HENRY II. Sir William Sidney, to whom Penshurst Place was granted by King EDWARD VI., was chamberlain and steward of the household to King HENRY VIII. and was one of the commanders at the battle of Flodden, in 1515. His son, Sir Henry Sidney, was honoured with the confidence and friendship of EDWARD VI., and was lord-president of Wales and lord-deputy of Ireland in the reign of ELIZABETH. "A more exalted character than that of Sir Henry Sidney," observes Dr. Zouch, "is scarcely to be found in the volume of history. It deserves to be better known. In him we behold the brave soldier; the consummate general, the able counsellor, the wise legislator; while in the recesses of private life he was no less estimable as a husband, a father, and a friend; firmly attached to the church of England, and adorning his christian profession by his temperance and exemplary piety." He was father of the all-accomplished Sir Philip Sidney, whom Camden describes as "the great glory of his family, the great hope of mankind, the most lively pattern of virtue, and the glory of the world." Sir Henry Sidney's 2nd son,

ROBERT SIDNEY, was created successively, by JAMES I., Baron Sidney of Penshurst, Viscount L'Isle and EARL OF LEICESTER, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT, 2nd Earl of Leicester. This nobleman was father (he had four other sons) of the celebrated Algernon Sidney, and of Henry Sidney, created Earl of Romney, and of Dorothy, Countess of Sunderland, the poet Waller's Sæharissa, who, after her husband, Henry Spencer, 1st Earl of Sunderland, was slain at the battle of Newbury, 1643, m. 2ndly, Robt. Smythe, of Bounds, Kent, and d. 1663. Robert, 2nd Earl of Leicester, d. 1677, and was s. by his eldest son,

PHILIP, 3rd Earl of Leicester; who d. in 1697, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT, 4th Earl of Leicester. This nobleman d. in 1702, leaving four sons, three of whom enjoyed the earldom primogenitively, viz.,

- I. PHILIP, 5th earl.
- II. JOHN, 6th earl.

III. JOCELYN, 7th earl, who m. Elizabeth Thomas, of Glamorganshire, with whom he had long pending disputes on account of her misconduct, but from whom he was not divorced. At the earl's decease, without issue,* in 1743, the peerage expired.

The 3rd son of Robert, 4th Earl of Leicester,

The Hon. Thomas Sidney, d. 1728, and left two daus., one of whom m. William Perry, Esq. of Turvill Park, by whom she had a dau., Elizabeth-Jane-Sidney, the 2nd wife of Sir Byshe Shelley, Bart., by whom she was mother of

I. SIR JOHN SHELLEY-SIDNEY, of Penshurst Place, co. Kent; created a Baronet, 12 Dec. 1818. He was b. 18 Dec. 1771; and m. 29 April, 1799, Henrietta, dau. of Sir Henry Hamloke, 4th Bart., of Wingerworth Hall, co. Derby (a baronetcy now extinct), by whom (who d. 5 Feb. 1811) he had issue,

* By a trial at bar on a writ of right, at Westminster, 11 Feb. 1782, for Penshurst Place, park, and premises, in the county of Kent, it appears that this Jocelyne, Earl of Leicester, never was divorced from his wife, the said Elizabeth Thomas, and that she had a child, a son, John Sidney, the demandant at the trial aforesaid, which John, therefore, in the eye of the law, was to be considered a legitimate person, and, as such, well entitled to the inheritance of the honours of the family, but in respect to the inheritance of the estates demanded by him, he failed to establish a better right than the tenant in possession. This (according to the statement at the trial) arose from his avowment that his father, Earl Jocelyne, possessed thereof in fee, and not as tenant for life, which was the fact, as opened by the tenant; and further contended that, even had he possessed thereof in fee, then by his will the earl had given them away to a third party. The event of this trial going to admit the legitimacy of the demandant embraces an important question as to the absolute extinction of the honours.—BANKS.

The earl, who as Count of Hapsburg, &c., is a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, s. his father as 8th earl, 25 June, 1865.

Lineage.

This family which claims descent from the Counts of Hapsburg, settled in England in the reign of HENRY III.; and the occasion of its so settling is explained in an ancient manuscript, written about King EDWARD IV.'s time, wherein it appears, that Geffery, Count of Hapsburgh,* having been reduced to great poverty by the oppression of Rodolph, Emperor of Germany, one of his sons,

SIR GEFERY, served HENRY III. in his wars in England, and assumed the surname of Fieldeng, or Filding, from his father's pretensions to the dominions of Lauffenberg and RINFELDING; and it also appears that the English monarch, compassionating the said Geffery, gave him considerable support in rents and fees, lying in divers places. His son,

GEFFERY FEILDING, m. Agnes, dau. and heir of John de

* In the year 1026, Radboton, grandson of GONTRAM the Rich Count of Brisgau, founded the house of the Counts of Hapsburgh, which derived its name from the castle of Hapsburgh, built by Werner, bishop of Strasburg, upon the river Aar, in the canton of Berne. The princely line of Hapsburgh became extinct in the person of CHARLES VI., after giving twenty-two sovereigns to Austria, sixteen emperors to Germany, eleven kings to Hungary and Bohemia, and six to Spain.

Napton, by whom he acquired the lordship of Munsterton, co. Leicester, and was father of

WILLIAM FEILDING, who acquired, by marriage with Joan, dau. of William Prudhome, and granddau. and heir of Robert de Newnham, the manor of Newnham Paddox, co. Warwick, which has ever since continued the chief seat of the family.* The grandson of this William,

DENNY.

DENNY, SIR EDWARD, of Tralee Castle, co. Kerry; b. 2 Oct. 1796; s. as 4th baronet, at the decease of his father, in Aug. 1831.

Lineage.

SIR EDMOND DENNY, Knt., one of the barons of the court of Exchequer in England in the beginning of the 16th century, was great-grandson of John Denny, Esq., who fell in the French wars of HENRY V., and was interred at St. Denys. The judge d. in 1520, and there is a monument to his memory in the church of St. Bennett, Paul's Wharf, London. By his last will he directed his body to be laid in that church, and that twenty trentals of masses should be said for his soul, and for the souls of his wives deceased, and those of William and Agnes, his father and mother. The 4th son of this learned person,

SIR ANTHONY DENNY, Knt., b. in 1500, was groom of the stole in 1518, and sworn of the privy council to HEN. VIII. This gentleman was the only individual amongst the courtiers who dared to apprise his royal master of his approaching dissolution. HENRY had, however, so high an esteem for Sir Anthony, that he could perform that sad office with impunity, and the monarch presented him with a magnificent pair of gloves worked in pearls, which still remain in the possession of the family. Sir Anthony was appointed one of the King's executors and one of the guardians of EDWARD VI., all of whom were set aside, and their place supplied by Edward Seymour, Duke of Somerset. The grandson of Sir Anthony (the son of his eldest son, Sir Henry).

SIR EDWARD DENNY, Knt., was summoned to parliament in 1604, as Baron Denny, and created, in 1626, EARL OF NORWICH. The latter dignity became extinct at his decease, without male issue, in 1630, while the barony devolved upon his only dau. and heir, Honoria, wife of James, Earl of Carlisle, at the decease of whose son, James Hay, Earl of Carlisle, in 1660, without issue, it expired.

Sir Edward Denny was buried at Waltham, and the following epitaph placed upon his tomb:

Whose tongue could never flatter,

JOHN STANLEY, Lord of Stourton, &c., m. Mabella, dau. of Sir James Hausket, Knt. of Stourton Parva, by whom he had,

WILLIAM (Sir), his heir.

John of Greswithin, co. Cumberland, M.P. for Carlisle, 20 Edw. III., from whom descends the present EDWARD STANLEY, Esq. of Ponsonby Hall, M.P. for Cumberland.

The eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM STANLEY, Lord of Stourton, &c., m. Alice, dau. of Hugh Massey, of Timperley, and sister of Sir Hamon Massey, of Dunham Massey, and d. in the 21st RICHARD II., by whom he had, beside one dau., three sons,

- i. WILLIAM (Sir), eldest son, who s. his father, and was also of Hooton, in Cheshire, by right of his wife, Margery, dau. and heir of William de Hooton. From this Sir William descend the baronets (now ERRINGTON) of Hooton.
- ii. JOHN (Sir), K.G., of whom presently.
- iii. Henry.

The 2nd son,

SIR JOHN STANLEY, K.G., m. Isabel, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Latham, Knt., of Latham and Knowsley, co. Lancaster (descended from Robert-Fitz-Henry, whose son, Robert, took the name of LATHAM, from his place of residence), and thus acquired those estates. In 1385, Sir John Stanley was lord-deputy of Ireland, and had a grant of the manor of Blake Castle, in that kingdom. In 1405, he had a commission, in conjunction with Roger Leke, to seize on the city of York and its liberties, and also upon the Isle of Man, on the forfeiture of Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland; and in the 7th HENRY IV., being then treasurer of the household to the king, obtained licence to fortify a house at Liverpool, which he had newly built, with embattled walls. In the same year, having taken possession of the Isle of Man, he obtained a grant in fee of the said isle, castle, and pile, anciently called Holm Town, and all the isles adjacent, as also all the regalities, franchises, &c., to be holden of the said king, his heirs, and successors, by homage, and the service of two falcons, payable on the days of their coronation. On the accession of HENRY V., he was made a knight of the Garter, and constituted lord-lieut. of Ireland for six years, in which government he d. in 1414, having had (beside two daus.) four sons,

- i. JOHN (Sir), of whom presently.
- ii. HENRY.
- iii. Thomas (Sir), of Elford, co. Stafford, jure uxoris whence come the STANLEYS of Bilford, Pipe, &c.
- iv. Ralph (Sir).

The eldest son and heir,

SIR JOHN STANLEY, knight of the shire, 2 HENRY V., constable of Carnarvon, and justice of Chester, 5 HENRY VI. and sheriff of Anglesey, m. Isabel (or Elizabeth), dau. of Sir Robert, and sister and heir of Sir William Harrington, Knt. of Hornby, co. Lancaster, and had, beside two daus.,

- THOMAS (Sir), 1st Baron Stanley, of whom presently.
Richard, } successively archdeacons of Chester.
Edward, }

The eldest son and heir,

SIR THOMAS STANLEY, lord-lieutenant of Ireland for six years, (1432.) comptroller of the household, and chamberlain to HENRY VI.: K.G., 1456; knight of the shire; summoned as Baron Stanley, 20 Jan. 1456 (34th HENRY VI.). His lordship m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Goushill, Knt. of Heveringham, co. Notts, by Elizabeth his wife, (widow of Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, and dau. and co-heir of Richard Fitzalan, Earl of Arundel, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of William Bohun, Earl of Northampton, son of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex, by his wife, the Princess Elizabeth Plantagenet, dau. of King EDWARD I.) by whom he had, beside three daus.,

- THOMAS, his successor.
William (Sir), of Holt, who was beheaded as a participator in the conspiracy for placing Perkin Warbeck upon the throne. Sir William was the richest subject in the kingdom, having no less than 40,000 marks in ready money, and £3,000 a-year; to which circumstance, considering the rapacious disposition of HENRY VII., may be attributed his destruction more than to his political principles.
John (Sir), who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Weever, Knt. of Weever, co. Chester, and by her acquired that estate. From this Sir John Stanley descends the present JOHN-THOMAS, LORD STANLEY OF ALDERLEY.

Kent, and was s. by his elder son,

ii. Edward (Sir), of Hornby Castle, Lancashire. This gallant person commanded the rear of the English army at Flodden Field, 9 Sept. 1513; and forcing the Scots, by the power of his archers, to descend the hill, thus broke their line, and insured the triumph of the English arms, for which good service, HENRY VIII., keeping his Whitsuntide at Eltham the next ensuing year, 1514, commanded that Sir Edward Stanley, for those valiant acts against the Scots, where he won the hill, and vanquished all that opposed him, as also that his ancestors bore the eagle in their crest, should be there proclaimed Lord of Montague, and he had subsequently summons to parliament in that dignity. He was also elected a knight of the Garter. His lordship's grandson, WILLIAM STANLEY, 3rd Lord of Montague, d. in 1581, leaving by Ellen, his wife, dau. of Sir Thomas Preston, of Preston Patrick and Levens, in Westmorland, an only dau., ELIZABETH, who became his heir, and marrying Edward Parker, Lord Morley, conveyed the Barony of Montague into that family. The dignity is now in ABEYANCE. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

iii. James, in holy orders, bishop of Ely.

Lord Stanley m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. and heir of John, Duke of Somerset, widow of Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, and mother of Henry, Earl of Richmond. How far his lordship contributed to the victory of Bosworth is recorded in history; and his placing the crown of RICHARD upon the head of the victorious Richmond in the field, is also a matter of historic record. In consideration of those eminent services, the new monarch advanced Lord Stanley, 27 Oct. 1485, to the dignity of EARL OF DERBY, and constituted him one of the commissioners for executing the office of lord-high-steward of England on the day of his coronation. His lordship, in the March following, had a grant of the great office of CONSTABLE OF ENGLAND for life. He had no children by his second marriage; and dying in 1504, was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, 2nd earl; who m. Anne, dau. of Edward, Lord Hastings of Hungerford, and was s. at his decease, in 1522 (when it appears he bore the titles of Earl of Derby, Viscount Kyn-ton, Lord Stanley and Strange, Lord of Knokyn, Mohun, Basset, Burnal, and Lacy, Lord of Man and the Isles), by his son,

EDWARD, 3rd earl, K.G., lord-high-steward at the coronation of QUEEN MARY, and chamberlain of Chester in the reign of ELIZABETH; so celebrated for magnificence and liberality, that Camden says, "that with Edward, Earl of Derby's death, the glory of hospitality seemed to fall asleep." His lordship d. 24 Oct. 1572, and was s. by his eldest* son (by his 1st wife, Dorothy, dau. of Thomas, 2nd Duke of Norfolk),

HENRY, 4th earl, K.G.; one of the peers who sat upon the trial of MARY, Queen of Scots. His lordship m. Margaret, only child of Henry Clifford, Earl of Cumberland (by his 1st wife, Alianore, dau. and co-heir of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, and Mary, Dowager Queen of France, the sister of HENRY VIII.), and dying in 1593, was s. by his eldest son,

FERNANDO, 5th earl. This nobleman having been tampered with by one Hesketh, said to be an agent of the Jesuits, to assume the title of king in right of his grandmother, and rejecting the proposition indignantly, is supposed to have been poisoned in consequence by the conspirators. His lordship m. Alice, dau. of Sir John Spencer, of Althorp, and had three daus., his co-heirs, viz.,

ANNE, m. 1st, to Grey, 5th Lord Chandos; and 2ndly, to Mervyn, Earl of Castlehaven.

FRANCES, m. to John, Earl of Bridgewater.

ELIZABETH, m. to Henry, 5th Earl of Huntingdon.

His death occurred 16 April, 1594, when the BARONIES OF STANLEY AND STRANGE fell into abeyance amongst his daus., and the earldom devolved upon his brother,

WILLIAM, 6th earl, K.G. This nobleman bought from his

The earl dying in 1642, was s. by his son,

JAMES, 7th earl, K.G., b. 31 Jan. 1606; who had been summoned to parliament, in 1627, as Baron Strange, under an impression that such a barony was enjoyed by his father; that, however, not being the case, the summons amounted to the creation of a new peerage, which eventually devolved upon the ducal house of Atholl. His lordship was distinguished by his devoted and heroic attachment to royalty during the civil war. He, in his endeavour to rally the king's cause after the battle of Worcester, fell into the hands of the enemy, and suffered decapitation, at Bolton, 15 Oct. 1651. He m. Charlotte, dau. of Claude de la Trémouille, Duke of Thouars (this high-born and high-minded lady became famous for her gallant defence of Latham House, in 1644, when it was besieged by 2000 parliamentarians, and for her energetic protection of the Isle of Man, in 1651; see her *pedigree infra) and left issue,

WILLIAM-GEORGE-RICHARD, 9th earl, b. 18 March, 1656; who m. in July, 1678, Lady Elizabeth Butler, dau. of Thomas, Earl of Ossory, and d. without male issue, in 1702, when the honours devolved upon his brother,

JAMES, 10th earl; who m. Mary, dau. and sole heir of Sir William Morley, K.B., of Halnaker, but d. without issue, in 1735-6, when the Isle of Man, with the BARONY OF STRANGE, created in 1627, devolved upon the Duke of Atholl, (all the other baronies fell into abeyance between the co-heirs of Ferdinand, the 5th earl,) and the Earldom of Derby reverted to

SIR EDWARD STANLEY, Bart., as 11th earl (refer to George, Lord Strange, son of Thomas, 1st Earl of Derby). This nobleman, b. 11 Sept. 1689, m. in 1714, Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Robert Hesketh, Esq. of Rufford, co. Lancaster, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of the Hon. William Spencer, and had,

Lineage.

This is one of the very few houses still existing in England of undoubted Saxon origin; an origin confirmed not only by tradition, but by authentic family documents. One of its remote ancestors,

DIERING MILES (from the Saxon word Diering, signifying Terror), appears as witness to a deed, by which King ÆTHELUFF granted certain lands in Coccolstone to the church of Rochester in 880, and this Diering is said to be descended in a direct line from ÆTHELWARD, King of Diera. To pass, however, to more recent progenitors, we find

SIR RICHARD DERING, Knt. of Heyden, lieut. of Dover Castle in the reign of RICHARD II. His grandson,

RICHARD DERING, Esq. of Surrenden, d. in 1481, and was s. by his son,

JOHN DERING, Esq. of Surrenden-Dering. The 5th direct descendant from this gentleman,

I. SIR EDWARD DERING, Knt. of Surrenden-Dering, was created a Baronet, 1 Feb. 1626. This gentleman, who was lieutenant of Dover Castle, was a man of talents and learning; but he adopted, upon one occasion, a very eccentric mode of evincing his erudition, that of presenting a bill from the gallery of the House of Commons. "for the extirpation of bishops, deans, and chapters," and prefacing his motion with two verses of Ovid, the classical application of which was said to have been his sole motive for the proceeding.

"Cumeta prius tentanda; sed irremediabile vulnus
Eise recidendum est, ne pars sincera triaditur."

Lineage.

"That Peter, the ancestor of this great and noble family," says Dugdale, "did originally assume his surname in the time of HENRY I., from that lordship in Holderness, called Ros, where he then had his residence, need-th not to be doubted." This Peter m. Adeline, one of the sisters and co-heirs of the famous Walter Espee, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE ROS, who was s. by his son,

EVERARD DE ROS. This feudal lord m. Roysia, dau. of William Trusbut, of Warte, in Holderness, and at the decease of her brothers without issue, co-heir to her father's estate; which estate was eventually inherited by her descendants, the Lords Ros, her sisters and co-heirs leaving no posterity. Everard de Ros died about the year 1186, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE ROS, surnamed Farfán. This feudal lord, in the time of RICHARD I., was imprisoned in Normandy, and forced to pay a considerable sum for his deliverance. But, under King JOHN he regained the whole barony of his great-grandfather, Walter Espee, and was soon after employed as one of the commissioners to conduct WILLIAM, King of Scotland, into England. Robert de Ros was the founder of Hamlake Castle, in Yorkshire, and of Werke Castle, in Northumberland. During the troubles in King

JOHN's reign, he espoused the baronial interests and was a leader in the baronial army. He m. Isabel, dau. of WILLIAM the Lion, King of Scotland, and had issue,

Having assumed the habit of the order of Knights Templars, Robert de Ros d. in 1227, and was buried at London, in the Temple Church. His eldest son's eldest son,

ROBERT DE ROS, taking an active part against the king, was one of the chief barons, who, after the battle of Lewes, in 1264, where HENRY III., and his son, Prince Edward, became prisoners, was summoned to the parliament, which was called by the barons in the king's name, as Baron de Ros, 24 Dec. 1264. His lordship m. Lady Isabel, the great heiress of William de Albini, Lord of Belvoir, in Leicestershire; and dying in 1285, was s. by his eldest son, Miscage.

The LEICESTERS (or LEYCESTERS, as formerly written) are of very great antiquity in the co. Chester, and were possessed of land there in the time of King JOHN. The village of Nether Tabley, manor, and mansion, came to them with Margaret Dutton, dau. of Jeffrey Dutton, of Dutton, co. Chester, A.D. 1272, as appears in the History and Antiquities of Cheshire, by Sir Peter Leicester, Bart. "Jeffrey Dutton (says Sir Peter), son of Adam Dutton de Dutton, gave Nether Tabley to his dau. Margaret, and her heirs, about the end of the reign of HENRY III. This Margaret first married Robert de Denbigh, and had no issue; afterwards she married Nicholas de Leicester, by whom she had issue, and to whose succeeding progeny the manor of Nether Tabley still belongeth. He was afterwards Sir Nicholas Leicester, Knt., so styled in 1292, and was seneschal to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, constable of Cheshire." He was s. by his son, Roger, who was s. by his son,

The eldest son of Nicholas,

JOHN LEYCESTER, who served in the wars of France under John of Gaunt, in 1373 and 1380, built the old manor-hall of Nether Tabley. He was father of

WILLIAM LEYCESTER, Esq. of Nether Tabley, the first that we find styled De Tabley; but this may be in consequence of the statute of additions passed in the 1st of HENRY V.; for previously to the enactment of that law, few were written either of the place, or within the title of esquire. Certain it is, that this William lived at his manor-house of Nether Tabley, which his father, John, had recently erected, and which continued the seat of the family to the present period. He m. twice, but had issue by his wife, Agnes, sister of Sir John-Piers Dutton, Knt., only. He d. in 1428, and was s. by his eldest son,

Family of Byrne or O'Byrne.

From the earliest era of Irish history to the invasion of Cromwell, the family of O'Broin, O'Birne, or O'Byrne, was among the most powerful and distinguished. Charles O'Byrne, representative of this great house, was deprived by Cromwell of his extensive domains. He m. Grizell, dau. of Byrne, of Ballinaacorberg, and left three sons: i. Lineage.

This and the family of De Burgh, Marquesses and Earls of Clanricarde, derive from a common progenitor; namely, JOHN, Earl of Comyn, and Baron of Tonsburgh, in Normandy, son of BALDWIN II., founder of the house of Blois, in France. From the eldest son of this Earl John, descended the house of Clanricarde; and from the younger,

EUSTACE DE BURGH, Baron of Tonsburgh, that of which we are now to treat. This Eustace had two sons, Charles and John, both companions in arms of the CONQUEROR. The elder son,

CHARLES, built the castle of Knaresborough, in Yorkshire, and was s. by his brother,

JOHN, who m. Margaret, aunt of King STEPHEN, and was s. by his eldest son,

EUSTACE FITZ-JOHN, feudal lord of Knaresborough, who m. Beatrix, dau. and sole heir of Yvo de Vesci, by Alda, only dau. and heir of William Tyson, Lord of Alhwick, and was s. by his elder son,

WILLIAM, who assumed the name and arms of VESCI, and had a grant from HENRY II., of Alhwick Castle. He was sheriff of Northumberland during the greater part of that reign, and was a principal commander in the battle fought near Alhwick, wherein the Scottish army sustained a signal overthrow. He m. Burga, dau. of Robert Stutevill, Lord of Knaresborough, and had two sons, EUSTACE, his successor, and Warine, whose dau. Margaret m. Gilbert de Aton, and their great grandson, GILBERT DE ATON, was declared by an inquisition p. m. held at York s. EDWARD II. and by several other inquisitions p. m. heir of Lord de Vesci, as mentioned infra. William de Vesci d. in 1184, and was s. by his elder son,

EUSTACE DE VESCI, one of the twenty-five barons appointed to enforce the observance of MAGNA CHARTA. This distinguished feudal lord m. Margaret, dau. of WILLIAM, King of Scotland; and dying about 1216, was s. by his son,

He d. in 1253, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN DE VESCI, who was summoned to parliament as Baron Vesci, 24 Dec. 1264. His lordship d. s. p. in 1289, and was s. by his brother, WILLIAM DE VESCI, who was summoned to parliament in 1295, and was one of the competitors for the crown of Scotland, temp. EDWARD I. This nobleman was justice in eyre for all the royal forests beyond Trent, and one of the just-ces-tinerant touching the pleas of the forest, governor of Scarborough Castle, and lord-justice of Ireland, where he was Lord of Kildare. His lordship d. s. p. in 1297, when Gilbert de Aton, Lord of Aton, in Yorkshire, was by an inquisition p. m., held at York, s. EDWARD II., and by several other inquisitions p. m., declared his heir. (See supra). The male line of the family was continued by, it is said, a relative of this William (his younger brother, according to Lodge's Irish Peerage, but that is very questionable).

THOMAS DE VESCI, who settled in Newland, in Cumberland, where the family continued until his descendant,

WILLIAM VESEY, having the misfortune to kill his antagonist in a duel, fled into Scotland, whence he removed to Ireland in the reign of Queen ELIZABETH. He m. a dau. of the family of Ker of Cessford, and was s. by his only son,

Lineage.

THE COURTENAYS, one of the most illustrious races amongst the English nobility, deduce their paternal descent from ATHOX, who descended from MANERIUS, hereditary Count of Sens, who d. A.D. 836. This ATHOX having fortified, during the reign of ROBERT the Wise, the town of Courtenay, in the Isle of France, thence assumed his surname.

SIR REGINALD DE COURTENAY, who m. HAWISE, dau. or granddau. of Robert de Abrineis, who was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT DE COURTENAY, as feudal Baron of Oakhampton, Viscount of Devonshire, and governor of the castle of Exeter. This Robert, in 1214, was made governor of Bridgnorth, in Shropshire, and the following year, sheriff of Oxfordshire, and governor of the castle of Oxford, when the king (JOHN) committed to him the coinage of tin in Devonshire and Cornwall. He m. Mary, youngest dau. of William de Redvers, surnamed VERNON, 6th Earl of Devon; and dying 26 July, 1242, was s. by his elder son,

This nobleman having distinguished himself in the Scottish wars of EDWARD I., was one of the three hundred persons of eminence knighted by that monarch at Westminster. In the reign of EDWARD II., he was created a Knight-Banneret; and was fifteen times summoned to special treaties in parliament, as a baron, within the first eight years of EDWARD III., and twice in the 9th of the same monarch, by the name of Hugh de Courtenay, EARL OF DEVONSHIRE, being the last earl in order, as having been that year only restored to the dignity, in right of his great-grandmother, Mary, dau. of William de Redvers, Earl of Devon. His lordship m. Agnes, sister of the Lord St. John of Basing, and was s. at his decease, in 1340, by his eldest son,

HUGH DE COURTENAY, 2nd Earl of Devon, who had m. in 1325, Margaret, dau. of Humphrey Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex (lord-high-constable of England), and his wife, the Lady Elizabeth Plantagenet, dau. of EDWARD I., by whom he had (with nine daus.) eight sons, viz.,

1. Hugh, commonly called Hugh Courtenay's Fitz, one of the gallant soldiers of the martial reign of EDWARD III., a participator in the glories of Crecy, and an original knight of the Garter. He was summoned to parliament, as BARON COURTENAY, 8 Jan. 1371. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Guy Brian, Lord of Tor-Brian, in Devonshire, and sister of the famous Guy, Lord Brian, viii. Humphry.

Hugh, 2nd Earl of Devon, d. in 1377, and was s. by his grandson,

EDWARD, 3rd Earl of Devon, commonly called The Blind Earl. This nobleman served to the beginning of the reign of RICHARD II. as a naval officer, under JOHN of Gaunt, and THOMAS of Woodstock, respectively; and was appointed, in the 7th of the same monarch, admiral of all the king's fleet, from the mouth of the Thames westward. In the next year, being then EARL MARSHAL, his lordship was retained to serve the king in his Scottish wars. He m. Maud, dau. of Thomas, Lord Camoys; and dying 4 Dec. 1419, was s. by his only surviving son,

HUGH, 4th Earl of Devon, K.B., who m. Anne, dau. of Richard, Lord Talbot, and sister of the renowned Earl of Suresbury; and dying in 1422, was s. by his son,

THOMAS, 5th Earl of Devon. This nobleman commenced his military career at the age of sixteen, and was engaged for several years in the French wars of HENRY VI., with whom he sided on the breaking out of the unhappy conflict between the houses of York and Lancaster; and the Courtenays ever after adhered, with desperate fidelity, to the RED ROSE. In 1448, a dispute regarding precedency arose between the Earls of Devon and Arundel, which was decided by parliament in favour of the latter lord, owing to his feudal possession of Arundel Castle. The Earl of Devon d. 3 Feb. 1458, in the Abbey of Abingdon, upon his route to London, as a mediator, with other noblemen, between the king and the Duke of York. He m. Lady Margaret Beaufort, 2nd dau. of John, Marquess of Somerset, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 6th Earl of Devon. This nobleman inheriting the political principles, with the honours, of his deceased father, was a strenuous upholder of the Lancastrian interests, and falling into the hands of the Yorkists, at Towton Field, he was beheaded at York, by order of EDWARD IV., in April, 1462. His lordship was subsequently attainted, and the honours of the house thus became eclipsed; but his next brother,

HUGH COURTENAY (7th earl, but for the attainder), finding favour with the new king, had restoration of some part of the estates. Engaging, however, in the Lancastrian quarrel, with the zeal of his predecessors, he was himself attainted, 4 May, 1466, before the king and justices at Sarum, and beheaded, with the Lord Hungerford, on the same day.

(The greater part of the Courtenay estates having been conferred upon Humphrey Stafford, Baron Stafford of Southwicke, that nobleman was created EARL OF DEVON in 1469; but falling under the axe as a traitor, in the August following, the dignity expired.)

Upon the demise of Hugh Courtenay, his only surviving brother,

JOHN COURTENAY, assumed the EARLDOM OF DEVON, and the Lancastrian interest prevailing in 1470, by the expulsion of King EDWARD, his lordship was restored to the honours and possessions of his family by the parliament that replaced the crown upon the head of HENRY VI. The subsequent defeat, however, of Richard Nevill, the stout Earl of Warwick, at Barnet Field, 14 April, 1471, again placed the fortunes of the house of Devon in jeopardy, and the earl, joining MARGARET OF ANJOU, fell sword in hand, at Tewkesbury, 14 May following, at the head of MARGARET'S rear-guard. Thus the three brothers sealed with their blood their bond of fidelity to the house of Lancaster, and with them expired the senior branch of the ancient and illustrious house of Courtenay. The last earl was buried at Tewkesbury, and being attainted, the honours and estates of DEVON became again forfeited.

The branch being thus extinguished, we proceed to that founded by

SIR HUGH COURTENAY, of Haccomb, brother of EDWARD, 3rd earl (revert to issue of Hugh, 2nd earl). This gentleman's only son,

SIR HUGH COURTENAY, Knt., was of Boconnock, in Cornwall, and M.P. for that shire. He m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Carminow (the last heir male of that ancient family, whose other dau. and co-heir was m. to Sir Thomas Carew, of Mohun's Ottery), and had issue,

- i. EDWARD (Sir), his successor.
- ii. Walter (Sir), d. unm.
- iii. Maud, m. Sir John Arundell, of Tolverne.
- iv. Elizabeth, m. to John Trethurffe, and had a son,

THOMAS TRETURFFE, who left two daus.,

Elizabeth, m. to John Vivian.

Margaret, m. to Edward Courtenay, Esq. of Larrock.

- v. Isabel, m. to William Mohun.
- v. Florence, m. to John Trelawny.

Sir Hugh, faithful to the Red Rose, fell, with his noble kinsman, the Earl of Devon, at Tewkesbury; and his eldest son,

SIR EDWARD COURTENAY, being involved with his brother, in the conspiracy of Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, in favour of Henry, Earl of Richmond, was forced to fly into Brittany upon the failure of the plot and the decapitation of the duke. Participating, subsequently, in the victory of Bosworth, he was elevated to the peerage by HENRY VII. (26 Oct. 1485), as EARL OF DEVON, and he obtained grants, at the same time, of the greater part of the estates, manors, &c., which had belonged to the late Thomas Courtenay, Earl of Devon. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Philip Courtenay, of Molland, and had an only son, William (Sir), K.B., who m. the Lady Katherine Plantagenet, dau. of EDWARD IV. In the year 1502, Sir William was arrested, with Lord William de la Pole, Sir James Tyrrell, and Sir John Wyndham, and accused of holding a traitorous correspondence with Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk, then a refugee at the court of his aunt, Margaret, Duchess of Burgundy; and he was attainted in 1504. Tyrrell and Wyndham were beheaded on Tower-hill, while Courtenay was doomed to incarceration during the king's reign.

The earl d. in 1509, and HENRY VIII. ascending the throne in the same year, that monarch immediately released

SIR WILLIAM COURTENAY, and took him into favour; but he died in three years afterwards, before he had either letters patent or a formal restoration of the earldom. He was buried, however, "with the honours of an earl," at the special command of the king. By the Lady Catherine Plantagenet he left an only son,

EDWARD COURTENAY, who having been restored in blood and honours, became 2nd Earl of Devon of the new creation. In 1522, his lordship obtained a grant of Caland, in Cornwall, and of a "fair mansion," situate in the parish of St. Lawrence Poultry, in the city of London, forfeited by the attainder of Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham; and was advanced by letters patent, dated 18 June, 1525, to the dignity of Marquess of Exeter. For some years this nobleman enjoyed the favour of the fickle HENRY, but he fell at length a victim to that monarch's jealousy of the house of Pole. He was committed to the Tower with Henry Pole, Lord Montacute, and Sir Edward Nevill, for conspiring to place Reginald Pole, dean of Exeter upon the throne, and was beheaded with Sir

Edward Nevill, 9 Jan. 1539. On the subsequent attainder of the marquess all his honours expired, and the king annexed to the Duchy of Cornwall the lands in that county, which thus came to the crown. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth Grey, dau. and heir of John, Viscount Lisle, but by that lady had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Gertrude, dau. of William Blount, Lord Mountjoy, by whom he left an only child,

EDWARD COURTENAY, who, though but twelve years of age at the death of his father, was committed prisoner to the Tower, and detained there during the remainder of King HENRY'S reign, and that of EDWARD VI.; but upon the accession of Queen MARY he was released, and a patent, dated at Richmond, 3 Sept. 1553, was issued, creating him EARL OF DEVON. On the 10th October following, he was fully restored in blood; but as the attainder of his father was never reversed, he did not succeed to the Earldom of Devon, created in the 1st HENRY VII., nor to the earldom created in the 3rd HENRY VIII., neither did he to the Marquessate of Exeter. His lordship had some command in suppressing Wyatt's rebellion, and yet was afterwards, with the Princess ELIZABETH, accused of being accessory thereto, and sent with her highness to the Tower. He was subsequently confined in Fotheringay Castle, but released, through the interposition of PHILIP of Spain, upon that monarch's marriage with the queen; the Lady ELIZABETH being liberated through the same influence. His lordship after this, obtained the queen's permission to go abroad, and d. at Padua, not without suspicion of poison 4 Oct. 1566. He d. unm., and his estates reverted to the issue of his great-aunts, and the four daus. of Sir Hugh Courtenay, of Boconnock, and sisters of Edward, 1st earl. At his lordship's decease, the earldom of Devon was considered to have become extinct, and it remained dormant for no less than two hundred and sixty-five years. It was, however, re-established in another branch of the family, as heirs male of the deceased lord (to which we shall now proceed), by the decision of parliament, 15 March, 1831. It is clear, however, that the Courtenays themselves never once previously, thought of the earldom's being in existence, or they would not have accepted a baronetcy and a viscounty.

The existing branch of the Courtenays was founded by SIR PHILIP COURTENAY, of Powderham Castle (refer to issue of Hugh de Courtenay, 2nd of the original Earls of Devon), who received the honour of knighthood from Edward, the Black Prince, with his brothers, Hugh and Peter, the day before the battle of Navaret, in Spain, and was constituted in 1383, lord-lieutenant of Ireland for ten years. Sir Philip m. Anne, dau. of Sir Thomas Wake, by whom he left three sons and two daus., and was s. at his decease, in the 7th HENRY IV., by his eldest son,

RICHARD COURTENAY, Lord Bishop of Norwich. This prelate was one of the ambassadors sent by HENRY V. to the King of France, to demand the crown of that kingdom, as his right by descent, and to denounce war in the event of non-compliance. He d. in 1415, and was s. in his estates by his nephew,

SIR PHILIP COURTENAY, Knt., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Walter, Lord Hungerford, and acquired by the alliance the manor of Mollind Botreaux, in Devonshire. He had issue, beside two daus., seven sons, viz.,

WILLIAM, his successor.

ANNA-MARIA PASTON, who m. George Throckmorton, Esq.

Walter (Sir).

John (Sir), knight-banneret.

Lineage.

The noble family of Cavendish, of which, in the last century, two branches attained dukedoms, laid the foundations of its greatness originally on the share of abbeylands, obtained, at the dissolution of the monasteries, by Sir William Cavendish, who had been gentleman-usher to Cardinal Wolsey, and d. in 1557; and subsequently, by the abilities and the good fortune of Elizabeth, his widow, who remarried George, Earl of Shrewsbury, and d. in 1607, aged eighty-seven. But though thence arose the exalted rank and extensive possessions enjoyed at present by the Cavendishes, be it not supposed that their remote ancestors were obscure. Whether the first of the name who enjoyed the lordship of Cavendish, in Suffolk, was or was not the son of a member of the baronial family of Gernon, whom genealogists have stated to have owned that estate, it is clearly ascertained that

SIR JOHN CAVENDISH, who acquired the lordship of Cavendish-Overhall, by his marriage with Alice, dau. and heir of John de Odyngseles, was chief-justice of the Court of King's Bench in 1366, 1373, and 1377. In the 4th RICHARD II., his lordship was elected chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and was next year commissioned, with Robert de Hales, treasurer of England, to suppress the insurrection raised in the city of York; in which year the mob, having risen to the number of 50,000, made it a point, particularly in the co. of Suffolk, to plunder and murder the lawyers; and being incensed in a more than ordinary degree against the Chief-Justice Cavendish, his son, John, having killed the notorious Wat Tyler, they seized upon, and dragged him, with Sir John of Cambridge, prior of Bury, into the market-place of that town, and there caused both to be beheaded. The younger son of the judge,

SIR JOHN CAVENDISH, esquire of the body to King RICHARD II., is said to be the person who actually slew Wat Tyler. "For William Walworth, mayor of London, having arrested him, he furiously struck the mayor with his dagger, but being armed, hurt him not; whereupon, the mayor, drawing his baselard, grievously wounded Wat in the neck; in which conflict, an esquire of the king's house, called John Cavendish, drew his sword, and wounded him twice or thrice even unto death. For which service, Cavendish was knighted in Smithfield, and had a grant of £40 per annum from the king."

The great-great grandsons of this Sir John Cavendish were the brothers,

WILLIAM CAVENDISH and George Cavendish; the latter was the faithful attendant of Cardinal Wolsey, through all fortunes; so faithful, indeed, that after the death of the Cardinal, King HENRY retained him in his own service, especially upon the grounds of his attachment to his late fallen master. The elder brother, WILLIAM CAVENDISH, was, in 1530, appointed one of the commissioners for visiting and taking the surrenders of divers religious houses, and in that year the prior and convent of Sheen surrendered their monastery to him. He had, subsequently, grants from the crown, received the honour of knighthood, and was appointed treasurer of the chamber to the king; an office which he filled in the ensuing reigns of EDWARD VI. and Queen MARY, when he was sworn of the privy-council. Sir William m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Edmund Bostock, Esq. of Walcroft, in Cheshire, by whom he had four surviving daus. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Conyngsby, Esq., and had two daus. The original surname of this ancient family is said to have been TILTON, assumed from their residence at Tilton, co. Leicester; and the alteration is supposed to have taken place in 1256, when that abode was abandoned for Digby, co. Lincoln.

In nearly two centuries afterwards, A.D. 1434, we find EVERARD DIGBY, Esq., filling the office of high-sheriff of the co. of Rutland, and representing that shire in parliament. He fell at the battle of Towton, in 1440, fighting under the banner of the unfortunate HENRY VI. Lineage.

The surname of the house of Donegal was anciently written CIRENCESTER, and the family appears to have been one of eminence in the co. Devon; quartering, according to Sir William Pole, in his MS. Survey of Devonshire, the arms of the Raleighs, the Beaumonts, the Willingtons, &c. The first who settled in Ireland was,

SIR ARTHUR CHICHESTER, Knt., 2nd son of Sir John Chichester, Knt., high-sheriff of Devonshire in 1552 and 1578, and M.P. for the same co. in 1553 and 1562, by Gertrude, dau. of Sir William Coutenay, Knt. of Powderham Castle, co. Devon (grandson of Edward Chichester, and great-grandson of John Chichester, Esq., by Margaret, his wife, dau. and heir of Hugh Beaumont, Esq. of Youldston, co. Devon, great-grandson of Sir William Beaumont and Isabel, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Willington, of Umberleigh and Willington Court). In 1603, he was sworn of the privy-council; and in 1604, appointed lord-deputy of Ireland, in which year he established two new circuits, sending the first justices of assize into Connaught, and reviving the circuit of Munster, which had been discontinued for more than two hundred years, so that the circuits, which had previously been confined to the English pale, thenceforward included the whole kingdom; and with such effect that, in a very short time, there were not found in all the Irish counties so many capital offenders as in the six shires of the western circuit in England. Sir Arthur, in consideration of his services, military and civil, obtained considerable grants of land in the province of Ulster, and was created Baron Chichester, of Belfast, in the peerage of Ireland, 23 Feb. 1612. His lordship continued in the government of Ireland for ten years successively, and was re-appointed in July, 1613; in which year the harp of Ireland was first marshalled with the arms of England, and has since continued to be impressed upon the coin of the realm. In Nov. 1615, he retired from his high office, and was appointed, in 1616, lord-high-treasurer of Ireland. Lord Chichester chiefly resided at Carrickfergus, where he erected, in 1618, a magnificent mansion called Joymount. In 1622, he went ambassador to the palatinate, and thence to treat of a peace with the emperor. During his residence at the imperial court, being besieged in the city of Manchinna, or Manheim, by Count Tilly, he remonstrated against the violation of the law of nations in besieging an ambassador; to which Tilly replying, that he noticed not his being an ambassador; his lordship thus answered the messenger:—"Had my master sent me with as many hundred men as he hath sent me on fruitless messages, your general should have known that I had been a soldier as well as an ambassador." His lordship m. Letitia, dau. of Sir John Perrott, sometime lord-deputy of Ireland, widow of Vaughan Blackham, Esq.; and d. in London, 19 Feb. 1624, when, leaving no issue, the barony expired, while his large estates passed to his brother,

SIR EDWARD CHICHESTER, in whose favour the peerage was revived, with the additional honour of Viscount Chichester of Carrickfergus, 1 April, 1625. His lordship m. 1st, in 1605, Anne, dau. and heir of John Coplstone, Esq. of Eggesford, co. Devon, by whom he acquired a large estate, and had two sons and a dau. He m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of — Denham, Esq. of Wortham, in the same shire, but had no other issue. He d. in 1648, and was s. by his elder son,

ARTHUR, M.P. for the co. of Antrim in 1639; who, in consideration of his services against the rebels when Col. Chichester, and at the express solicitation of the Marquess of Ormonde, had been elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 30 March, 1647, as EARL OF DONEGAL, with limitation of the honour to the male descendants of his father. His lordship was one of the four hostages sent by the Marquess of Ormonde, in 1647, to the English Parliament, as surety for the delivery of Dublin and other garrisons to their commissioners. After the restoration, he was governor of Carrickfergus; and in 1668, his lordship established a mathematical lecture in the University of Dublin. He m. 1st, Dorcas, dau. of John Hill, Esq. of Honley, co. Warwick, by whom he had an only dau., Mary, who m. John St. Leger, Esq. The earl m. 2ndly, Lady Mary Digby, dau. of John, 1st Earl of Bristol, but by that lady he had no surviving issue; and 3rdly, Letitia, only surviving dau. of Sir William Hickes, Bart. of Kooksholt, and by her left one surviving dau., Anne, who m. 1st, John Butler, Earl of Gowran, and 2ndly, Francis Augier, Earl of Longford, but had no issue. The earl of Donegal d. 18 March, 1674, when his honours devolved, according to the limitation, upon his nephew,

SIR ARTHUR CHICHESTER, as 2nd earl (eldest son of the Hon. John Chichester, by Mary, youngest dau. of Roger Jones, Viscount Ranelagh). His lordship m. Jane, dau. and heir of John Itchingham, Esq., of Dunbrody, co. Wexford, and was s. by his eldest son,

ARTHUR, 3rd earl. This nobleman having distinguished himself in the military service of his own country, was appointed by the Prince of Hesse, in 1704, major-general of the Spanish forces; and fell, 10 April, 1706, at Fort Monjuich. His lordship's 2nd lady (by the 1st, Lady Barbara Boyle, he had no surviving issue) was Lady Catherine Forbes, dau. of Arthur, Earl of Granard. By this lady he had two sons and six daus.; three of the latter, Jane, Frances, and Henrietta, were unfortunately burnt to death in the house of Belfast, consumed by the carelessness of a servant. His lordship was s. by his elder son,

ARTHUR, 4th earl; at whose decease, without issue, in 1757, the honours devolved upon his nephew, ARTHUR, 5th earl, b. in 1739 (eldest son of the Hon. John Chichester, M.P. for Belfast in 1745, by Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir Richard Newdigate, Bart. of Arbury, Warwickshire), who was created a British peer, by the title of Baron Fishwick, of Fishwick, co. Stafford, 3 July, 1790; and advanced in the Irish peerage, 27 June, 1791 to the dignities of Earl of Belfast and MARQUESS OF DONEGAL. Lineage.

The ancient family of ST. LEGER is of French extraction, and derives from

SIR ROBERT SENT LEGERE, Knt., as the name was then written, one of the companions in arms of the CONQUEROR; and according to a tradition in the family, the person who supported that prince with his arm when he quitted the ship to land in Sussex. This Sir Robert, having overcome a pagan Dane who inhabited the manor of Uelombe, in Kent, fixed his abode there, and in that place his posterity flourished for many generations. The lineal descendant of Sir Robert,

SIR ANTONY ST. LEGER, Knt. of the Garter, went first into Ireland in 1537, being appointed by HENRY VIII. one of the commissioners for letting the crown lands there; and returning into England, was constituted lord-deputy of Ireland, 7 July, 1540. ham, in Middlesex, and became a widower, 18 Sept. 1841. Sir Thomas s. to all the estates of his great-uncle, Sir Francis-Henry Drake, Bart., under that gentleman's will, dated 31 Dec. 1792. He was an officer in the army, and served throughout the greater part of the Peninsular war.

Lineage.

This family of DRAKE was founded by the celebrated

SIR FRANCIS DRAKE, one of the most eminent of the naval heroes who immortalized the reign of ELIZABETH. Born near Tavistock, in 1545, Drake attained the height he eventually achieved by his own enterprising spirit and transcendent merit alone. He had the good fortune of being allied to Sir John Hawkins, and was brought up at the expense and under the care of that gallant seaman. When eighteen years of age, he appears to have held the situation of pursuer of a ship trading to Biscay, and at twenty he made a voyage to Guinea. The next year he had the honour of being appointed captain of the "Judith," and in that capacity was in the harbour of St. Juan de Ulloa, in the Gulf of Mexico, where he behaved most gallantly in the glorious actions under Sir John Hawkins, and returned to England rich in reputation, but in nothing else. At this period, he announced his intention of making reprisals upon the King of Spain; and no sooner proclaimed the project, than hundreds volunteered to embark in it. In 1570, he made his first expedition, with two ships, the "Dragon" and the "Swan"; and the next year in the "Swan" alone, wherein he returned safe, if not rich. And having now means sufficient to perform greater matters, he laid before the public the plan of a more important design against his enemies. This he put into execution, 24 March, 1572, on which day he sailed from Plymouth, himself in the "Paseha," of seventy tons burden, and his brother, John Drake, in the "Swan," of twenty five tons, their whole strength consisting of no more than seventy-three men and boys. With this inconsiderable force, he attacked, on the 22nd July, the town of Nombre de Dios, and took it in a few hours by storm. Here, however, he obtained but little plunder, and was obliged, eventually, to retire to his ships, having been severely wounded in the action. His next attempt was upon Vera Cruz, which he carried and pillaged, and in returning to his vessels fortunately fell in with a string of mules laden with plate, of which he took possession. From this successful expedition he came back to England in Aug. 1573. He subsequently served as a volunteer in Ireland, under Walter, Earl of Essex; and upon his return, was introduced by Sir Christopher Hatton to Queen Elizabeth, when her majesty immediately took him under her protection; and he was enabled, by her royal favour, to undertake and accomplish, within three years, his celebrated voyage round the world. This famous expedition, consisting of the "Pelican," commanded by Drake himself; the "Elizabeth," Capt. John Winter; the "Marygold," a bark of thirty tons, Capt. John Thomas; the "Swan," a fly-boat of fifty tons, Capt. John Chester; and the "Christopher," a pinnace of fifteen tons, Capt. Thomas Moon, sailed from Plymouth, 15 Nov. 1577, and returned to the same port, 3 Nov. 1580. In a few months after leaving England, Drake committed what has been termed in gentle language, "the least commendable action of his life," but to which a much more severe description might with justice be applied. Having arrived at Port St. Julian, 18 June, he took up his abode there for two months, while he made the necessary provision for passing the Straits of Magellan. In 1588, when the Spanish armada menaced the shores of England, Sir Francis Drake was appointed vice-admiral, under Charles, Lord Howard of Effingham, and had the good fortune to capture the great galleon, commanded by Don Pedro de Valdez, the reputed projector of the enterprise, by which himself and his crew divided 55,000 ducats. DRUMMOND, SIR JAMES-HAMLYN-WILLIAMS WILLIAMS-, of Hawthornden, Mid-Lothian, b. 13 Jan. 1857; s. his father as 4th bart., 10 May, 1866.

Lineage.

MAURICE DRUMMOND, a native of Hungary, accompanied Edgar Atheling, and his two sisters to Scotland, in the year 1065. One of these ladies,

MARGARET, the elder, m. MALCOLM CANMORE, and under her auspices Drummond acquired large possessions in Scotland, and was the progenitor of the noble family of Drummond of Perth, of which Drummond of Hawthornden is a cadet. Late in the fourteenth century, William Drummond, a younger son of the family, and brother to Annabella, the Queen of ROBERT III. of Scotland, m. Elizabeth, dau. and one of the co-heiresses of Sir William Airth, of Airth, and by this marriage acquired the barony of Carnock, in Strathguskel. The elder branch of the line of Carnock is reputed to have terminated in the person of Sir John Drummond, who sold the Carnock estate to Sir Thomas Nicolson, and afterwards fell in the battle of Alford, in 1645, fighting under the banner of the celebrated Marquess of Montrose. John Drummond (afterwards Sir John), 2nd son of Sir Robert, of Carnock, purchased the barony, and founded the family of Hawthornden.

It appears from a charter in the possession of the family in favour of Eleana de Abernethy, "filia natu maxima de Laurentii Abernethy, militis, de Hawthornden," that the barony of Hawthornden belonged, in the year 1338, to the Abernethys, by whom it was sold to the family of Douglas, and by them sold to Drummond of Carnock, with whom it has since remained. The families of Abernethy and Drummond became united by the marriage of Bishop Abernethy and Barbara Drummond.

The most remarkable member of this family was William Drummond, b. in 1558, (son of Sir John Drummond, of Hawthornden,) and unquestionably the most celebrated poet of his day. His History of the five Jameses, Kings of Scotland, is also well known; though perhaps it is as a poet, rather than an historian, that he is indebted for his literary fame. It is an historical fact, that the famous Ben Jonson travelled from London to Scotland on foot, solely for the purpose of visiting Drummond at his beautiful and romantic seat at Hawthornden. An account of this visit is recorded in Jonson's, as well as Drummond's, works.

ROBERT FORBES, Esq. of Corse, in the co. of Banff, son of John Forbes, of Corse, and a cadet of the Pittsigo family, m. Anne, dau. of John Abernethy, Esq. of Cosbie, and sister of Bishop William Abernethy-Drummond, heir male of the Abernethys of Saltoun, and was father of,

1. JOHN FORBES, Esq., captain R.N.; who m. Mary, dau. of Dr. Ogilvie, M.D. of Murtle, a lineal descendant of Sir John Drummond, 1st of Hawthornden, and heiress, by special settlement of her cousin, Mrs. Barbara Drummond (who d. s. p. in 1789, wife of the above-mentioned Dr. William Abernethy-Drummond, and only dau. and heir of William Drummond, Esq., of Hawthornden), upon which occasion Mr. Forbes assumed the additional surname and arms of DRUMMOND; by this lady he had an only surviving dau.,

MARGARET-ANNE FORBES-DRUMMOND, who m. Francis, eldest son of the late James Walker, Esq. of Dalry, Mid-Lothian (a descendant of the ancient family of Walker, of St. Fort, Fifeshire), by Jane Hay, his wife, dau. of Richard Hay-Newton, Esq. of Newton, grandson of John, Marquess of Tweeddale, and the Lady Jane Maitland, his wife, only child of John, Duke of Lauderdale. On his marriage, Francis assumed the surname and arms of DRUMMOND.

Capt. Forbes-Drummond was created a baronet 27 Feb. 1826, for distinguished naval service, with remainder to his son-in-law above-mentioned, and dying 28 May, 1829, was s. according to the limitation, by,

The male line of the French Blackwoods became extinct at the death of SIMON XAVIER DE BLACVOD, Chevalier, Seigneur des Frozes in Poitou, whose eldest daughter and co-heiress, MARIE-Thérèse-Blacvod, m. in 1776, Jean Philippe Bellin de la Boutelière Chevalier, Seigneur des Cotes. The Scots' charters preserved in Durham, and the registers of Kelso, leave us no room to doubt that the Earls of Dunbar and March were descended of Cospatrick, Earl of Northumberland. After Northumberland (one of the seven Saxon kingdoms) became a province, the earls thereof were only official and provincial, and not hereditary, and they were often changed at the pleasure of the sovereign.

Lineage.

Amongst the most eminent of the Anglo-Norman families in Ireland is that of BUTLER; at its head stands the illustrious house of ORMONDE—the great rival of the Geraldines, and their equal in historic importance and renown. At various periods the English Earldoms of Wiltshire and Brecknock, and the Irish, of Arran, Gowran, and Kilkenny, have been held by the family, in addition to their existing Peerage dignities; and in all times the name of Butler is most prominently and honourably associated with the annals of Ireland. THE BARONY OF DUNBOYNE was conferred by Patent, bearing date in 1541, on Sir Edmund Butler, Kut., Lord of Dunboyne, but his direct ancestor, Sir Thomas Butler or Le Botiler, has summons to Parliament as a peer, under the title of "Lord of Dunboyne," so far back as the reign of King EDWARD II. This

SIR THOMAS BUTLER or LE BOTILER, who was thus summoned as a peer, and took his seat in 1324, was next younger brother of Sir EDMOND LE BOTILLER, Lord Butler of Arklow, and EARL OF CARRICK, lord justice of Ireland (father of JAMES, 1st EARL OF ORMONDE), and third son of Theobald Le Botiler, Great Butler of Ireland, Baron of Arklow, by Joan his wife, dau. and co-heir of John-Fitz-Peter Fitz-Geffery, Baron of Derkhamstead.

Sir Thomas m. SYNOLDA LE PETIT, Lady of Dunboyne and Molyngar, only child and heiress of WILLIAM LE PETIT, Lord of Dunboyne and Molyngar, and thus acquired those lordships. In the 3rd of RICHARD I., William Le Pety succeeded Hugh de Lacy, Earl of Hereford, as lord justice of Ireland, and obtained large grants of lands, consisting of many knights' fees in the counties of Westmeath and Meath; in the 5th of KING JOHN, William Le Pety was summoned to Parliament by writ, and took his seat accordingly; and in the 13th HENRY III. Nicholas Le Petit, Lord of Dunboyne and Molyngar, was summoned to attend the King, with twenty-two others, the great barons of Ireland, 1239. Sir Thomas Botiler, Lord of Dunboyne, was slain, to the great loss of the kingdom, in 1329, leaving a son, PETER, or PEARCE BUTLER, Lord of Dunboyne, who obtained a grant, 32nd EDWARD III., of the manor of Grenagh, in the county of Kilkenny, and d. leaving three sons, I. THOMAS, summoned to Parliament, 1372 and 1377; d. s. p.; II. WILLIAM, Lord of Dunboyne and Molyngar, whose only son and heir, James, seneschal of Tipperary, d. n. p. unm.; III. JAMES BUTLER, Baron of Dunboyne, who d. in 1445, leaving by his wife Morina Brien, a son, EDMOND BUTLER, Baron of Dunboyne; in whose time the estates and dignities, which had been seized into the hands of the crown during the wars of the Roses, were restored by an act of parliament passed at Trim, 11th and 12th EDWARD IV., whereby this EDMOND, styled EDMOND-FITZ-JAMES LE BOTILER, was confirmed in all the titles, dignities, and estates of his ancestors; and he obtained several large grants from the crown in consideration of his great services in the Irish wars. Lineage.

This family, which derived its surname from the Barony of Cochrane, co. Renfrew, is of great antiquity in North Britain; and under the name of BLAIR, was of baronial rank many centuries previously to its attaining the honour of the peerage.

WARDEN DE COCHRANE, in the reign of ALEXANDER III., was witness to the grant made by Dungal, the son of Swaine, to Walter Cumming, Earl of Monteith, of sundry lands in the co. of Argyle; and his successor,

WILLIAM DE COCHRANE, performed homage to EDWARD I. From this person descended,

WILLIAM DE COCHRANE, who erected, from the foundation, the ancient seat of Cochrane, and ornamented it with extensive plantations. This gentleman left by his wife, Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Montgomery, of Skelmoray, co. Ayr, an only dau.,

ELIZABETH COCHRANE, who m. Alexander, younger son of John Blair, of that ilk (for pedigree of BLAIR of Blair, see BURKE'S Landed Gentry), which

ALEXANDER BLAIR assumed the surname and arms of COCHRANE. Of this marriage there were seven sons and three daus. The eldest son,

SIR JOHN COCHRANE, a col. in the army of CHARLES I., dying without issue, was s. by his brother,

SIR WILLIAM COCHRANE, Kut. of Cowdon, who was elevated to the peerage, 27 Dec. 1647, as Baron Cochrane, of Dunonald; and advanced, 12 May, 1669, to the dignity of EARL OF DUNDONALD; being at the same time created Lord Cochrane, of Paisley and Ochiltree, with remainder, in default of male issue, to the eldest of his heirs female, without division, who should bear or assume the name and arms of Cochrane, and in failure, to his heirs-general. Lineage.

This is one of the few families in the Irish peerage which is of Celtic origin. Its ancestors, Chiefs of the Clan of Ily-Hearnan, were seated at a very early period in a barony of the co. of Clare, which derived its name of Inchiquin from them. They were of the same stock as the O'Briens, and descended from CORMAC CAS, son of OLLLOLL O'CUR, Monarch of Ireland at the opening of the 3rd century. O'Ferrall's Linea Antiqua gives a detailed pedigree of the O'Quins of Munster, deducing from three sons of DEADHA, viz., CONN MOR, MOROCH, and FLAHERTY, the three families of O'QUIN, O'DEA, and O'ROAN. A very curious and interesting letter from THADY QUIN, Esq., of Adare, J.P. temp. JAMES II., still in the possession of the Earl of Dunraven, refers to this Celtic descent, and carries up the pedigree to DONOCH QUIN, son of James Quin, of Kilmallock, and nephew of Dr. John Coyn, or Quin, Bishop of Limerick, who was, according to Ware, preferred temp. HENRY VIII. to that see, but being blind and infirm, resigned 9 April, 1551. Lineage.

The family of DALY, or O'DALY, is of very ancient origin, deducing its descent from Nial Naogiallach (Nial of the nine hostages), monarch of Ireland in the 4th century, who was also common ancestor of the O'NEILS of Tyrone, and O'DONNELLS of Tyrconnel, from whom the pedigree of this family is lineally traced in the Herald's office. Dalagh was 10th in descent from Nial, whence the name Daly, and from him also the O'Donells are sometimes styled by the old Irish annalists, "Siol na Dalagh," or the clan of Daly. Of these descendants, there were several kings of Meath, and from thence a branch removed into Thomond, and afterwards into Connaught.

Lineage.

This and the noble house of FINGALL claim a common ancestor in

SIR CHRISTOPHER PLUNKETT, Knt., who was deputy-governor of Ireland, under Sir Thomas Stanley, lord-deputy in 1432, and subsequently under Richard, Duke of York. He m. Joan, dau. and sole heir of Sir Lucas Cusack, Knt., Lord of Killeen, by whom he had, with other children, JOHN, ancestor of the Earl of Fingall, who inherited the lordship of Killeen; and

CHRISTOPHER, of Dunsany, who was created Baron, by writ, 17th HENRY VI. His lordship m. Anne, dau. and heir of Richard Fitzgerald, of Ballysolan, co. Kildare, younger son of Maurice, 3rd Earl of Kildare, by whom he had four sons, and was s. by the eldest,

RICHARD, 2nd Baron, who m. Joan, dau. of Sir Rowland Fitz Eustace, lord-treasurer of Ireland in 1471, and lord-high-chancellor in 1474; and was s. by his only son,

JOHN, 3rd Baron, K.G. His lordship m. Catherine, dau. of Hussey, feudal baron of Galtrim, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, 4th Baron. This nobleman was slain by the rebel O'Connor, in 1521, and was s. by his son (by Anne, dau. and heir of Philip Birmingham),

ROBERT, 5th Baron, who was one of the peers of the parliament held at Dublin in 1541, when he was ranked immediately after his kinsman, Lord Killeen. His lordship m. 1st, Eleanor, youngest dau. of Sir William Darcy, Knt., of Platten, vice-treasurer of Ireland, by whom he had four sons and nine daus. He m. 2ndly, Genet, dau. of William Sarsfield, alderman of Dublin,

PATRICK, 9th baron, who received a patent of confirmation from JAMES I. of the several castles of Dunsany, Corbally, &c. His lordship was subsequently summoned to parliament, 1st CHARLES I., and suffered considerably in the cause of that unfortunate prince. A short time before the year 1641, the lords-justices had supplied the Lords of the Pale with arms, but suddenly recalled them, which occasioned much discontent among the catholic lords, who, having assembled, appointed Lord Dunsany to assure the justices of their attachment and loyalty, and of their readiness to co-operate in every measure that could be conducive to the peace of the country. The lords-justices, however, took no further notice of this proffered service than by confining his lordship in the castle of Dublin, where he remained for several years; but on the restoration of CHARLES II. he again took his seat in the House of Lords, and continued to sit until 1666. His lordship m. Jane, dau. of Sir Thomas Henegage, of Haynton, co. Lincoln, and was s. at his decease by his grandson,

RANDALL, 11th baron. This nobleman, adhering to the falling fortunes of JAMES II., was outlawed in 1691; but being included in the treaty of Limerick, his estates were restored; neglecting, however, the forms necessary to re-establish himself in the privileges of the peerage, neither his lordship nor his immediate descendants had a seat in the House of Lords. He m. 1st, Anne, relict of Theobald, 1st Earl of Carlingford, and dau. of Sir William Pershall, but by that lady had no issue. He m. 2ndly, 1711, Bridget, only dau. of Richard Fleming, Esq. of Stahalmock, co. Meath (by his 1st wife); and dying 16 March, 1735, left an only son, Kildare, M.P. for that shire (see BERKE'S Commoners), and had (with two daus., Bridget, wife of Hugh McGuire, Esq. of Kelston; and Rose, of the Marquess de Carondelet) an only son, his successor, in 1781.

Mrs. Roche m. 2ndly, 22 July, 1822, Admiral Ryder Burton, R.N., K.C.H., son of the late Bishop of Killala, and by him had, Francis-Augustus-Phunket Burton, col. Lineage.

The very ancient family of Tollemache claims Saxon descent, and the name is said to be a corruption of the word "tollnack," tolling of the bell; the Tollemaches having flourished with the greatest honour, in the co. of Suffolk, since the first arrival of the Saxons in England, a period of more than thirteen centuries.

TOLLEMACHE, Lord of Bentley, in Suffolk, and Stoke-Tollemache, co. Oxford, lived in the 9th century; and upon the old manor house at Bentley appeared the following inscription:—

"Before the Normans into England came,
Bentley was my seat, and Tollemache was my name."

HUGH DE TOLLEMACHE subscribed the charter sans date (about the reign of King STEPHEN), made by John de St. John to Eve, the first abbess of Godstow, in Oxfordshire. This Hugh, in his old age, assumed the cowl at Gloucester, and bestowed upon that monastery a moiety of the town of Hampton, which his son, Peter, confirmed, in the time of the Abbot Hamblin. The descendant of Peter,

SIR HUGH DE TOLLEMACHE, in the 25th of EDWARD I., held of the crown the manor of Bentley, and the fourth part of the village of Aketon, by knight's service. In the 29th of the same monarch,

WILLIAM and JOHN TOLLEMACHE had summons to attend the king at Berwick-upon-Tweed, previous to his expedition into Scotland. This John took the black cross, and his arms are now remaining in the minster at York.

SIR LIONEL TOLLEMACHE, of Bentley, flourished in the reigns of HENRY VI. and EDWARD IV., and was a personage of great influence and authority. He m. the heir of Helmingham, in Suffolk, and by that alliance acquired the inheritance. His son, John, was father of

LIONEL TOLLEMACHE, who was sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk in 1512; and in 1546, obtained from HENRY VIII. grants of the manor of Wansden, with the rectory thereof; the manor and rectory of Le Church Hey; the manors of Bury-Hall Willows and Overhall, to hold of the crown by knight's service. This gentleman was s. by his son,

SIR LIONEL TOLLEMACHE, of Helmingham, high-sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk in 1567. In 1561, Queen ELIZABETH honoured Helmingham with her presence, and remained there from the 14th to the 18th Aug. inclusive, being most hospitably and sumptuously entertained. During her majesty's visit she stood sponsor to Sir Lionel's son, and presented the child's mother with her lute, which is still preserved at Helmingham Hall, co. Suffolk, the seat of John Tollemache, Esq., M.P. Lady Tollemache was dau. of Sir Richard Wentworth, of Nettlested. Sir Lionel was s. by his son,

Lineage.

The elder branch of this family emigrated from Kent in the reign of JAMES I., and was amongst the earliest settlers in the co. of Armagh. One of its descendants, Captain John East, joined the adventurers under Penn and Venables, for the conquest of Jamaica, and, with other officers engaged in that enterprise, obtained, soon after the Restoration, a grant, under patent from the crown, of an estate in Leganea, in the parish of St. Andrew's, in that island, which estate was afterwards considerably augmented by the purchase of other properties, and has remained ever since in the family, having come by lineal descent to the present baronet. The noted Hortus Eastensis, of which Bryan Edwards, in his History of Jamaica, has given a catalogue, was founded by a member of the East family, and was purchased some years since of the baronet by the assembly of Jamaica, for a public horticultural institution; another member of this family held office in the court of JAMES I., by whom he was much favoured; and whilst in this service, on some suggestion, it is said, of his majesty, who supposed him to be allied to the family of Molena, changed the spelling of the name from EAST to ESTE; and a third, a clergyman of the established church, having accompanied Primate Boulter to Ireland, in 1724, there settled, and became archdeacon of Armagh, and subsequently bishop of Ossory. A third branch settled in Berkshire, of which was Sir William East, of Hall Place, Berks, created a Baronet in 1766. (See the next article.) The first named,

In early life, Sir James sat in parliament for Great Bedwin, and was the author (in conjunction with the late Mr. Durnford) of the celebrated Term Reports, and EAST'S Reports, as well as of another legal work, entitled Pleas of the Crown. EDMONSTONE.

EDMONSTONE, SIR ARCHIBALD, of Duntreath, co. Stirling, b. 12 March, 1795; s. as 3rd bart., upon the demise of his father, 1 April, 1821; m. 10 Oct. 1832, his cousin-german, Emma, dau. of Randle Wilbraham, Esq. of Rode Hall, co. Chester.

Lineage.

The origin of the name of EDMONSTONE is Edmundus, with the adjunct of town (a baronial residence), the elder branch of the family having retained the spelling of Edmondstone till its extinction. Who this EDMONDUS was is uncertain, but he may not improbably have been a scion of the great family of Seton, whose possessions were contiguous, as the arms of Edmondstone and Seton are the same.

The first notice of the name is of HENRICUS DE EDMONDISTON, who was proprietor of the lands of Edmondstone, near Edinburgh, A.D. 1248. The next appearance of the name is about one hundred years later, when JOHN DE EDMONDISTON is recorded as the son of HENRY.

This Sir JOHN was a person of note, and was much employed in missions to England during the unfortunate reign of DAVID II. He was s. by a son of the same name, who was much in favour likewise with ROBERT II, the first of the Stuarts, and m. his dau., Isabella, widow of James, Earl of Douglas and Marr, killed at Otterbourne. From this marriage descended the elder branch of EDMONISTOUNE of Edmondstone and Elenham, and subsequently of Corehouse, co. Lanark, which became extinct in the male line about one hundred years ago. (Refer to Landed Gentry; Art. CRANSTOUN of Corehouse.)

The present family are descended by regular male descent from SIR ARCHIBALD, who was probably younger son of the 1st Sir JOHN. His son SIR WILLIAM EDMONSTONE, of Culloden, m. Mary, dau. of King ROBERT III., who had been previously m. 1st to the Earl of Angus, and afterwards to the predecessors of the Earls of Cassilis and Montrose. To this lady and her husband, Sir William, the lands of Duntreath were granted, which place has ever since been the chief seat of the family. The charter of this grant bears date in 1445.

Sir William was s. by his son, of the same name, who took an active part during the disturbed reign of JAMES III., and who was more than once one of the Lords of Articles, or Standing Committee of the Scottish parliament. He m. Matilda, granddau. of the last Regent, Duke of Albany, and sister of the celebrated Chancellor, Lord Avondale.

SIR WILLIAM was s. by his son, SIR ARCHIBALD, who again was s. by his son, SIR WILLIAM, who fell with the flower of the Scottish nobility, at the disastrous battle of Flodden. His son, SIR WILLIAM, m. Lady Agnes Stewart, dau. to the Earl of Lennox, and was s. by John Campbell, younger son of the Earl of Argyle, who was beheaded in 1685, and sister of John, 4th Duke of Argyll. He was s. by his eldest son,

Lord Howard, of Effingham, d. 21 Jan. 1573, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHARLES, 2nd baron, who was installed a knight of the Garter, 24 April, 1574; and having been appointed, by Queen ELIZABETH, commander-in-chief of the fleet fitted out to oppose the Spanish armada in 1588, his lordship (a Roman Catholic) had the high honour of preserving the shores of his country inviolable, by dispersing and totally destroying that powerful armament. On the 22 Oct. 1596, Lord Howard was created EARL OF NOTTINGHAM, and after the accession of JAMES I. (at whose coronation he officiated as lord high steward of England), his lordship was engaged in several diplomatic missions of importance. The earl m. 1st, Catharine, dau. of Henry Cary, Lord Hunsdon, by whom he had two sons and three daus.; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of James Stewart, Earl of Murray, by whom he had two sons. Fuller, in his quaint manner, thus speaks of this gallant and eminent personage:

"An hearty gentleman, and cordial to his sovereign, of a most proper person, one reason why Queen ELIZABETH (who, though she did not value a jewel by, valued it the more for, a fair case) reflected so much on him.

"His service in the 88th is notoriously known, when, at the first news of the Spanish approach, he towed at a cable with his own hands, to draw out the harbour-bound ships into the sea. I dare boldly say, he drew more, though not by his person, by his presence and example, than any ten in the place. True it is, he was no deep seaman (not to be expected from one of his extraction), but had skill enough to know those who had more skill than himself, and to follow their instructions; and would not starve the queen's service by feeding his own sturdy wilfulness, but was ruled by the experienced in sea-matters, the queen having a navy of Ok, and an admiral of Osier."

His lordship d. at the advanced age of 87, 14 Dec. 1624, and was s. by his 2nd but eldest surviving son,

He d. 30 March, 1694, and was s. by his 2nd, but eldest surviving son,

Thomas, ancestor of the PERCEVALS of Royton, in Lancashire, and of the PERCEVALS of the co. of Wexford.

The 2nd son,

GEORGE PERCEVAL, Esq., Lord of Tykenham, &c., m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Edward Bamfylde, of Poltimore, in Devon; and dying about 1599, left, with a dau., Elizabeth, m. to Richard Gilbert, Esq., a son.

RICHARD PERCEVAL. The life of this ultimately successful person was chequered and eventful in no ordinary degree. He was b. in 1550, and educated at St. Paul's School, then the most celebrated seminary in England, whence he was sent to Lincoln's-Inn, to acquire some general idea of the laws, esteemed, in those days, an accomplishment of the highest description. In both his progress was brilliant, but his conduct dissipated and disorderly, so much so indeed, that he incurred the displeasure of his father, who, upon his marriage with Joan, dau. of Henry Young, Esq. of Buckorn Weston, co. Dorset, entirely abandoned him, observing, that as he had ruined himself by his riots, he might recover himself by his wits. Thus unnaturally cast off, Mr. Perceval found means, by the credit of his reversionary estates, and the assistance of his friends, to maintain himself several years, during which time he had three sons and two daus.: but at length, through a failure of resources, and the increasing expenses of his family, he was obliged to quit the kingdom, and travelled into Spain, where he remained about four years. Being then informed of his wife's decease, he returned to England, hoping, now that the principal cause of his father's displeasure had been removed, he might again recover his good opinion; but that hope proving delusive, his relations, and particularly Roger Cave, Esq., of Stamford, who had married the Lord-Treasurer Burghley's sister, engaged on his side, and, by that gentleman's means, he contracted an acquaintance with Lord Burghley, who, being pleased with his talents, and moved by his misfortunes, and having endeavoured in vain to procure a reconciliation with his father, determined to promote his fortune by employing him in the management of those state affairs which required the greatest trust and secrecy. Thus he continued till the year 1586, when, whilst the court of Spain was meditating the armada, an English ship succeeded in taking from a Spanish vessel letters from the Low Countries, which, by intimations from abroad, were known to contain the secret. Those letters being brought to Lord Burghley, were laid by his lordship before Queen ELIZABETH in council; but the contents being in cipher, the lord-treasurer proposed that the papers should be entrusted to this Richard Perceval, who returned them the next day after they were placed in his hand to her majesty in person, deciphered, translated, and fairly transcribed in Spanish, Latin, and English. This was the first certain intelligence of the Spanish design, and Perceval was admitted instantly into the queen's favour, and from that moment his road to honour and fortune was open and unimpeded. Having subsequently filled the office of secretary of the Court of Wards in England, for several years, he was nominated, in 1616, registrar of the Court of Wards in Ireland, where, after obtaining considerable landed property, he d. in 1620, and was s. by his son (by his 2nd wife, Alice, dau. of John Sherman, Esq. of Ottery St. Mary's, co. She was ancestress to the Earls of Winton, and the Johnstones, baronets of Westerhall.

II. MARY, wife, 1st, of Sir Neil Campbell, of Lechove, by whom she was ancestress to the House of Argyll; 2nd, of Sir Alexander Frazer, high chamberlain of Scotland.

III. CHRISTIAN, wife, 1st, of Gratney, Earl of Mar; 2nd, of Sir Christopher Seton; 3rd, of Sir Andrew Moray, of Bothwell.

IV. MATILDA, wife of Hugh, Earl of Ross.

The three other daughters are said to have married into the families of Carlyle, Dishington, and Brechin.

ROBERT BRUCE, the eldest son, was the glorious restorer of the Scottish monarchy. He became Earl of Carrick on his father's resignation, in 1292. He asserted his claim to the Scottish crown, and ascended the throne of his ancestors, being crowned at Scone, in 1306. His power and the liberties of his country were finally vindicated by the splendid victory of Bannockburn, in 1314. He d. in June, 1329, in the 55th year of his age. King ROBERT I. m. 1st, Isabella, dau. of Donald, 10th Earl of Mar, by whom he had an only dau., PRINCESS MARGORY, his eldest co-heir, who, failing her brother, was heir of the Scottish crown. She was wife of Walter, Lord High Steward of Scotland, by whom she had issue, ROBERT, who afterwards ascended the throne of Scotland as King ROBERT II., and who was ancestor of the long line of STUART kings; his heirs-general are the DUKE OF MODENA, the DUKE OF PARMA, and the KING OF NAPLES. King ROBERT I. m. 2ndly, Elizabeth de Burgo, dau. of Richard, 2nd Earl of Ulster, by whom he had issue a son, who s. him as King DAVID II.; and two daus.,

The Princess MARGARET, his junior co-heir. She was wife of William, 4th earl of Sutherland. Her descendant and representative is GEORGE, 2nd DUKE OF SUTHERLAND, who is junior co-heir general of King ROBERT BRUCE.

The Princess MATILDA, his junior co-heir, wife of Thomas de Izac, by whom she had a dau., JOANNA DE IZAC, the wife of John de Ergadia, lord of Lorn, by whom she had two daus., who transmitted to their descendants and representatives the junior coheirship of King ROBERT BRUCE. The eldest dau., ISABELLA DE ERGADIA, was wife of John Stewart, of Innerneath, who in her right became Lord of Lorn. She was ancestress to the STEWARDS, LORDS OF LORN, and the STEWARDS, EARLS OF ATHOL. The younger dau., JANET DE ERGADIA, was wife of Robert Stewart, brother of John Stewart, of Innerneath. She was ancestress of the STEWARDS OF ROSSYTHE, in the county of Fife, and of the STEWARDS OF CRAIGIE HALL, afterwards of NEW HALLS, in the county of Linlithgow.

King ROBERT had also a dau., who is believed to have been illegitimate, who was wife of Sir Walter Oliphant, of Aberdalgy, the ancestor of the Lords Oliphant. King Robert was s. in 1329 by his only son,

DAVID II., king of Scotland, who was crowned at Scone, in 1331. He had no issue by either of his wives—the Princess Joanna of England, dau. of EDWARD II., or Margaret de Logie, and he closed his inglorious reign in 1371, in the forty-seventh year of his age. With him and his cousin, Sir John Bruce, of Exton, ended the royal male line of Bruce, which continued to be represented as heirs-general by the STUART KINGS OF SCOTLAND, the EARLS OF SUTHERLAND, the STEWARTS OF LORN, the STEWARTS OF ROSSYTHE, and (of the junior branch) the HARRINGTONS OF EXTON.

But the great House of Bruce continued to be perpetuated in the male line by a most distinguished family of baronial rank, which has been prolific of high and important branches. The family of Bruce of Clackmannan, from which all the principal houses of the name in Scotland are descended, claims to be of the same stock with the ancient Lords of Annandale and of Skelton, and this claim was distinctly admitted by the head of the family, King DAVID II., in a charter to Sir Robert Bruce, the son of THOMAS BRUCE, of the castle and manor of Clackmannan, together with the lands of Wester Kennet, Gartlet, &c., &c., dated 9th Dec., 1359. In this charter, the king designates Sir Robert Bruce thus: "Dilecto et fideli consanguineo Svo Roberto de Bruis." Sir Robert Bruce, the first of Clackmannan, d. in 1390, leaving issue by his wife, Isabel, dau. of Sir Robert Stewart, of Rossythe.

III. DAVID, of Green, whose son ARCHIBALD m. his kinswoman, MARGARET BRUCE, heiress of Kennet, and had a son, ROBERT BRUCE, Esq. of Kennet. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Alexander Gall, of Maw, co. Upon his return, he was created a peer of Scotland, 2 Feb. 1601-2, as Baron Bruce, of Kinloss, in the co. of Elgin. Accompanying King JAMES into England, on his accession, he was sworn of the new monarch's privy-council, and constituted master of the rolls for life, when he resigned the office of lord of session. * At the great contest for Westminster, in 1750, Mr. Murray took an active part in favour of the anti-ministerial candidate, Peter Lech, high-bailiff of Westminster, preferred to the House of Commons a complaint, 28 Jan. 1751, that Mr. Murray, on the 15th of the previous May, encouraged a mob to proceed to acts of violence against him; and to break down the doors of the vestry, saying, with imprecations, "Will nobody knock the dog down? Will nobody kill the dog?"

prorogation of parliament, Mr. Murray was, of course, liberated; and proceeded, accompanied by Lord Carpenter and Sir George Vandepuit, in his coach, and the sheriffs of London in a chariot, preceded by a great concourse of people, from Newgate to Lord Elbank's house in Henrietta-street, a standard being carried before him, inscribed, "Murray and Liberty." Crillon, despairing of success, endeavoured to corrupt the gallant Scot, and offered him the sum of one million sterling for the surrender of the fortress. Indignant at the attempt, General Murray immediately addressed the following letter to the duke;—

"Port St. Philip, 16 Oct. 1781.

"When your brave ancestor was desired by his sovereign to assassinate the Duke de Guise, he returned the answer which you should have done, when you were charged to assassinate the character of a man whose birth is as illustrious as your own, or that of the Duc de Guise. I can have no further communication with you but in arms. If you have any humanity, pray send clothing for your unfortunate prisoners in my possession; leave it at a distance, to be taken up for them, because I will admit of no contact for the future but such as is hostile to the most inveterate degree."

To this the Duke replied;—"Your letter restores each of us to our places; it confirms me in the high opinion I have always had of you. I accept your last proposal with pleasure."

The oldest dau., LOUISA, was m. to Granville Leveson, 1st Marquess of Stafford. His grace d. 11 Jan. 1745, and was s. by his son, JOHN, 2nd duke, b. 29 April, 1727, at whose decease, unm.

8 Mar. 1748, the family honours devolved upon his brother,

FRANCIS, 3rd duke, b. 21 May, 1736. This nobleman justly acquired the reputation of being the great founder of inland navigation in this country, by his enterprising speculation in the celebrated canal which bears his name, and which has realized a princely revenue for his successors. The mighty and prosperous scheme originated thus: the duke's father, Scroope, the first duke, had obtained, in 1732, an act of parliament, authorizing him to dig a canal from Worsley, one of his estates, containing very valuable coal mines, to Manchester, but the difficulties in the way of executing it deterred him from the attempt. His son, Francis, by the death of his elder brother, John, the second duke, coming into possession of the family estates, resolved to complete the plan of his father, and succeeded, by the help of Brindley, a self-taught man of remarkable genius, to effect his object. He, the duke, to better carry out his plan, limited his personal expenses to £400 a-year, and devoted all the rest of his large income to the undertaking. The canal was completed in five years, after the expenditure of immense sums, and the duke was thus enabled to supply Manchester and the neighbouring towns with coal; he afterwards extended the canal to the Mersey, so as to bring Liverpool into the line of his navigation. The success of his undertaking was so vast that canals were now projected in every direction, and Brindley formed the grand idea of establishing a water communication between London, Bristol, Liverpool, and Hull. This canal was finished in 1777. The Duke of Bridgewater was too absorbed in his gigantic enterprise to take any active part in politics, but he was a friend to the Pitt administration, and largely contributed to the Loyalty Loan. The duke, when in London, was too occupied to even keep house, and he paid an annuity to a friend, Mr. Carvill, that his grace, whenever not otherwise engaged, and his intimate friends, might have their meals at Mr. Carvill's table. His grace d. unm. 8 March, 1803, when the dukedom and marquessate expired, but the earldom and minor titles reverted to his cousin,

GENERAL JOHN-WILLIAM EGERTON, 7th Earl, son of the Right Reverend John, Lord Bishop of Durham, grandson of Dr. Henry Egerton, Lord Bishop of Hereford, and grand-nephew of the 1st duke. His lordship's mother was Anna-Sophia, dau. and co-heiress of Henry Grey, Duke of Kent, which dukedom expired with his grace, in 1750. This nobleman (Lord Bridgewater), a person of singular eccentricity, was b. 13 April, 1753, and entering into the army, rose to the rank of major-general, 25 Feb. 1795; and of lieutenant-general, 1 Jan. 1801. His lordship m. 14 Jan. 1783, Charlotte-Catherine-Anne, only dau. and heiress of Samuel Haynes, Esq.; but dying s. p. 21 Oct. 1823, the family honours devolved upon his only brother, FRANCIS-HENRY, 8th earl, with whom the earldom expired. It was this 8th Earl who left £8,000 for the writing and publishing of the celebrated essays, known as the Bridgewater Treatises.

The last and celebrated Duke of Bridgewater, who amassed immense wealth, devised most of his houses and pictures (the latter valued at £150,000) to his nephew, George Granville, Marquess of Stafford, 1st Duke of Sutherland (see that title), with reversion to his grace's 2nd son,

His lordship is the 22nd high-constable; and as such is, by birth, the first subject in Scotland after the blood royal, having a right to take place of every hereditary honour, which was allowed to his lordship's father on the visit of GEORGE IV. to North Britain. He served in the Crimea, and was severely wounded at the Alma.

Lineage.

The traditional origin of the noble house of HAY is thus related:—In the reign of KENNETH III., anno 980, the Danes, who had invaded Scotland, having prevailed at the battle of Loncarty, near Perth, were pursuing the flying Scots from the field, when a countryman, with his two sons, appeared in a narrow pass, through which the vanquished were hurrying, and impeded for a moment their flight. "What!" said the rustic, "had you rather be slaughtered by your merciless foes, than die honourably in the field? Come, rally, rally!" and he headed the fugitives, brandishing his ploughshare, and crying out that help was at hand; the Danes, believing that a fresh army was falling upon them, fled in confusion, and the Scots thus recovered the laurels which they had lost, and freed their country from servitude. The battle being won, the old man, afterwards known by the name of Hay, was brought to the king, who, assembling a parliament at Seone, gave to the said Hay and his sons, as a just reward for their valour, so much land on the river Fay, in the district of Gowrie, as a falcon from a man's hand flew over till it settled; which being six miles in length, was afterwards called Erroll; and the king being desirous to elevate Hay and his sons from their humble rank in life to the order of nobility, his majesty assigned them a coat of arms, which was, Argent, three escutcheons, gules, to intimate that the father and two sons had been the three fortunate shields of Scotland. So much for tradition. But the fertile fact is, that the noble houses of Tweeddale and Erroll claim a common progenitor in

WILLIAM DE HAYA, who obtained a grant of the lands of Erroll from WILLIAM the Lion, and was king's butler in that monarch's reign. He m. Juliana, dau. of Ranulph de Soulis, Lord of Liddesdale, and had two sons, WILLIAM, his heir; and Robert, ancestor of the house of Tweeddale. The elder son,

SIR WILLIAM DE HAYA, was father of

GILBERT, his heir.
WILLIAM, from whom spring the HAYS of Leys, of Pitfour, Seggiden, &c. (See BURKE'S Landed Gentry.)

From the elder son, GILBERT, descended
SIR GILBERT DE HAY, Lord of Erroll, who adhering to ROBERT I., obtained from that prince a grant of divers crown lands, and was created by charter, dated 12 Nov. 1315, HIGH CONSTABLE of SCOTLAND, to himself and his heirs for ever. The great-great-grandson and lineal descendant of the constable,

WILLIAM HAY, of Erroll, constable of Scotland, was elevated to the peerage, 17 March, 1452-3, as EARL of ERROLL. His lordship m. Beatrix Douglas, dau. of James, 3rd Lord Dalkeith, and dying in 1463, was s. by his elder son

NICHOLAS, 2nd earl, who d. without issue in 1470, when the honours devolved upon his brother,

This nobleman officiated as constable of Scotland at the coronation of GEORGE III. in 1761, and neglecting, by accident, to pull off his cap when the king entered, he apologized for his negligence in the most respectful manner; but his majesty entreated him to be covered, for he looked on his presence at the solemnity as a very particular honour. ESMONDE.

ESMONDE, THE RIGHT HON. SIR THOMAS, Bart. of Ballynastra, co. Wexford, P.C., b. 10 Dec. 1786; s. his uncle, as 5th bart., 19 Dec. 1803; m. 1st, Mary, only dau. of E. Payne, Esq., but by her (who d. 7 March, 1840) had no issue; and 2ndly, 16 April, 1856, Sophia-Maria, widow of the late Hamilton Knox Grogan-Morgan, Esq. of Johnstown Castle, and dau. of the late E. Rowe, Esq. of Ballycross, co. Wexford, which lady d. 22 Nov. 1867.

Lineage.

This family is of very ancient establishment in the co. of Wexford, where we find John Esmond was consecrated Bishop of Ferns about the middle of the 14th century. The immediate founder of the present house,

JOHN ESMONDE, Esq. of Johnstown, co. Wexford, m. Isabel, dau. of Thomas Rosseter, Esq. of Rathmacknee Castle, and left a son, LAURENCE ESMONDE, Esq. of Johnstown. This gentleman m. Eleanor, dau. of Walter Walsh, of The Mountains, by whom he had two sons, and was s. by the elder.

WILLIAM ESMONDE, Esq., who m. Margaret, dau. of Michael Furlong, Esq. of Horetown, and had, with seven daus., four sons, viz.,

ROBERT, living in 1618, who continued the line of Johnstown, which became EXTINCT a few years since in the male line.

LAURENCE, of whom presently. James. Patrick. The 2nd son,

SIR LAURENCE ESMONDE, abandoning the religious creed of his ancestors, declared himself a partisan of ELIZABETH, and a convert to Protestantism. In 1601-2 he commanded a troop of 150 foot and horse in her Majesty's service, was knighted by Sir Henry Sydney the viceroy, and served in Connaught in the same corps d'armée, on the expeditions of the Irish chieftains, Morough-ni-doe O'Flaherty, Dynast of West Connaught, and Sir Theobald Bourke, 1st Viscount Mayo, who, to preserve their estates, had made their submission a short time previously to the lord-deputy, and accepted commands in the Queen's service. Sir Laurence Esmonde's zeal and activity in his military operations procured for him in an especial degree the favour of the court, and his ambition increasing with his fortune, he was raised to the peerage, in 1622 (being at the time major-general of all the king's forces in Ireland, and governor of Duncannon Fort), as LORD ESMONDE, Baron of Limerick, co. Wexford. During one of his campaigns in Connaught, having fallen in love with the beautiful sister of O'Flaherty, he m. her, and had one son, THOMAS. It happened, however, that Lady Esmonde, a devout Roman Catholic, fearing that her child might be brought up a Protestant, formed the resolution of carrying off the infant by stealth, and returning to her family in Connaught. This act of maternal devotion appears to have been not at all disagreeable to Sir Laurence, as affording him a pretext for casting suspicion on the legality of his union, that of a Protestant with a Catholic: yet, without resorting to legal measures to annul the marriage in due form, he some time after m. Elizabeth, 2nd dau. of the Hon. Walter Butler, 4th son of James, 9th Earl of Ormonde, but by her had no issue. His lordship d. 26 March, 1646, bequeathing all his extensive estates to his only son,

I. SIR THOMAS ESMONDE, 1st baronet. The severity and singularity of his case created considerable interest; and there is scarce a doubt that, but for the melancholy state of civil war, usurpation, and destruction of property, at that period, upon legal investigation into the matter and the accompanying circumstances, the conduct of Lord Esmonde towards his lady, and the legality of his second marriage (his first undivoreed wife still living), Sir Thomas Esmonde's right of succession to his father's peerage could not fail to have been acknowledged. Before, however, that could have taken place, Sir Thomas died, and his successor had to occupy himself with entering into possession of his grandfather's property. Sir Thomas Esmonde, as already noticed, was reared and educated with his maternal relations; and upon his uncle being raised in the peerage to the dignity of Viscount Bourke, of Mayo, by privy-seal, dated at Westminster, 8 Feb. 1626, and by patent, 21 June, 1627, Sir Thomas, who had already been knighted for his eminent services in the cause of royalty, as general of horse in the armies of CHARLES I. was created, through Lord Mayo's influence, a few months later (28 Jan. 1628), a BARONET OF IRELAND. Sir Thomas m. Ellis, widow of Thomas Butler, 4th Lord Cahir, and dau. of Sir John Fitzgerald, of Dromana, co. Waterford (of the line of Desmonde), and had issue,

The baron was s. in 1710, by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 6th baron. This nobleman inherited from his mother a splendid fortune, consisting of several manors in Kent, estates in the Isle of Wight, and a tract of land in Virginia, called the Northern Neck, comprised within the boundaries of the rivers Potomack and Rappahannock, containing, by estimation, 5,700,000 acres. From his father he inherited Denton Hall and other property in Yorkshire, but he was obliged by his mother and grandmother to dispose of those, in order to redeem the Colepepper manors. His lordship had a commission in the horse-guards, but visiting his American estates about the year 1739, he was so captivated with the soil, climate, and beauties of Virginia, that he resolved to spend the remainder of his life there; and he soon after erected two mansions, Belvoir and Greenway Court, where he continued ever afterwards to reside in a state of baronial hospitality. His dress was plain and simple, his manners modest and unaffected, and his style of living magnificent. Such was his generosity, that he gave up his English estates to his brother Robert, and the surplus of his American income was distributed among his poor neighbours. His principal amusement was hunting; and after the chase he was wont to invite the whole field to partake his hospitality. He had been educated in revolutionary principles, and had imbibed high notions of republican liberty. He was lieutenant and custos rotularum of Frederick County, and presided at the provincial courts of Winchester (U.S.), where, during the session, he kept an open table. His lordship d. unm., at Greenway Court, in 1782, when the title devolved upon his only surviving brother,

In 1759 he was present at the taking of Quebec under General Wolfe, and in the year 1778, when in command of H.M.S. But Captain Fairfax more particularly distinguished himself at the memorable battle of Camperdown, on the 11th Oct. 1797, in which engagement he acted as flag captain to Lord Duncan, on board H.M.S. His lordship was constituted LORD-LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND in 1622, and continued in office seven years. He m. Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Sir Laurence Tanfield, chief-baron of the Exchequer, and had issue,

LUCIUS, his successor.

Lawrence, killed fighting under Sir Charles Coote, when he defeated the Irish at Swords, in 1642.

Anne, m. to James, 2nd Earl of Ilonic.

Amongst the papers of the viscount, who was a man of letters, was found, and printed in 1680, The History of the most unfortunate Prince EDWARD II., with choice political observations on him, and his unhappy favourites, Gaveston and Spencer. His lordship is remarkable for an invention to prevent the counterfeit of his signature—that of artfully concealing within the writing the successive years of his age. He d. in 1633, and was s. by his elder son, LUCIUS, 2nd viscount. This eminent person was born at Burford, about the year 1610, and carried by his father into Ireland, when that nobleman was appointed lord-deputy, in 1622, where he received part of his education at Trinity College, Dublin; he was afterwards of St. John's College, Cambridge. At the age of nineteen, he inherited the fortune of his maternal grandfather, and thus became possessed of a landed estate of about £2000 per annum, with considerable personal property. His lordship, after the decease of his father, retired to his seat at Great Tew, and devoted himself entirely to literature. Previously to the breaking out of the civil wars, he was member of parliament for Newport, and a strenuous opponent of the court; but so soon as actual rebellion commenced, he as strenuously supported the royal cause. He attended the king at Edgehill, at Oxford, and at the siege of Gloucester, but a view of the calamities brought upon his country, and the still greater impending evils, entirely broke down his lordship's spirits, and though no military man, he sought death as a relief in the field of battle. Frequently, when sitting amongst his friends, after a long silence and deep sighs, he would cry aloud with a shrill voice, Peace! declaring himself incapable of living in such a state of perpetual grief and anxiety. This extreme uneasiness seems to have hurried him on to destruction. Putting himself into the first rank of Lord Byron's regiment, at Newbury, 20 Sept. 1643, he received a musket-shot wound, and falling from his horse, his body was not found until the next morning.

"Thus Falkland died, the generous and the just."

Lord Clarendon, speaking of Falkland, says, that he was a person of such prodigious parts of learning and knowledge, and of that inimitable sweetness and delight in conversation, and of so flowing and obliging a humanity and goodness to mankind, and of that primitive simplicity and integrity of life, that, if there were no other brand upon the odious and accursed civil war than that single loss, it must be most infamous to all posterity. His lordship at one time filled the office of secretary of state to CHARLES I. He m. Letitia, dau. of Richard Morrison, Esq. of Tooley Park, co. Leicester, and was s. by his eldest son.

HENRY, 3rd viscount. His lordship, after the Restoration, represented Arundel in parliament, and was nominated lord-lieutenant of the co. Oxford. He was committed to the Tower during the usurpation, upon suspicion of being concerned in Sir George Booth's rising for the restoration of CHARLES II. Lord Falkland was author of The Marriage Night, a comedy. He m. Margaret, dau. of Anthony Hungerford, Esq.; and dying in 1663, was s. by his eldest son,

ANTHONY, 4th viscount. This nobleman filled some high official situations during the reigns of CHARLES II. and WILLIAM III., but incurred the displeasure of the House of Commons, which resolved, 17 Jan. 1693-4, that Viscount Falkland, one of its members, by begging and receiving £2,000 from his majesty, contrary to the ordinary method of issuing and bestowing the king's money, was guilty of a high misdemeanor and breach of trust, and that he be committed to the Tower. His lordship m. Rebecca, dau. of Sir Rowland Lytton, of Knebworth, Herts; and dying in 1694, left issue, a dau., Frances, m. to John Villiers, 1st Earl of Grandison, and a son and successor,

Lineage.

“Roch Castle,” says Fenton, in his Pembrokeshire, “is so called from its peculiar site, a circumstance that probably gave name to the first possessor of it whom we hear of, viz.,

ADAM DE RUPE, who was likewise the founder of Pill Priory. It occupies the south-west extremity of one of those inland rocky ridges with which Pembrokeshire abounds running nearly east and west, and a little to the north of the church of St. Mary de Rupe.”

At what time it was inhabited is uncertain, but it must have been prior to the reign of HENRY VI, about which time the great possessions of the family of De la Roche, the lords of this castle, fell between co-heiresses, one of whom married Lord Ferrers, the other Sir Thomas Longueville, who soon after sold the property. The tradition is, that a former proprietor of the family of De la Roche having been foretold that he should die by the bite of a viper, erected this castle on a rock, at a distance from any growth that might be liable to harbour a noxious creature, and there immured himself for years, but that a viper, concealed in a faggot of wood, happened to be brought in, and was the cause of his death; and on a monument of a crusader in Langwm church, said to be his, they point out, on the military boot of the effigy, an almost effaced thong that winds round the leg, as the representation of the viper.

An “inquisitio post mortem” of the possessions of De la Roche, mentions the castle as then ruinous and deserted. This inquisition was taken after the death of the last male possessor, Thomas de la Roche, so that it is probable it never was inhabited since the days of the Crusader.

ADAM DE RUPE, who accompanied Robert FitzStephen to Ireland, in the year 1196, was a man “of great possessions and power” in Pembrokeshire, founded Pill Priory, built Roch Castle, the church of St. Mary of Rooh, that of Langwm, and many others in the same county. In the last named church is preserved a tomb bearing the effigy of a member of the family, the helmet being surmounted by the head of an eagle as crest, still borne by his descendants. The vast possessions in Pembrokeshire were retained until the reign of HENRY VI., when they fell between co-heiresses, one of whom, Elen, m. Edmond de Ferrers, Lord Ferrers of Chartley, and the other, Elizabeth, Sir George de Longueville, who sold the property.

FERRERS.

FERRERS, EARL (Sir Sewallis-Edward Shirley), Viscount Tamworth, and a baronet, b. 24 Jan. 1847; s. his father, as 10th earl, 13 March, 1859.

Lineage.

The very ancient and honourable family of SHIRLEY has had the good fortune to have been illustrated by an historical narrative, compiled by a distinguished member of its own house. Sir Thomas Shirley, of Botolph's Bridge, composed three distinct MS. histories of the SHIRLEYS, all of which are preserved in the British Museum. From these records it appears that the Shirleys derive descent from SABWALLU OF SEWALLUS DE ETINGDON, whose name (says DUGDALE, in his Antiquities of Warwickshire) argues him to be of the old English stock. He resided at Nether-Etingdon, in the co. Warwick, about the reign of King EDWARD THE CONFESSOR, which place had been the seat of his ancestors, as there is reason to believe, for many generations before that period.

After the CONQUEST, the lordship of Etingdon was given to Henry, Earl of Ferrars, in Normandy, who was one of the principal adventurers with the Norman Duke WILLIAM, and was held under him by this Sewallus, with whose posterity, in the male line, it has continued to the present reign, the late Hon. George Shirley, who d. in 1787, having been owner thereof. This long continuance of ownership is mentioned by DUGDALE, who says, in his Warwickshire, that Etingdon is the only place in the county which could glory in an uninterrupted succession of its owners for so long a space of time.

As appears by Kenilworth Register, Sewallus de Etingdon, before mentioned, founded and endowed the church of Nether-Etingdon. That he was an eminent man, is obvious from his large possessions in the counties of Warwick, Lincoln, Northampton, and Derby, in the time of the CONQUEROR, few being allowed at that change to enjoy more than a part of their estates, and even obliged to hold that portion by military and other services, from their new lords. Therefore, if we may guess of his authority by the extent of his estate, which amounted to seventeen hides of land in this place only, he must have been no less than a Thane in the time of the Saxons, which was the same degree of honour among them as a Baron or Peer of England after the Norman CONQUEST; for, as the learned Selden observes, little more than five hides of land was an estate for some who were so dignified. He d. about 1085 and was s. by his only child,

FULCHER, who d. about 1105, leaving issue,

I. SEWALLUS, his heir.

II. Henry, from whom descended the SHIRLEYS of Ireton, co. Derby, who took the name of IRETON.

III. Fulcher, twice married, but d. s. p.

IV. Nicholas.

V. Robert.

SEWALLUS, the eldest son, d. about 1129, leaving by his 1st wife, Matilda, dau. of Ridel of Halaughton, co. Derby,

I. HENRY, his successor.

II. Fulcher, who held four knights' fees, but d. s. p.

III. Hugh, a priest.

IV. Ralph.

V. Richard.

Having translated his seat from Etingdon to Shirley in Derbyshire, he was the first of the family who called himself DE SHIRLEY. He was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, who held five knights' fees in Derbyshire, of Robert de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, and d. about 1165. He gave the lordship of Ivanbrook to the monks of Bildewas, and was a witness to the foundation charter of Merevale Abbey. He left issue, by Joanna, dau. and heir of John de Clinton, of Essex,

SEWALLUS, his son and heir, who, in 1167, acknowledged himself to hold of William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, those nine knights' fees which Henry his father, and his uncle, sometime held of Earl Robert, grandfather to the said earl. He m. Isabel, dau. and co-heir of Robert Meynell, of Langley-Meynell, co. Derby, by whom he had a dau., Elizabeth, wife of John de Walton, son of Simon, Bishop of Norwich; and a son and heir,

SIR JAMES DE SHIRLEY, who was a knight, and had free warren granted to him in all his demesnes at Shirley, in 1247, and at Etingdon, in 1255. He m. Agnes de Walton, dau. of Simon de Walton, Bishop of Norwich, and had issue by her, Sir Ralph, his successor. He d. about 1278.

SIR RALPH DE SHIRLEY, in the 7th year of EDWARD I., held the manor of Etendon, co. Warwick, of Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, the king's brother, by the service of two knights' fees. In the 25th of the same reign, he had the custodies of the cos. Salop and Stafford, with the castle of Shrewsbury, committed to his charge, and was sheriff of the cos. Derby and Nottingham in the 27th, 28th, and 30th of the same king. In the 3rd EDWARD II., he was constituted one of the justices of the co. Warwick, for the gaol delivery, and in two years after was elected to parliament for that co. He m. Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Walter de Waldesheif, of Fuirfield, co. Derby, cup-bearer to EDWARD II.; and dying in 1327, was s. by his son,

SIR THOMAS SHIRLEY, Knt., M.P. for the co. Warwick, in the 14th year of EDWARD III. This Sir Thomas is said to be "the great founder of the family of Shirley, famous in his time for his valour, and for the many services, &c., rendered to the Kings of England, against the French." He m. Isabel, granddaughter of Ralph, Lord Basset of Drayton,*

* This marriage with the heiress of Lord Basset, of Drayton, deserves some remarks. The Lady's legitimacy has latterly been doubted, in defiance of what seems decisive proof, for reasons which appear extremely weak, or rather no reasons at all. The only colour for aspersion which I have met with, is an inquiry mentioned by Dugdale in which Thomas, Earl of Stafford, was found to be cousin and next heir of Ralph, last Lord Basset, of Drayton; viz., grandson of Margaret, sister to Ralph, Lord Basset, his grandfather. But every profound and properly qualified genealogist knows, that inquiries will perpetually miscarry if superficially examined; and in the present instance, the very next column of Dugdale would have suggested a solution of the difficulty. The heirs frequently pointed out by inquisitors (which are taken for the purpose of showing who are entitled to the estates of the deceased), are heirs of cutail, and not heirs of blood. And this was obviously the case in the Basset inquiry. Ralph, Lord Basset, the grandfather, in conjunction with Ralph, his grandson and heir-apparent, in the reign of EDWARD III., settled by fine several of his manors to himself for life, remainder to Ralph, the grandson, and the heirs of his body; remainder to the heirs male of the body of Ralph, the grandfather; and for want of such issue, to Ralph de Stafford for life, with divers other remainders of the line of Stafford, &c. This entail will at once account for the inquiry; which finds Thomas, Earl of Stafford, and not Sir Hugh Shirley (or rather his mother, Isabel, if she was living), to be his heir. Lord Basset, by his will, dated in 1389 (of which a copy is to be found in Harl. MSS., 4928, p. 218), entailed the lordships of Rakedale, &c., on Sir Hugh Shirley, and the heirs male of his body, on condition he should bear the name and arms of and eventually heir of her brother Ralph, the last Lord Basset of that line (since whose decease that barony has been in abeyance (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage), and, dying in 1362, was s. by his son,

SIR HUGH SHIRLEY, Knt., who s. also to the estates of his uncle, Lord Basset of Drayton. This gentleman was made grand falconer to HENRY IV. in 1400, and he was killed fighting on the side of the same monarch at the battle of Shrewsbury, being one of those who were habitated as the king, and taken for him by the opposite party. He m. Beatrix, sister and heir of John de Braose, of West Neston, co. Sussex, and was s. by his son,

SIR RALPH SHIRLEY, who was one of the chief commanders under HENRY V., at the battle of Agincourt, and took a distinguished part in the subsequent French wars of the same monarch. He m. Joan, dau. and heir of Thomas Basset, of Brailsford, co. Derby, and was s. by his only son,

RALPH SHIRLEY, constable of Melbourne Castle, and of the Castle in the Peak of Derbyshire; m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and sole heir of John de Staunton, of Staunton Harold, co. Leicester, by whom he had an only son, JOHN, his successor. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Blount, Knt., and sister of Walter Blount, Lord Mountjoy, by whom he had Ralph Shirley, esquire of the court to HENRY VII. He m. 3rdly, Lucia, dau. of Sir John Aston, of Atherton, widow of Sir John Byron, and of Sir Bertine Entwissel. He was s. by his elder son,

JOHN SHIRLEY, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Hugh Willoughby, of Wollaton, co. Notts, and, dying in 1485, was s. by his son,

SIR RALPH SHIRLEY, who was made a knight banneret, for the valour he had displayed at the battle of Stoke, 16 June, 1487. He m. four times, and had issue by his 2nd wife, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Walsh, Esq. of Wanlep, co. Leicester, an only dau., Anne, heir to her mother, m. to Sir Thomas Pultney, of Mislerton, co. Leicester; and by his last wife, Jane, dau. of Sir Robert Sheffield, Knt., an only son, his successor, in 1517,

FRANCIS SHIRLEY, Esq., sheriff of the cos. of Warwick and Leicester, in the 4th year of PHILIP and MARY. This gentleman m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Gifford, of Chillington, co. Stafford, and widow of John Congreve, Esq. He d. in 1781, and was s. by his grandson,

GEORGE SHIRLEY, Esq. of Staunton Harold (son of John Shirley, Esq., and his wife, Jane, only dau. and co-heir of Thomas Lovett, Esq. of Astwell, co. Northampton), who was created a baronet at the first institution of that dignity, 22 May, 1611, being the 4th in order of precedence. Sir George m. Frances, dau. of Henry, Lord Berkeley, by Katherine, dau. of the famous Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey, and, dying 27 April, 1622, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR HENRY. This gentleman m. in 1615, Dorothy, youngest dau. of Queen ELIZABETH'S accomplished but unfortunate favourite, Robert, Earl of Essex, and one of the co-heirs of her brother, Robert, Earl of Essex, the celebrated parliamentarian general. (By this alliance the Earls of Ferrers quarter the arms of France and England with their own; the Earl of Essex having descended, maternally, from Richard Plantagenet, Earl of Cambridge, grandson of EDWARD III.) Sir Henry d. in 1632, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR CHARLES, then in his 9th year. This gentleman d. unm. in 1646, when the title devolved upon his brother,

SIR ROBERT, who was committed to the Tower by the usurper CROMWELL, and there ended his life in captivity, not, however, without suspicion of poison, leaving two sons and two daus.,* by his wife, Catherine, dau. of Humphrey Okeover, Esq. of Okeover, co. Stafford; the elder of whom,

SIR SEYMOUR, s. to the title, and m. Diana, dau. of Robert, Earl of Aylesbury, by whom he left an only son, who s. as 6th baronet, but survived his father a short period, when the title reverted to

SIR ROBERT (Sir Seymour's brother), who had been previously knighted. This gentleman being grandson and heir of Lady Dorothy Devereux, the younger of the two sisters and heirs of Robert Devereux, last Earl of Essex of that family, and the issue of the elder sister becoming extinct, his majesty CHARLES II. was graciously pleased 14 Dec. 1677, to terminate the abeyance of the ancient Baronies of Ferrers of Chartley, Bouchier, and Lovaine, in his favour, these baronies being so situated since the decease of the above-mentioned Robert, last Earl of Essex. Sir Robert Shirley became thus Lord Ferrers of Chartley, &c. His lordship was of the privy councils of King WILLIAM and Queen ANNE, and was created by the latter sovereign, 3 Sept. 1711, Viscount Tamworth and EARL FERREES. He d. 25 Dec. 1717, having had issue by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Laurence Washington, Esq. of Garsden, co. I. ROBERT, who had for his 2nd wife, Anne, dau. of Sir Humphrey Ferrers, Knt.,* of Tamworth Castle, and heir of her grandfather, John de Ferrers; and by her left issue at his demise, in 1699,

Lineage.

This noble family derives from FIFE MACDUFF, a chieftain of great wealth and power, who lived about the year 834, and who afforded to KENNETH II., King of Scotland, strong aid against his enemies the Piets. In reward of these services, Macduff received from the monarch a grant of all the lands then called Othelinia, which he himself had conquered from the Piets, and which extended from Fifeness to Clackmannan, from east to west, and from the river Forth on the south, to the rivers Tay and Erne, on the north. Of that tract of land, which he called Fife, Macduff was appointed hereditary thane. The 8th in descent from him was the

MACDUFF, with whom the genius of Shakespeare has made the world familiar. This powerful thane having mainly contributed to the destruction of the usurper, MACBETH, and to the restoration of MALCOLM CEANMOHR, the latter King confirmed to him his co. of Fife, of which he created him earl in 1061. The 13th earl,

DUSCAN, dying in 1353, without issue male, the earldom became extinct. His descendant, however, DAVID DUFF, received, in 1401, from ROBERT III. a grant of considerable lands and of the barony of Muldavit, which continued to be one of the chief titles of the family, until alienated in the beginning of the reign of CHARLES II. The descendant of David Duff,

WILLIAM DUFF, Esq., was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, by the Queen Regent CAROLINE, as Baron Braco of Kilbryde, 28 July, 1735; and advanced to a viscounty and earldom, 26 April, 1759, by the titles of Viscount Macduff and EARL FIFE.^{*} His lordship m. 1st, Jane Ogilvie, dau. of James, Earl of Findlater and Scafield, and chancellor of Ireland, but by her (who d. 1722) he had no issue. Lineage.

This noble family is of Danish origin, but its settlement in Ireland is so remote that nothing certain can be ascertained as to the precise period. So early as the 11th century we find

JOHN PLUNKETT was seated at Beaulieu, or Bewley, co. Meath, the constant residence of the elder branch of his descendants. The successor at Bewley, in the beginning of the 13th century,

JOHN PLUNKETT, living temp. HENRY III, had two sons; John, ancestor of the Lords Louth, and

RICHARD PLUNKETT, of Rathregan, co. Meath, with his son and heir, RICHARD PLUNKETT, by royal writs of parliamentary summons, was summoned to, and sat in the parliaments and great council of 1374; the one as a baron, and the other "de concilio regis." The younger Richard Plunkett was father of

SIR CHRISTOPHER PLUNKETT, Knt. This gentleman, as a recompense for the services he had rendered in the wars of Ireland, and an indemnity for the expenses he had incurred, had a grant of a sum of money from HENRY VI, in 1426; before which time he was sheriff of Meath; and in 1432, was deputy to Sir Thomas Stanley, Knt., lord-lieut. of Ireland. Sir Christopher m. in 1403, Joan, only dau. and heir of Sir Lucas Cusac, Knt., Lord of Killeen, co. Meath, and became in her right proprietor of the barony of Killeen, and by her had issue,

I. JOHN, his heir, of Killeen.

II. Christopher, ancestor of LORD DUNSANY.

III. Thomas, of Rathmore, chief justice, ancestor of the PLUNKETS of Rathmore.

IV. Rowland, whose son and heir, SIR THOMAS PLUNKET, chief justice of the Common Pleas in Ireland, was ancestor of the great house of PLUNKET of Dunoughlie, whose heir general and representative is the present Right Hon. Major-Gen. FRANCIS-PLUNKET DUNNE, of Brittas, Queen's Co., M.P. for that county.

He d. in 1445, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN PLUNKETT, 2nd Lord of Killeen, who was s. by his son,

SIR CHRISTOPHER PLUNKETT (who in an act of parliament, 27 HENRY VI, is called "Christofre Plunkett le puisne Seigneur de Killeen"), 3rd Lord of Killeen. This feudal lord m. twice; 1st, Genet, dau. of Bellew of Bellewstown, by whom he had two sons, the younger of whom, Broughton, fell at the battle of Stoke in 1487, fighting for Lambert Simnel. Sir Christopher m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Wells, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, by his wife, a dau. of Barnewall of Cricleston, by whom (who was m. 2ndly, to John Fleming, of Newcastle, Lord Slane) he had a dau., who m. Nicholas, 16th Baron of Howth, and two sons. Sir Christopher d. in 1487, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHRISTOPHER PLUNKETT, 4th Lord of Killeen, who had summons to parliament in 1463, and is called in a statute of that year, "Christofre Plunkett, Esquire, Fitz and Heire de Christofre Plunkett, Chevalier, Jadetz Seigneur de Killeen." He d. without issue, and was s. by his brother and heir male,

EDMUND, Lord of Killeen, whose titles and descent set forth in a statute of the year 1470, and who is styled, in the roll bearing date 1481, as Edmundus Plunkett, Dominus de Killeen. He had issue a son and heir,

SIR JOHN PLUNKETT, Lord of Killeen, who was sworn of the Privy Council to HENRY VIII, and was found by inquisition to have had four sons. The 2nd son,

CHRISTOPHER PLUNKETT, who s. to the titles and estates, as heir to his brother Patrick, was an active and gallant nobleman, who discharged many high functions and commissions under the royal authority. He sat in the parliament of 1509, and having m. the grandda. of the Baron of Slane, left issue, three daus., his co-heirs, Maude, m. to the Baron of Louth.

Catherine, m. to David Sutton, Esq.

Margaret, m. to Nicholas Aylmer, Esq. of Dullardston.

Christopher was s. by his brother and heir male,

JAMES PLUNKETT, Lord Killeen, whose inheritance of the ancient family dignity was not opposed or questioned by the daus. co-heirs of his deceased brother, and he took his place in the House of Peers in the year 1585. On the 15 April, 1589, he enfeoffed trustees in his family estates, and was s. at his decease by his son and heir,

CHRISTOPHER PLUNKETT, Baron of Killeen, when aged 31, who sat in the parliament of 1613, and dying soon after, was s. by his eldest son,

LUCAS, the 10th lord, styled Lucas More. This nobleman had a large grant of territory in 1613, and was created EARL OF FINGALL, 26 Sept. 1628, JAMES I, precluding the honour by a most flattering letter, dated Westminster, 28 June, in that year, beginning thus:—"That having received good testimonies of the virtuous and many good parts of his right trusty and well beloved subject, the Lord Baron Killeen, being one of the ancient nobility of Ireland, his majesty was pleased," &c. &c. His lordship m. four times, and had issue by his 2nd marriage, with Susannah, 5th dau. of Edward, Lord Brabazon (only), of which,

CHRISTOPHER, the eldest son, s. to the honours.

George, the 4th son, a capt. of foot at the siege of Drogheda, in 1641, and afterwards col. in the rebel army. He m. Cicely, dau. of Sir William Hill, of Allenston, co. Meath, and had,

JAMES, who m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of Edward Plunkett, of Loughcrew, and niece of Oliver Plunkett, titular primate of all Ireland in 1681, a clergyman of great virtues and ability, who fell a victim to the times in which he lived, being most unjustly executed in 1681, as one of the conspirators in the pretended Popish Plot. By this lady he had a dau., Mary, m. to William O'Mara. He m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Robert Cusack, Esq. of Jerristown, co. Meath, and had, with other issue,

ROBERT, who s. as 6th earl.

His lordship d. in 1637, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHRISTOPHER, 2nd earl. This nobleman having been made prisoner at the battle of Rathmines, d. in the castle of Dublin fourteen days afterwards, A.D. 1649, and was s. by his son (by Mabell, dau. of Nicholas, Viscount Kingsland),

LUKE, 3rd earl, who was restored to his estates and honours, by the Court of Claims, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

PETER, 4th earl. This nobleman was outlawed by the name of Luke, in 1691, for his loyalty to his legitimate sovereign, JAMES II, but the outlawry was reversed in six years afterwards, A.D. 1697. His lordship m. Frances, 3rd dau. of Sir Edward Hales, Bart., and dying 24 Jan. 1717, left issue,

JUSTIN, his successor.

Margaret, m. to J. Nugent, Esq. of Coolamber.

Emilia, m. to Robert, Earl Nugent.

Mary, m. to Maurice O'Connor, Esq. of Mount Pleasant, King's Co.

His lordship was s. by his only son,

JUSTIN, 5th earl, who d. in 1733, without issue, and intestate, and was s. in his titles and estates, by his cousin and heir male,

ROBERT, 6th earl (refer to George, 2nd son of Lucas, 1st earl); who enjoyed the honours without opposition or question on the part of the three daus. and heirs lineal of Peter, 4th earl. In about a century afterwards, however, the grandson of the youngest dau. Maurice O'Connor, Esq., made claim to the Barony of Killeen, as a barony created by writ, and as such, inheritable through females. Like all other claims of the same nature, it has been unsuccessful, though brought forward at a time when the feelings of the Irish government were violently excited against the Earl of Fingall. Robert, 6th Earl of Fingall, was a captain in Berwick's regiment, in the service of France. He m. Mary, dau. of Roger Magenis, Esq. of Iveagh, co. His lordship d. 21 Aug. 1793, and was s. by his son,

ARTHUR-JAMES, 8th earl, K.P., b. 9 Sept. 1759; who was created a peer of the United Kingdom, 20 June, 1831, by the title of Baron Fingall, of Woolhampton Lodge, co. Berks. He m. Dec. 1785, Francis, dau. of John Donelan, Esq. of Bally Donelan, co. Galway, by whom (who d. Jan. 1855) he had,

* William Wollascot is supposed by the Rev. Thomas Wharton, in his History and Antiquities of Kidlington, to be of the same family as the WELLESCHOTS, or WELLESCHOTS, who formerly held that manor. "Of the name of Wellescote, corrupted from Wellemsscot, there is," says Mr. Wharton, "a family seated at Woolhampton, near Newbury, in Berkshire. They write Wool-lascote. The last heiress, as I apprehend, intermarried within the Earl of Fingall, an Irish peer, within these last twenty years (1773), who is now living in that place."

After the Restoration, he presented a petition to CHARLES II., praying to be reinstated in the property of which CROMWELL had deprived him; but the act of settlement having passed, his petition was in vain. In consequence of the destruction of the castle of Clenglish, the baronet established himself at the castle of Ishen, co. Cork, which, with considerable estates in that county, as well as in Kerry and Tipperary, are still in possession of the present baronet. Sir Edward was s. at his decease by his son,

SIR WILLIAM FITZ GODRIC, cousin to King EDWARD the Confessor, left a son and heir,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, who being ambassador at the Court of WILLIAM, Duke of Normandy, attended that prince in his victorious expedition against England, as marshal of the army, A.D. 1066; and for his valour at the battle of Hastings, the CONQUEROR presented him with a scarf from his own arm. This Sir William was father of

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, Knt., who m. Eleanor, dau. and heir of Sir John Elmley, of Elmley and Sprotburgh, which lordships continued with the Fitzwilliams until the reign of HENRY VIII., when they were carried, by co-heirs, to Suthill and Copley. Sir William was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, Lord of Elmley and Sprotburgh, living 1117, as appears from a grant made by him of a piece of wood in Elmley to the monks of Piland. To this grant is a round seal, representing a man on horseback, completely armed, and circumscribed, S. Willmi Filij Willmi Dni de Emmataia; and on the reverse, the arms of Fitzwilliam; viz., Lozengy. This Sir William, or one of his descendants, caused a cross to be set up in the high street of Sprotborough, with these words engraven on brass:—

“Whoso is hungry, and lists to eate,
Let him come to Sprotburgh to his meate;
And for a night, and for a day,
His horse shall have both corn and hay,
And no man shall ask him where he goeth away.”

Which cross was pulled down in 1520. From this Sir William we pass to his descendant,

SIR JOHN FITZWILLIAM, who founded in 1372 the chantry of St. Edward, in the church of Sprotburgh; and having m. Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Clinton, had three sons, the eldest of whom,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, m. Maud, dau. of Ralph, Lord Cromwell of Tattershall and co-heir of the Lord-Treasurer Cromwell, by whom he had one son and two daus., and was s. by the former.

SIR JOHN FITZWILLIAM, who m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Henry Green, of Drayton, and had six sons and a dau. The youngest son,

JOHN FITZWILLIAM, Esq. of Milton, and Green's Norton, in Northamptonshire, m. Eleanor, dau. of William Villers, Esq. of Brokesby, co. Leicester, by whom he had three sons and two daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM, of Milton and Gainspark, co. Essex, and also of the city of London, of which he was sheriff in 1506, and subsequently alderman of Bread-street Ward. He had been for some time in the train of Cardinal Wolsey, and retiring afterwards to his house at Milton, there gave his old master, the cardinal, in the hour of his disgrace, a kind reception; for which conduct, being brought to task by King HENRY, he replied that he had not acted in contemptuous disobedience to his highness's orders, but in gratitude to the fallen minister, who had been his master, and partly the founder of his good fortune; at which answer the king was so pleased, that he immediately knighted Mr. Fitzwilliam, and made him one of his privy council. Sir William m. Ist. Anne, dau. of Sir John Hawes, Knt. of the city of London, and had,

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM was lord-deputy, and lord-justice of Ireland, from 1560 to 1594. This eminent person is thus noticed by Fuller, in his Worthies of England:—"Sir William Fitzwilliam was five times lord-deputy of Ireland a sufficient evidence of his honesty and ability, Queen ELIZABETH never trusting twice where she was once deceived in a minister of state. And she also preserved him in the power of his place, that, sending over Walter, Earl of Essex, to be governor of Ulster, the earl was ordered to take his commission from the lord-deputy." The surname of FORBES was assumed from the lands of Forbes, co. Aberdeen, granted by ALEXANDER II., about the middle of the 13th century, to the progenitor of this noble family.

JOHN DE FORBES, the first upon record, was a man of rank and importance in the reign of King WILLIAM THE LION. He was father of

FERGUS DE FORBES, from whom all the Scottish families of the name have descended. The eldest son and successor of this Fergus,

ALEXANDER DE FORBES, a man of great personal valour, lost his life in defence of the castle of Urquhart, in Murray, against EDWARD I. The fortress was taken by storm, after a gallant resistance, and the whole garrison put to the sword, none escaping but the wife of the governor, who fled into Ireland, and there gave birth soon afterwards to a son.

ALEXANDER FORBES, who returned to Scotland, and attaching himself to the fortunes of King ROBERT BRUCE, obtained grants of land equivalent to those of which his father had been despoiled. He fell at the battle of Duplin, in 1332, and was s. by his son,

This gentleman obtained large possessions in the cos. of Aberdeen, Banff, Forfar, Edinburgh, &c., as appears from several charters under the great seal. (See DOUGLAS'S Baronetage.) He completed the unfinished castle of Craigievar in 1626, after the most sumptuous style of the period, and took his designation therefrom. The name of Craigievar, or, in Gaelic, "Creg a' Mhar," means the rock of Mar; and the place from tradition derives considerable interest. In its immediate vicinity are two or three long trenches on the top of the hill of Corse, supposed to be a camp or fortification of Macbeth; and near this there are a great number of small tumuli, now overgrown with short heath, the last memorials of those who fell "when Birnam forest came to Dunsinane." At a small distance from these, and upon the same hill, the spot is shown where Macduff killed Macbeth; and there is still a large cairn, called Macbeth's, in which ancient arms were found some years ago. He was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia 20 April, 1630, by letters patent to him "et hæredibus masculis a corpore suo," with a grant of 16,000 acres in New Brunswick, erected into a free barony and regality, to be called "New Craigievar." Sir William commanded a troop of horse, and was actively engaged on the side of the parliament during the civil commotions. In 1641, he was appointed one of the commissioners for planting kirks and valuation of tithes; in 1644, one of the commissioners for conserving the Ripon treaty; in 1645, one of the commissioners of estates; and in 1647, sheriff of Aberdeen. † This gentleman was commemorated by the celebrated Arthur Johnston in the following lines—

In obitum Gulielmi Forbesii Cragivarii
Nobilis hic tumulus Forbesi conspici; audi
Qui fuerint mores, ingeniumque viri.
Quod labor est aliis, vite dum carperet auras,
Divitias illi quaerere luluus erat.
Cumque juberetur terris excedere, ridens,
Terra vale! celo nunc potiger, ait.
Quas possedit opes, et terrae jumenta nemo
Miretur, dominum plus fuit esse sibi!

Lineage.

This noble family deduces its origin from Sir Richard le Forte, a distinguished soldier in the invading army of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, who protected his royal master, at the celebrated battle of Hastings, by bearing a strong shield before him; from which event the French word escue (a shield) was added to the original surname of Fort, and thus Fortescue produced. The son of this gallant warrior,

SIR ADAM FORTESCUE, Knt., being also a commanding officer in the same conflict, obtained from the successful monarch a grant of Wimondeston, or, as it is now written, Winston, co. Devon, of which he became lord. The descendant of this Sir Adam,

Sir John was esteemed a very eminent lawyer, and was the author of the celebrated treatise, entitled De Laudibus Legum Angliæ, in which he calls himself Cancellarius Angliæ. FOULIS.

LISTON-FOULIS, SIR JAMES, of Colinton and Ravelston (lineal descendant of Sir John Foulis, Bart. of Ravelston, which latter dignity was forfeited by the 2nd baronet, Sir Archibald Primrose, who was beheaded for high treason in 1745, at Carlisle); b. 3 July, 1847; s. his father as 9th baronet, in 1858, and has been an officer 16th foot.

Lineage.

It is universally admitted that the surname of FOULIS is of Norman origin. The progenitor of the family came into England, either at or before the Conquest, and his armorial bearings being three leaves, called feuilles, in the old Norman, it is certain that the name was either given to the family whilst residing in South Britain, or else assumed by the individual who first took up his abode in Scotland in the reign of MALCOLM CEANMOR, when surnames were for the first time adopted.

JAMES FOULIS, Esq. of Colinton, son of Henry Foulis, by Margaret Haldane, of Gleneagles, and 5th in descent from William Foulis, secretary to King JAMES I., was living temp. Queen MARY and JAMES VI. of Scotland. He m. Anna Heriot, heir of Lumphoy, and had four sons, JAMES, his successor.

George, who m. Janet Bannatyne, only child of the compiler of the MSS. in the Advocate's Library, and was father of George, of Ravelston, who m. Jean, dau. of Sir John Sinclair, of Stevenston, and had a son, SIR JOHN FOULIS, of Ravelston, created a Baronet in 1661, lineal ancestor of SIR WILLIAM LISTON-FOULIS, Bart.

David, progenitor of the English Baronets Foulis, of Ingleby Manor, co. York.

John, of Leadhills, whose granddau., Ann, heir of Leadhills, m. Sir James Hope, of Hopetoun, from whom the Earls of Hopetoun descend.

This James Foulis was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES FOULIS, Knt. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Lauder, of Hatton, and left, with a dau., Margaret, wife of Louis Dick, Esq., an only son,

I. ALEXANDER FOULIS, Esq., who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 7 June, 1634. Sir Alexander m. Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Hepburn, Esq. of Ford, great-granddau. of the Earl of Bothwell and relict of the great sheriff of Bute (by whom she had a son, the progenitor of the Marquess of Bute). By this lady Sir Alexander had one dau., who was m. to the 1st Earl of Haddington, and an only son, his successor,

II. SIR JAMES. This gentleman had the honour of knighthood conferred upon him during the lifetime of his father, and was actively engaged in the unfortunate warfare which ravaged Scotland after the death of CHARLES I. Having along with others, attended a convention of the committee of estates, at Elliot, in Angus, he was betrayed into the hands of the English, and with his companions, the Earls of Leven, Crawford, Marischal, Lord Ogilvy, and several gentlemen of rank, surprised on Thursday morning, 28 Aug. 1651, by a squadron of dragoons, commanded by Colonel Aldridge, who carried the whole party to Brugty, and consigned them thence in a vessel to London. After the restoration of the monarchy, Sir James was constituted, in 1661, one of the senators of the College of Justice, and in 1684, appointed lord-chief-justice-clerk, which high offices he held under the titular designation of Lord Colinton. His lordship m. Barbara, dau. of Alexander Ainslie, Esq. of Dolphington, by whom he had two sons. He d. 19 Jan. 1618, and was s. by the elder,

SIR JAMES, a lord of Session, privy-councillor, and member of the last Scottish parliament, in 1706, at which time he joined the Dukes of Hamilton and Atholl, and many others of the nobility and gentry, in their celebrated protest made by Lord Erroll, the earl-mareschal, respecting the most constitutional military defence of the house of legislature. He also joined in the protest which declared that an incorporating union of the two nations was inconsistent with the honour of Scotland. Sir James had subsequently a seat in the first British parliament. He m. Margaret, dau. of John Boyd, Esq., dean of the guild of Edinburgh, descended of the family of Kilmarnock, by whom he had seven sons, of whom six died s. p. Sir James d. in 1711, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR JAMES; and whose decease, anno. in 1742, the title devolved upon his nephew,

V. SIR JAMES, eldest and only surviving son of Henry

The present Sir James represents, therefore, the houses of Colinton, Woodhall, and Ravelston. The 2nd Baronet of Ravelston (who was son of the 1st baronet's eldest son, George-Primrose Foulis, Esq., by whom the lands of Dunihæe were inherited in right of his mother, Margaret, dowager of Sir Archibald Primrose, and mother of the 1st Earl of Rosebery) bore the designation of Sir Archibald Primrose, of Razelston; which Sir Archibald Primrose, m. his cousin, Lady Mary Primrose, dau. of the 1st Earl of Rosebery, and had an only son, Archibald, who d. in early life, issueless. Sir Archibald was involved in the rebellion of 1745, and beheaded at Carlisle, when his honours ceased.

Lineage.

THE SIRE DE GAUGE is named on the Roll of Battle Abbey among those who fought at Hastings, and appears to have derived his name from the seignory of Gaugy, near Ronen, in Normandy. RALPH DE GAUGE paid his aid as tenant in capite, towards marrying the king's daughter in 1166. His son, Robert, was a strong adherent of King John in his wars with the barons. He obtained Thornton and Langester, in the bishopric of Durham, by marriage with Beatrice, dau. and heir of Robert Lovel, by whom he had two sons, Ralph, the eldest, d. 1213, whose son, of the same name, d. 1279; and his successor, ADAM DE GAUGE, dying s. p. in 1287, the estates passed to the De Cliffords.

WILLIAM DE GAUGE, 2nd son of Robert, was made constable of Caerquarthen Castle, by HENRY III. in 1234, and received from that monarch several grants of lands in South Wales and Gloucestershire. From him the extant GAGES derive; and they continued to reside at Cirencester, co. Gloucester, until the death of JOHN GAUGE, or GAGE (only son of John de Gauge, of Cirencester), who had m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of John Sudgrove, of Sudgrove-in-Miserden, co. Gloucester; and dying circa 1440, was s. p. by his son,

SIR JOHN GAGE, Knt. of Burstowe, co. Surrey, who acquired that seat, as well as Peshurst, in Kent and considerable estates in Sussex and Buckinghamshire, with his wife Eleanor, dau. and co-heir of Thomas St. Clere (only son of Sir Philip St. Clere, Knt. of Igham, by Margaret, sole heir of Sir Nicholas de Lovayne, Knt. of Burstowe, and grandson of Sir Philip St. Clere, Knt., M.P. for Sussex in 1377). He d. in 1476, leaving two sons, of whom John was ancestor of the GAGES of Kashton, co. Northampton, whilst the elder,

WILLIAM GAGE, s. to Burstowe. Peshurst, afterwards so celebrated as the property of the Sidney's, and the theme of Waller's verse, being sold, this William formed a seat, where his heirs still reside, at West Fife, on the manor of Heighton-St. Clere, which had come to his mother's family by the marriage of John de St. Clere (who d. 1327) with Isolda, sole heir of Thomas de Aldham, of Igham and Aldham, in Kent. Mr. Gage m. Agnes, sister of John Bolney, of Bolney, in Sussex, M.P. for that co. 1459, and dying 1496, was s. at Fife, by his son,

SIR JOHN GAGE, K.G., a distinguished soldier and statesman, whose services are thus detailed in an ancient MS. by his 3rd son Robert. "Sir John Gage, Knt. who was, after his father's death, in ward to W. Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, and after his marriage to my mother, dau. of Sir Richard Guldeford, was preferred by the said duke to HENRY VIII's service, and distinguished himself at the siege of Terovene, was thereupon made captain of the castle of Calais (usually called Guynes), shortly after was sent for home, and knighted, and made of the privy-council, vice-chamberlain, and captain of the guards; few years after, for services done on the borders of Scotland, at his return, was made comptroller of the household, and chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in one day. In a few days after he was made constable of the Tower of London, and, the next St. George's feast, knight of the most noble order of the Garter; at the winning of Bnlogne (36th HENRY VIII), he was in joint commission with Charles, Duke of Suffolk, lord-lieutenant of his majesty's camp; and for sundry services there with Sir

Anthony Browne, Knt., master of the horse, was made general captain of the bands of horsemen. After the death of our sovereign lord EDWARD VI, at the coming of Queen MARY, was made her lord-chamberlain. Thus, having served in all these rooms and offices truly, faithfully, and painfully, from the 1st year of our sovereign lord HENRY VIII, of famous memory, unto the 5th year of Queen MARY, untouched with any reproach or unfaithful service, at this time being 77 years of age, he ended his life, in favour with his prince, at his own house, at Firlie, in Sussex.*

This eminent person m. Philippa, dau. of Sir Richard Guldeford, K.G., and had (with four daus. of whom Alice, m. Sir Anthony Browne, K.G., and Anne, John Thatcher, Esq. of Priestshaws, in Sussex) four sons, namely,

I. EDWARD, his heir.

II. John, of Bentley, in Sussex, whose son, John, of Wormley, Herts, m. Eleanor, widow of Sir Thomas Baskerville, Knt., and d. m. of Richard Habington, Esq., and from this marriage descended

JOHN GAGE, Esq. of Bentley Park, Sussex, who m. in 1701, Lucy, dau. and heir of John Mayo, Esq., and left, with three sons, who d. s. p., an only dau.,

Lucy, who m. William Herrick, Esq. of Beaumar, in Leicestershire and was grandmother of the present WILLIAM HERRICK, Esq. of Beaumar Park.

III. Robert, of Haling, in Surrey, M.P. for Lewes 1534, who left two sons,

1 Robert, beheld for his adherence to the unfortunate MARY STUART.

2 JOHN, of Haling, father of the celebrated Col. Sir HENRY GAGE, Knt., governor of Oxford, so gallantly distinguished in the service of CHARLES I. during the civil war. He twice relieved Basing House, but was slain at Cullum Bridge, 7 Jan. 1641.

IV. William, d. s. p.

Sir John Gage d. in 1557, and was s. by his eldest son,

Sir EDWARD GAGE, K.B., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Parker, Esq. of Willington, in Sussex, and had (with six daus., Agnes, m. to Sir Edward Stradling, Knt. of St. Donat's Castle; Philippa, m. to Edward Saunderson, Esq.; Mary, m. to James Thatcher, Esq.; Margery, m. to Anthony Kemp, Esq.; Lucy; and Margaret, m. to Henry Darell, Esq.) nine sons, of whom,

JOHN (the eldest), s. his father.
